FINLAND WILLING TO WITHDRAW SOLDIERS IF RUSSIANS ALSO AGREE TO MARCH BACK

Paris Parliament Expected To Back Premier Daladier

Approval of His Course in War Appears To Be Certain

BATTLE OVER FINANCES TO START ON THURSDAY

Appropriation of More Than Seven Billions Will Be Asked

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP)—The French parliament tonight was called to meet Thursday, in its first session of the war, to approve the Daladier government's conduct of the war and to extend its power to rule by decree.

The session also will vote on a final budget to carry the war into 1940. The budget will be more than double that of 1939.

Premier Edouard Daladier's decree powers expire on the day parliament meets. For almost three months Daladier, holding the portfolios of minister of war, national defense and foreign affairs as well as premier, has been prosecuting the war against Germany.

Predict Battle on Finances

Finances are expected to provide the major battle of the session. Finance Minister Paul Reynaud has drafted an ordinary budget for 1940 calling for expenditures of 349,000,000,000 francs ($7,678,000,000 at current exchange rate.)

The total 1939 budget was only 332,364,0000,000 francs ($3,572,008,000). This included ordinary expenditures of 66,364,000,000 francs ($1,460,008,000), extraordinary expenses of 27,000,000,000 francs ($594,000,000) and the September war burget of 69,000,000,000 ($1,518,000,000).

This war budget was approved unanimously by parliament at its last session, held Sept. 2, the day before France and Britain declared war on Germany.

Cabinet Support Expected

Complete confidence was maintained in government quarters that the cabinet would win a strong vote of confidence and push through next year's budget before Jan. 1.

There has been occasional criticism of the government from parliament on minor issues of the war. The chamber delegation of presidents of political groups issued a communique after its meeting of Oct. 26 listing a series of points on which it was at odds with the government.

The government already has taken steps to satisfy the legislators. Men who started their military training in 1909 and 1910 have been released, and restrictions on circulation, communications and lighting have been relaxed.

The government has strengthened its hand for the coming encounter with parliament by dissolving the Communist party following Soviet Russia's conclusion of a non-aggression pact with Germany and the Russian invasion of Poland.

Baltimore, Nov. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Meta Adelhardt, 39, was killed today when a car driven by her husband, Herbert, collided with a machine driven by John Kohlhepp. Kohlhepp's skull was fractured. Adelhardt was charged with failing to give right of way, and causing his wife's death, and Kohlhepp with speeding and reckless driving.

Morgenthau Asks New Debt Top or Tax Hike

"Needed If Boys Eat" He Says, Seeking $500,000,000 Loan

By IRVING PERLMETER

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau, asking the public to lend the treasury $500,000,000 for imminent federal expenses, said today that Congress soon must do something about increasing the national debt limit or levying new taxes, "if the boys are going to eat."

He made the "eating" comment in a joking tone and declined to explain it. However, it was understood the secretary meant that if congress appropriations were going to be met the treasury would need some means of getting the money.

The $500,000,000, for which bids will be received tomorrow, will be an addition to the public debt, now $41,286,551,646. With more deficits in view, the treasury is getting close to the $45,000,000,000 limit placed on the debt more than fifteen years ago.

Morgenthau Not Worried

Morgenthau, grinning to show that he was "not worried" about the debt situation, said his confidence in public investment demand for government bonds was shown by his choice of a two per cent interest rate on the nine to eleven year bonds to be sold to raise the $500,000,000. This was said, the lowest interest rate ever offered on a comparable government security.

Although the treasury has $1,500,000,000 in cash on hand, Morgenthau said the borrowing was being undertaken because of the need for more cash to pay for the deficit in coming months. Since the fiscal year began July 1, the treasury has

Nye Sees Effort To Make European War U. S. WPA Project

Fort Collins, Colo., Nov. 27 (AP)—Senator Gerald P. Nye, (R-ND) author of the neutrality act from which Congress recently struck the embargo on arms shipments, today forecast a possible effort to repeal the ban on credit purchases by debtor nations.

Senator Nye, in an address prepared for delivery at Colorado State College, said:

"However much we may want to cure the depression and afford employment for the unemployed, we should want to avoid such steps as would lead to making the cause of shifting European border lines an American WPA project." x x x

'If we manage to stay off the military front of this war we should erect somewhere in this country a monument to the unpaid foreign debt."

Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced tonight at his home here that his daughter, Mrs. Barbara Vandenberg Knight, would be married Dec. 30 in Washington to John W. Bailey, Jr., of Battle Creek, Mich. Bailey's father ran for United States senator against Vandenberg in 1928 and was defeated 974,203 to 375,673.

Referring to the political contest and the engagement, Sen. Vandenberg said, "that just shows you what a good coalitionist I am."

Amish from Pennsylvania Welcome To Maryland, Gov. O'Conor Says

College Park, Md., Nov. 27 (AP)—Amish people migrating from Pennsylvania to Maryland were promised freedom and cooperation today in building a new community in the Free State.

These assurances came from Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, and Claude Johnson, a commissioner of St. Mary's county.

Seven "Friendshaft" (families) of the industrious plain people are in process of starting the new colony in St. Mary's county, marking another phase in the history of a state founded more than 300 years ago on the principle of freedom of religion and thought.

Land Is Run-Down

Their new community of farms is in a section of southern Maryland devoted largely to tobacco growing. For the most part the land in the new Amish colony is run-down, has been uncultivated for years, and must be rejuvenated.

Dr. Symons, who played an active part in the Amish migration from Lancaster, Pa., said the plain people

Kuhn Maligned, Lawyer Declares In Closing Plea

Blames Dewey's Office, but Not District Attorney Personally

New York, Nov. 27. (AP)—Fritz Kuhn's trial for misappropriation of $1,217 from his German-American Bund entered a last, long forensic stage today, with his attorney asserting that it had been a "political" prosecution by the office of "the man who may be president of these United States."

This reference to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey was qualified by Defense Counsel Peter L. F. Sabbatino however, with the declaration that it was not upon Dewey himself but upon his subordinates that the responsibility should fall.

Defense at End

Making his closing argument to the jury, Sabbatino accused the state of having had motives of publicity in offering evidence that Kuhn had written extravagant protestations of love to Mrs. Florence Camp, although he was and is a married man. The defense attorney concluded late in the day and the state's argument will come tomorrow.

Such great figures of history as Napoleon and Julius Caesar, Sabbatino declared, had extra-marital affections, and he compared the middle-aged Bundsfuehrer to these and others of "the greatest of men who have fallen for women although they were married."

Liked Mrs. Camp

"He liked Mrs. Camp," Sabbatino shouted at another point, "or if you will, he was in love with her. What of it? What did that have to do with it?"

Of the money Kuhn stands accused of having taken from the Bund, the prosecution claims $717 went for removing Mrs. Camp's furniture about the country.

Charges of first and second degree larceny in this connection, and charges of larceny and third degree forgery for Kuhn's alleged misappropriation of $500 in legal fees ostensibly paid by him to an attorney for Bund legal services, were all that remained for the jury's decision after Judge James G. Wallace struck out five other counts of the original indictment.

If convicted on all counts, Kuhn would be liable to a total sentence as high as 15 years.

Insisting that Kuhn had a "right" to sign checks on the bund account for his personal use, Sabbatino said the camp counts were "ridiculous."

He recalled that various bundsmen had testified Kuhn had power under the "leadership priniciple" to do what he pleased with bund money—even to "throw it down the sewer" said one witness—and added that while he deplored that principle it must be accepted as having given Kuhn total power in the bund.

Gannett May Run For Nomination

Spokane, Nov. 27. (AP)—Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher and chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, said today he was giving "careful consideration" to his possible candidacy for the Republican nomination for president.

Here to open a western speaking tour, he told a press conference:

"It is true that great pressure is being put on me to induce me to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for president. xxx Naturally I feel honored by this high compliment. I have never been ambitious for political office and have several times refused to be a candidate. I have been more interested in the preservation of our form of government than in any honor that might come to me.

"No American, however, would decline the nomination if it were offered him. I am, of course, giving my possible candidacy careful consideration."

Admiralty Tells How Deutschland Sank Armed British Merchantman

Aided by Another Pocket Battleship, Statement Declares

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

London, Nov. 27 (AP)—The story of a blazing sea battle in which two German raiders, one the pocket battleship Deutschland, sank the armed British merchantman Rawalpindi off the southeast coast of Iceland, was told tonight in a vivid admiralty communique.

Fighting until riddled by shot and shell, the Rawalpindi went down with colors flying in a fight against overwhelming odds, on Nov. 23, the admiralty said.

British Hunt Raiders

Britain's warships are searching night and day now for the swift, heavily armed raiders which eluded a British cruiser in darkness and storm after sinking the 16,697-ton Rawalpindi with an estimated loss of 280 lives.

A stringent economic reprisal was decided on today by Great Britain to counter Germany's intensified sea warfare by armed raiders, mines and subarines, which added three more ships to the growing toll of merchant vessels.

Tomorrow the new parliament will be addressed by King George VI who today signed an order in council proclaiming Britain's right to seize all goods of 'enemy' destination, origin or ownership," even in neutral ships.

Authorities said King George's order would be published tomorrow in the London Gazette and would be placed in operation "in a few days."

Neutral Protest Blockade

Meantime, it was understood, an effort will be made to smooth over objections of six neutral governments which protested the new blockade order on the ground it would stifle trade.

British naval authorities said the blockade, including German exports as well as imports, would be more effective than in the world war because the Reich now is in need of cash and credits.

(France announced a decree would be published tomorrow paving the way to take similar measures to shut off all German exports.)

The admiralty told how the Rawalpindi, on contraband patrol duty, ignored a warning shot across her bows and then was blasted by salvos for the eleven-inch guns of the Deutschland at 10,000 yards.

"The Rawalpindi replied with all four starboard six-inch guns," the admiralty reported.

British Ship Crippled

"The third salvo from the Deutschland put out all lights and broke electric winches of the ammunition supply.

"The fourth salvo shot away the whole of the bridge and wirless room.

"Both German ships now were closing rapidly and by this time the second had gone around the Rawalpindi's stern and was firing from the port side."

The account told how the Rawalpindi maintained the fight 'until every gun was put out of action and

Mrs. Roosevelt Airs Opinions on Women Who Work for Their Living

By BETH CAMPBELL

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told junior leaguers today that she thought women who work for money when they don't need it should be sure to do something that causes employment — or else give the money away in a manner which increases jobs.

The first lady's comment was in reply to a questioner who observed that Mrs. Roosevelt was paid for what she did and asked whether the first lady thought it was more important for women who did not need income to express themselves and get paid for it, or to do volunteer work and get only the satisfaction of service.

"Personal Problem"

Labeling that "an intensely personal problem," Mrs. Roosevelt said there was a great satisfaction in doing a professional job. The experience of "having earned your own living" is particularly important to women nowadays, she said, citing pitiful letters she has received from older women who never learned to do so.

The junior league, an organization of society girls and women who do volunteer civic and welfare work, gave Mrs. Roosevelt her early experience in settlement house work, she said.

"Whether the work is volunteer or professional," she said, "the important thing is to widen one's contacts so as to understand more about life than you would otherwise."

Wants Cash for Defense

At her press conference earlier today, Mrs. Roosevelt said she would like to have the country pay for its defense as it goes along. She stressed that her opinion was purely personal and that she had not talked over the matter with President Roosevelt or with any tax experts.

The first lady touched on another phase of living in wartime when one of the reporters told her that retail sugar prices had not been lowered to pre-war levels on October 1 although raw sugar had dropped back to its August level, according to the consumers' counsel of the agriculture department.

On the basis of that information, Mrs. Roosevelt said that if it is still true the only thing she saw for housewives to do was to organize in various places and use honey in place of sugar until the price comes down to a reasonable point.

Russia Excited over Alleged Finn Attack

Workers Hold Meetings and Press Scores Finland

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, Nov. 27 (AP)—Soviet meetings and the press produced mass excitement today over the Russian charge that Finnish troops shot across the border and killed four and wounded nine Red soldiers.

Throughout the country countless meetings of soldiers, workers and farmers were held at which resolutions were adopted, some expressing anger against Finland or calling for the Russian government to take action by adopting "the strictest measures."

Workers at a bearings plant in Moscow, were reported by Tass, official Soviet news agency, to have adopted a resolution declaring "our invincible Red army will reduce the enemy to dust on his own territory" if "provocateurs" ventured war against the "powerful country of Socialism."

Claims Public Indignant

The agency carried a summary of other resolutions adopted at "lightning meetings" and said a "storm of the peoples" wrath and indignation had been called forth by the alleged incident.

Meetings were being held all over the country, Tass reported, at which unanimous support was given the government's demand for withdrawal of Finnish troops twelve to six-

Child Loses Eye In Bomb Blast

Milton, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—Surgeons worked to save the eyesight of five-year old Boyd Cooper, Jr., today while state oplice traced the origin of a cigar box bomb found by the boy's father in the driveway of a farmer's home.

The father, Boyd Cooper, said he found the cigar box with a battery attachment Thursday on his way to work on the farm of Cornwell Blake, near here, and took it home with him. Young Boyd was playing with the box when it exploded, burning him severely, destroying the sight in one eye and injuring the other, the father said.

The boy was taken to Huntington for treatment and later returned home.

State Trooper Edwin Starcher said the explosion had been caused by a bomb attached to a battery. He declined comment on the investigation.

Little Northern Nation Opens Way For Big Neighbor To Settle Dispute

Sends Conciliatory Note to Moscow in Effort To Pacify Belligerent Soviet Masses

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Helsinki, Nov. 27 (AP)—Finland gave a soft answer tonight to turn the wrath of renewed Soviet-Russian demands.

The little northern country told her big neighbor that on the condition that Russian troops also withdrawn, Finland is willing to negotiate for withdrawal of her troops which have been stationed on the border for weeks.

A note, sent tonight by the Finnish foreign minister to Moscow was the answer to a Soviet protest last night which charged Finnish artillery with killing four Red soldiers and wounding nine at Mainila on the Finnish-Russian border north of Leningrad. The Soviet asked that Finnish troops be drawn back 12 to 16 miles in that area.

May Resume Negotiations

Diplomatic observers interpreted the Finnish answer as one designed to the give the Russians the opportunity to resume negotiations which were broken off by Finland on Nov. 13 when Finland refused to make further concessions to Soviet demands for border revisions and naval bases.

Nevertheless, it was pointed out, the Finnish note tonight rejected any unilateral concessions regarding disposition of troops which might jeopardize her defense.

An investigation had shown, said the note, that Finnish soldiers fired no shots yesterday, as the Soviet charged. But it had been observed on the other hand, that firing had occurred on the Russian side.

Details recorded in the journals of the Finnish frontier guards at the time of the shooting before the Russian protest was filed, said the Finnish note, told of bursting shells being seen in a field about 800 meters (about 900 yards) across the frontier on the Russian side.

It added that the cannon, which fired seven shots between 3:45 p. m. and 4:05 p. m.—the same number and about the same time as alleged by Russia—appeared to be placed from a mile to a mile and a quarter away from the hits.

May Have Been Accident

The note, signed by Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko, said that "perhaps" it was an accident on the Russian side, and that "therefore, my duty is to deny your protest and to establish the fact that from the Finnish side no hostile actions toward Russia have taken place."

"Consequently, although there is no concrete reason to remove troops from the frontier line in the manner you suggested, my government nevertheless is ready to deliberate the Russian proposal with the intention that troops be removed by both sides to a fixed distance from the frontier."

A proposal was made that the incident be investigated by a frontier commission already set up for such purposes.

Chrysler President and Murray Confer in Effort To End Strike

Detroit, Nov. 27. (AP)—K. T. "We are getting along," said Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey after the conference had proceeded for two hours.

A few hours earlier, under the watchful eyes of 1,000 policemen and with the jeers of more than 3,000 union pickets ringing in their ears, about 200 negro foundry workers entered the strikebound Dodge main plant.

"Let the strikebreakers in," a union spokesman called to the pickets through a loud speaker. "There aren't enough to operate the plant and what the corporation wants is for you to stop them and start a fight."

Fighting until riddled by shot and shell, the Rawalpindi went down with colors flying in a fight against overwhelming odds, on Nov. 23, the admiralty said.

British Hunt Raiders

Britain's warships are searching night and day now for the swift, heavily armed raiders which eluded a British cruiser in darkness and storm after sinking the 16,697-ton Rawalpindi with an estimated loss of 280 lives.

A stringent economic reprisal was decided on today by Great Britain to counter Germany's intensified sea warfare by armed raiders, mines and subarines, which added three more ships to the growing toll of merchant vessels.

Tomorrow the new parliament will be addressed by King George VI who today signed an order in council proclaiming Britain's right to seize all goods of 'enemy' destination, origin or ownership," even in neutral ships.

Authorities said King George's order would be published tomorrow in the London Gazette and would be placed in operation "in a few days."

Neutral Protest Blockade

Meantime, it was understood, an effort will be made to smooth over objections of six neutral governments which protested the new blockade order on the ground it would stifle trade.

British naval authorities said the blockade, including German exports as well as imports, would be more effective than in the world war because the Reich now is in need of cash and credits.

(France announced a decree would be published tomorrow paving the way to take similar measures to shut off all German exports.)

The admiralty told how the Rawalpindi, on contraband patrol duty, ignored a warning shot across her bows and then was blasted by salvos for the eleven-inch guns of the Deutschland at 10,000 yards.

"The Rawalpindi replied with all four starboard six-inch guns," the admiralty reported.

British Ship Crippled

"The third salvo from the Deutschland put out all lights and broke electric winches of the ammunition supply.

"The fourth salvo shot away the whole of the bridge and wirless room.

"Both German ships now were closing rapidly and by this time the second had gone around the Rawalpindi's stern and was firing from the port side."

The account told how the Rawalpindi maintained the fight 'until every gun was put out of action and

Russia Excited over Alleged Finn Attack

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, Nov. 27 (AP)—Soviet meetings and the press produced mass excitement today over the Russian charge that Finnish troops shot across the border and killed four and wounded nine Red soldiers.

Throughout the country countless meetings of soldiers, workers and farmers were held at which resolutions were adopted, some expressing anger against Finland or calling for the Russian government to take action by adopting "the strictest measures."

Workers at a bearings plant in Moscow, were reported by Tass, official Soviet news agency, to have adopted a resolution declaring "our invincible Red army will reduce the enemy to dust on his own territory" if "provocateurs" ventured war against the "powerful country of Socialism."

Claims Public Indignant

The agency carried a summary of other resolutions adopted at "lightning meetings" and said a "storm of the peoples" wrath and indignation had been called forth by the alleged incident.

Meetings were being held all over the country, Tass reported, at which unanimous support was given the government's demand for withdrawal of Finnish troops twelve to six-

Little Northern Nation Opens Way For Big Neighbor To Settle Dispute

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Helsinki, Nov. 27 (AP)—Finland gave a soft answer tonight to turn the wrath of renewed Soviet-Russian demands.

The little northern country told her big neighbor that on the condition that Russian troops also withdrawn, Finland is willing to negotiate for withdrawal of her troops which have been stationed on the border for weeks.

A note, sent tonight by the Finnish foreign minister to Moscow was the answer to a Soviet protest last night which charged Finnish artillery with killing four Red soldiers and wounding nine at Mainila on the Finnish-Russian border north of Leningrad. The Soviet asked that Finnish troops be drawn back 12 to 16 miles in that area.

May Resume Negotiations

Diplomatic observers interpreted the Finnish answer as one designed to the give the Russians the opportunity to resume negotiations which were broken off by Finland on Nov. 13 when Finland refused to make further concessions to Soviet demands for border revisions and naval bases.

Nevertheless, it was pointed out, the Finnish note tonight rejected any unilateral concessions regarding disposition of troops which might jeopardize her defense.

An investigation had shown, said the note, that Finnish soldiers fired no shots yesterday, as the Soviet charged. But it had been observed on the other hand, that firing had occurred on the Russian side.

Details recorded in the journals of the Finnish frontier guards at the time of the shooting before the Russian protest was filed, said the Finnish note, told of bursting shells being seen in a field about 800 meters (about 900 yards) across the frontier on the Russian side.

It added that the cannon, which fired seven shots between 3:45 p. m. and 4:05 p. m.—the same number and about the same time as alleged by Russia—appeared to be placed from a mile to a mile and a quarter away from the hits.

May Have Been Accident

The note, signed by Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko, said that "perhaps" it was an accident on the Russian side, and that "therefore, my duty is to deny your protest and to establish the fact that from the Finnish side no hostile actions toward Russia have taken place."

"Consequently, although there is no concrete reason to remove troops from the frontier line in the manner you suggested, my government nevertheless is ready to deliberate the Russian proposal with the intention that troops be removed by both sides to a fixed distance from the frontier."

A proposal was made that the incident be investigated by a frontier commission already set up for such purposes.

Santa Clauses Must Not Be Too Thin

Baltimore, Nov. 27 (AP)—Maryland state employment service employes are thumbing through their file marked "Santa Clauses."

Most of the requests come from department stores, they said, and some specify that St. Nicholas be "not too thin," that he have a pleasant disposition, and be a ready talker able to answer junior's questions.

Mrs. Roosevelt Airs Opinions on Women Who Work for Their Living

By BETH CAMPBELL

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told junior leaguers today that she thought women who work for money when they don't need it should be sure to do something that causes employment — or else give the money away in a manner which increases jobs.

The first lady's comment was in reply to a questioner who observed that Mrs. Roosevelt was paid for what she did and asked whether the first lady thought it was more important for women who did not need income to express themselves and get paid for it, or to do volunteer work and get only the satisfaction of service.

"Personal Problem"

Labeling that "an intensely personal problem," Mrs. Roosevelt said there was a great satisfaction in doing a professional job. The experience of "having earned your own living" is particularly important to women nowadays, she said, citing pitiful letters she has received from older women who never learned to do so.

The junior league, an organization of society girls and women who do volunteer civic and welfare work, gave Mrs. Roosevelt her early experience in settlement house work, she said.

"Whether the work is volunteer or professional," she said, "the important thing is to widen one's contacts so as to understand more about life than you would otherwise."

Wants Cash for Defense

At her press conference earlier today, Mrs. Roosevelt said she would like to have the country pay for its defense as it goes along. She stressed that her opinion was purely personal and that she had not talked over the matter with President Roosevelt or with any tax experts.

The first lady touched on another phase of living in wartime when one of the reporters told her that retail sugar prices had not been lowered to pre-war levels on October 1 although raw sugar had dropped back to its August level, according to the consumers' counsel of the agriculture department.

On the basis of that information, Mrs. Roosevelt said that if it is still true the only thing she saw for housewives to do was to organize in various places and use honey in place of sugar until the price comes down to a reasonable point.

Child Loses Eye In Bomb Blast

Milton, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—Surgeons worked to save the eyesight of five-year old Boyd Cooper, Jr., today while state oplice traced the origin of a cigar box bomb found by the boy's father in the driveway of a farmer's home.

The father, Boyd Cooper, said he found the cigar box with a battery attachment Thursday on his way to work on the farm of Cornwell Blake, near here, and took it home with him. Young Boyd was playing with the box when it exploded, burning him severely, destroying the sight in one eye and injuring the other, the father said.

The boy was taken to Huntington for treatment and later returned home.

State Trooper Edwin Starcher said the explosion had been caused by a bomb attached to a battery. He declined comment on the investigation.

Chrysler President and Murray Confer in Effort To End Strike

Detroit, Nov. 27. (AP)—K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation and Philip Murray, vice-president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, meeting at a conference table today sought a formula to settle a strike at Chrysler's Dodge plant which has resulted in idleness of 150,000 workers in automotive and allied industries.

"We are getting along," said Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey after the conference had proceeded for two hours.

A few hours earlier, under the watchful eyes of 1,000 policemen and with the jeers of more than 3,000 union pickets ringing in their ears, about 200 negro foundry workers entered the strikebound Dodge main plant.

"Let the strikebreakers in," a union spokesman called to the pickets through a loud speaker. "There aren't enough to operate the plant and what the corporation wants is for you to stop them and start a fight."

Only a Few Enter Plant

Approximately fifty of those who sought entrance to the plant were

Amish from Pennsylvania Welcome To Maryland, Gov. O'Conor Says

College Park, Md., Nov. 27 (AP)—Amish people migrating from Pennsylvania to Maryland were promised freedom and cooperation today in building a new community in the Free State.

These assurances came from Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, and Claude Johnson, a commissioner of St. Mary's county.

Seven "Frienshaft" (families) of the industrious plain people are in process of starting the new colony in St. Mary's county, marking another phase in the history of a state founded more than 300 years ago on the principle of freedom of religion and thought.

Land Is Run-Down

Their new community of farms is in a section of southern Maryland devoted largely to tobacco growing. For the most part the land in the new Amish colony is run-down, has been uncultivated for years, and must be rejuvenated.

Dr. Symons, who played an active part in the Amish migration from Lancaster, Pa., said the plain people

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Willing To Take Stand at Probe

Willing To Face Dies Committee If She Is Subpoenaed

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — The unprecedented prospect of a president's wife testifying before a congressional investigating committee arose today.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told her press conference that she would be willing to testify before the Dies committee regarding the American Youth Congress, whose leaders she has often defended against accusations of Communism, and "would answer anybody's questions asked in the interest of truth."

Subpoena Unlikely

Committee members immediately expressed eagerness to hear her. Mrs. Roosevelt made it clear that she would not volunteer to testify and Chairman Starnes (D-Ala) of the subcommittee now conducting the hearings said that "of course, we couldn't subpoena the first lady of the land."

It was distinctly possible, however, that the committee might invite her to appear.

Starnes said he would be "delighted" to hear the president's wife "if she can throw any light on the American Youth Congress of any other matter" and Representative Mason (R-Ill) said "you bet" he wanted to hear her. Representative Voorhis (D-Calif) said he thought the committee "should extend every possible courtesy to Mrs. Roosevelt."

The first lady's attitude toward testifying was brought out when she was asked about a suggestion by Alfred M. Lilienthal of New York that he and she should appear as opposing witnesses on the subject of alleged Communism in the youth congress. Mrs. Roosevelt said she would not care to take sides in opposition to Lilienthal, leader of a group which split with the congress.

Assail Student Union

Meanwhile, the committee heard testimony that the American Student Union, an affiliate of the youth congress, was an instrument by which Communism had been spread through schools and colleges. Major Hampden Wilson, an investigator lent to the committee by the veterans administration, reported that the student union "is always a 'noisy' minority wherever it exists" and "invariably gets representation on the school paper, if not full control."

Wilson's testimony brought a prompt denial in New York city from Joseph P. Lash, national secretary, that the students' union was dominated by Communists or had ever "expressed any belief in or sympathy for Communism."

Romeo May See His Juliet Today

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Through his attorney, George (Romeo) Lowther 3d, made it known tonight he had discovered the hideaway of his lovely lady, twenty-year-old Eileen (Juliet) Herrick, and tomorrow he hopes to see her.

Ever since the expiration last Friday of a ten-day separation decreed by Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel in the interests of Eileen's health and her parents' peace of mind Lowther has been in rapturous pursuit.

The court said he might woo, even marry, the daughter of former City Park Commissioner Walter R. Herrick after that time, the parents' objections to the contrary notwithstanding. Eileen's affection for the thirty-year-old Romeo is a matter of court record.

Eli Johnson, Lowther's attorney, said Miss Herrick's whereabouts had been found after a weekend search that supposedly led to remote spots on Long Island.

"I know that if the couple are able to get together tomorrow they will promptly get married," he added.

Lowther's legal tactics brought Eileen and her parents into court on a writ of habeas corpus, charging that the insurance broker had been prevented from seeing his Juliet.

If he doesn't get to see her by Wednesday, said his lawyer, there'll be another writ applied for.

Fish Will Run if Others Soft Pedal on Keeping Out of War

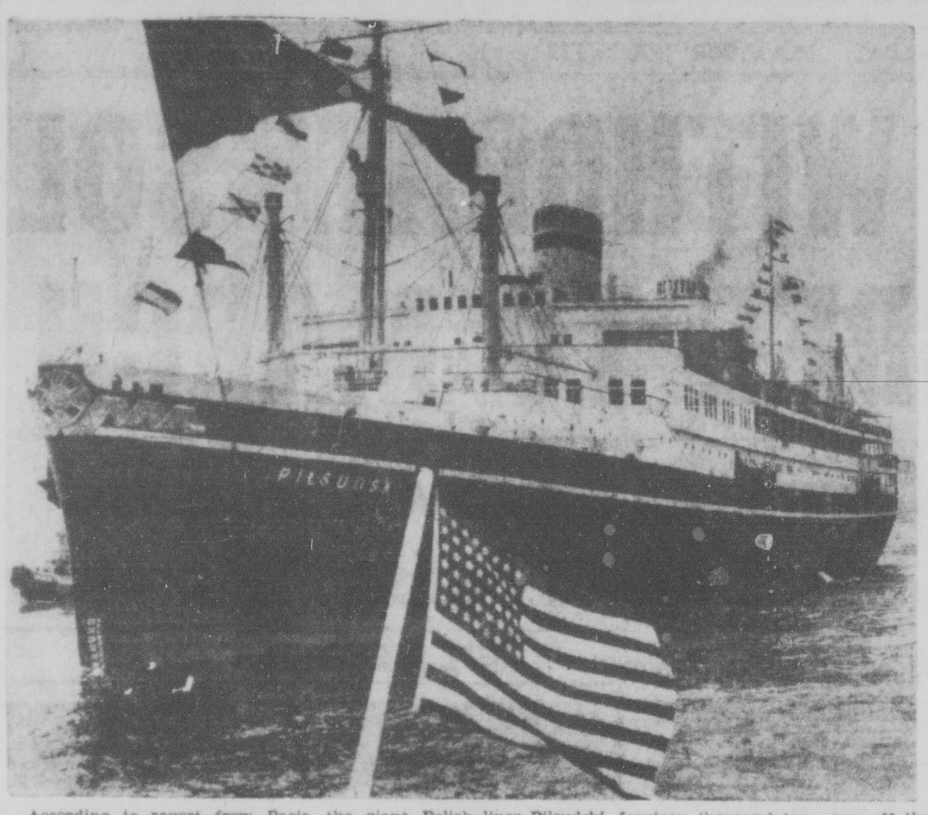

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — Rep. Fish (R-NY) said in a radio address tonight that he would become an active presidential candidate if other Republican candidates attempted to "soft pedal" the importance of keeping America out of war.

"My decision will depend on the views of the candidates and the wishes of the American people," he said.

"So far the Republican candidates who already number a half dozen have failed to present the issue of keeping out of war as the paramount issue and unless they do so I may take it direct to the people in the primary states."

The New Yorker, who as ranking minority members of the House Foreign Relations Committee, led the fight lifting the arms embargo in the House last month, said he already received "a large number of letters from all over the country urging me to become a candidate particularly from veterans."

POLISH LINER PILSUDSKI REPORTED TORPEDOED

According to report from Paris, the giant Polish liner Pilsudski, fourteen thousand tons, was off the English coast when torpedoed. The ship is shown during one of her trans-Atlantic crossings to New York. The service was discontinued when war began.

Texas Poll Tax Law Attacked by Mayor Maverick

Asks Dismissal of Indictment Charging Illegal Payment

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 27.(AP) —Eighteen of twenty-six counts in one of five indictments against Mayor Maury Maverick and three others charging illegal payment of a poll tax were quashed tonight. He will be tried on the other eight.

The mayor, his secretary, Richard Jeffrey; Miss Rebecca Taylor and George Glass, garment workers union leaders, art charged with payment of the state required elector tax for R. L. O'Brien.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 27 (AP)—Mayor Maury Maverick attacked constitutionality of the Texas poll tax law tonight as he asked dismissal of an indictment charging illegal payment of a poll tax in the election that returned him to the political saddle.

Maverick, Miss Rebecca Taylor, George Glass and the mayor's secretary Richard Jeffrey, are accused of paying the tax for R. L. O'Brien, a garment worker and member of a union controlled by Miss Taylor and Glass.

The poll tax receipt assertedly was used by the voter to help Maverick crush the old San Antonio political machine that led the fight against the former New Deal congressman when he lost his seat in the Lower House.

Voters Back Maverick

Carl Wright Johnson, Maverick's lawyer, said in a seventy-seven-page motion to quash the indictment, that San Antonio voters condoned acts charged to Maverick when they chose him in March as mayor over C. K. Quin.

Judge Bryce Ferguson of Pharr, Tex., said he may grant a prosecution motion to dismiss portions of charges against Miss Taylor, Glass and Jeffrey and leave the fiery Maverick to stand alone in court on some issues.

District Attorney John R. Shook, strong political foe of Maverick, said it would take the state several hours to answer defense arguments for dismissal of the indictment.

The legal snarl must be untangled before a jury can be chosen to hear evidence if the judge decides not to dismiss the indictment altogether.

Johnson Quotes Law

Bearing down on the law in Texas that requires all voters to pay a tax before they may register their choice for elective offices, Defense Attorney Johnson argued that the law denied suffrage to certain classes in the state who did not or were unable to pay the tax.

San Antonio has a heavy Mexican population and control of that vote sometimes means the difference in the hectic political campaigns here.

Asks Moratorium on Building Restrictions

Washington, Nov. 27. (AP)—A two-year moratorium on "unnecessary" building restrictions in order to boom construction of small homes was proposed today to the national institute of municipal law officers.

The suggestion came from Walter J. Mattison, Milwaukee city attorney, who said that municipal building restrictions now prevented many low income families from becoming home owners. The moratorium, he said, should be aimed particularly at enabling construction of homes costing no more than $2,500.

Mattison also recommended appointment of a commission in each city to draft changes in building codes to encourage small home construction.

Russia Excited

teen miles from the border north of Leningrad.

No mention was made in the Soviet newspapers or over the Soviet radio of Finland's denial that any shots had been fired by Finns.

The press initiated a campaign against Finland which was strikingly similar to that which preceded the invasion of Poland.

Meetings of troops stationed in the Moscow district adopted recolutions stating "there is a limit to any patience—ten days were enough to capture Poland."

Hold Mass Meetings

Some factories in Moscow held mass meetings at 8 a. m., before the beginning of the day's work. They adopted resolutions expressing indignation and accusing the Finns of trying to provoke war.

If the Finnish troops do not withdraw from the frontier, "we will throw them out," one resolution said. Another warned the Finns that if they did not yield "we will repeat the lesson given the Polish Pans, Ulandlords)."

France, England Accused

The resolutions accused Finnish leaders of "fulfilling orders of their imperialistic masters," presumably Great Britain and France, and of being "well-bribed."

(Authorized quarters in Berlin said that Germany "read with extraordinary interest that Russia regards England and France as responsible for Finland's unyielding stand." The information service Dienst Aus Deutschland, which often reflects German foreign office views, said Germany sympathized with Russia's demands on Finland.)

Observers in Doubt

Foreign observers here found themselves unable to agree on Moscow's intentions, although they acknowledged that the "border incident" might well lead to attempts by Russia to compel Finland to comply with Russian territorial demands which she rejected in negotiations which broke down Nov. 13.

Russia in a note delivered to the Finnish legation at a midnight conference last night charged that Finnish artillery had fired on Soviet troops stationed near the border village of Mainila at 3:45 p. m. Sunday. The note demanded the troop withdrawal.

Hoover Sees End of Liberty if U. S. Is Involved in War

Colfax, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover said today that liberty would perish in the United States if the nation became involved in the European war.

Addressing a group under auspices of the California Hydraulic Mining Association, Hoover expressed belief a virtual dictatorship would automatically ensue if America entered the war, and that it could never be exchanged for free government.

He disclosed that during his visit to Europe two years ago, he attempted to find out why some thirteen democracies had become totalitarian states. He said he learned that without exception it was because the people voluntarily entered such servitude as a relief from unemployment, financial chaos and general insecurity.

"Every dictator in the world was first elected by the people," Hoover declared.

"Never before in history is the need so great that the American people use their reason and refuse to be trapped by their emotions into participating in another European war."

Caught Playing 'Possum'

Atlanta, Nov. 27 (AP)—County Patrolmen Claude Webb and I. N. Eason thought they exhausted the opposum crop of a persimmon tree in a thickly settled suburban section when they shook nine from it in a single week early this month.

Last Saturday night, a "routine check" disclosed four more 'possums 'mong the 'simmons and these were added to the bag.

Carnegie Steel's Current Prices To Remain Unchanged

Corporation Announces Plans for First Quarter of 1940

Pittsburgh, No. 27 (AP)—In a move that caused little surprise in the industry, Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation today reaffirmed with minor exceptions current prices for the first quarter of 1940 despite "rising costs and many uncertainties."

The corporation, largest subsidiary of U. S. Steel, traditionally takes the lead in posting prices and its quotations usually are reflected in those of smaller companies.

Most experts had expected only slight adjustments of present prices in view of healthy third quarter earnings and prospects of even better fourth quarter profits in the booming industry, whose output has reached record peaks.

Many Have Orders

Many mills already have heavy backlogs of orders for the first quarter and Iron Age magazine recently observed that some products probably would be sold out for the first quarter by the end of November.

The only increase in Carnegie-Illinois prices was one of $2 a ton on hot rolled sheets and hot rolled strip. The corporation announced base prices on these were revised to $2.12½ per 100 pounds delivered Pittsburgh and $2.13 per 100 pounds delivered Chicago. The present prices are $2.02½ and $2.03, respectively. At the same time some hot rolled sheets extras were revised downward "including certain pickeling extras."

The company said it desired "to cooperate in preventing inflationary tendencies" and announced reaffirmation on shipments to and including March 31, 1940, for delivery in the United States.

Tin plate prices will be announced "within a few days."

Prices were reaffirmed on:

Rerolling blooms, billets and slabs, sheets bars, forging blooms, billets and slabs, carbon and alloy bars, structural shapes, steel sheet piling, rails, plates, electrical sheets, vitrenamel and galvanized sheets, long terne sheets, black plate, and cokd rolled sheets.

Taft Again Scores New Deal Spending

Oklahoma City, Nov. 27 (AP)—Robert A. Taft, (R-Ohio), candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, tonight lashed the "spendthrift policy of the federal government."

Taft, touring the midwest sounding out political sentiment, made no predictions for 1940 in a speech prepared for delivery before a gathering of Oklahoma Republicans.

He declared it was "hard to exaggerate the danger to the future of this country in the growing deficit and the utter lack of any government attempt to eliminate it."

Many public works projects rejected by Congress, such as superhighways and canals, were likely to be included "under the cloak of the preparedness program," the Ohioan said.

Gets Year in Jail On Bigamy Charge

Baltimore, Nov. 27. (AP)—Adam J. Kessler, Jr., was sentenced to a year for bigamy today by Judge Emory H. Niles.

Testimony showed Kessler married Phyllis M. Guya of Clarksburg, W. Va., in 1927, separating from her in 1935. Kessler said he married Jessie O'Neil, twenty, of Arlington, Va., in October, 1938, after a friend had told him his first wife had obtained a divorce.

Judges Niles annulled the second marriage. Kessler was arrested in Pittsburgh.

Dewey Preparing To Offer Views On Main Issues

New York Gang Buster Soon To Reveal His Personal Opinions

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, No. 27 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, the spectacular young New York gang buster, apparently is ready for a new chapter in his political career—a public presentation of his views on national issues, the platform on which his presidential candidacy will rest.

Unusual among presidential prospects, he has managed to obtain and hold a leading position in the Republican nomination sweepstakes without having committed himself beyond a few generalized statements.

His boom has rested instead upon his national reputation as a successful public prosecutor, and his demonstrated ability to get votes in the highly important state of New York.

Asset to Politicians

New York has forty-seven votes in the Electorial College, one more than the combined electorial ballots of the thirteen least populous states. So, to politicians who take a practical view of things and want a winner first of all, any candidate with a reasonable chance of carrying New York must be given serious consideration.

In running for governor of New York in 1938, Dewey gave certain clues to his opinions on national issues, but did not go into great detail. He favored the objectives of social security and laws for high labor standards. He seemed to endorse certain new deal purposes and object to new deal methods.

"The federal administration has too often fumbled near the goal," was one of his sentences.

First Address Dec. 6

Now, word from New York is that his "friends," a powerful group of New York party organization leaders, are ready to establish Dewey headquarters and make his campaign official. On Dec. 6 he is to make the first of a series of speeches that will take him to several sections of the country. It will be in Minnesota and its political character is indicated by the fact that he is to speak under the auspices of the Republican State Central Committee.

These appearances will give him an opportunity to elaborate on his previous utterances, convert generalities into specific statements, and in a word construct his platform, plank by plank.

Dewey's lack of record on public questions is, at this stage of his career, both a handicap and an asset. It bothers Republican voters who impartially condemn "extreme New Dealism" and the "reactionary attitude" of some of the past leaders of the Republican party. But it is advantageous, too, to have no past record. Dewey is in a position to make his record as he see fit.

Fan Dancer Does Her Act in Court but Is Declared Guilty

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Three black-robed justices in Queens special sessions court today watched a fully clothed fan dancer go through her act on the witness dais and then judged her guilty of indecent exposure.

The conviction, carrying fines of $25 for Jean Vickers, 22, and $100 for David Bell, 30, for conducting an indecent show at the New York World's Fair last summer, apparently resulted from an inventory of the "exhibits" rather than the command courtroom performance.

The exhibits: (A) two black ostrich fans, (B) white shoes, (C) small white cloth rose.

When the tall, slender Miss Vickers stepped to the witness stand she wore a grey squirrel coat. She flung it off—and appeared before the judges in a plain black dress, black hat and gold necklace, waving the fans her attorney handed up. The fans swished and she smiled upon the Justices Burlingame, Lindau and Heckenburg.

They were moved only to the extent of allowing her to reclaim the exhibits—the fans, the shoes and the small white rose.

Fail To Identify Alleged Bandits

Ellicott City, Md., Nov. 27 (AP)—Two employes of Whitehall bank-robbed of more than $5,000 last week—failed tonight to identify three men arrested here as suspects in the robbery.

Police Chief E. Russell Moxley said he arrested them in front of the Ellicott City Bank as they rode in a truck because two of them resembled rescriptions of the robbers given by the employes, William P. Wright, cashier and Miss Lida Slade, teller.

Moxley said the men were still being held on a charge of transporting a truck across state lines without proper tags. The New York tags were issued to one of the three men, he said, but for another truck.

An automobile with New York tags, which was trailing the truck, sped away when he approached the vehicle, he added.

Russia To Seek A Front Seat at Peace Conference

Hopes To Take Prominent Part When Negotiations Start

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow's fears that the war between Germany and the Allies may collapse before Soviet Russia can realize completely her ambitious plans to seize a front seat at the post-war peace table may underlie the latest Russo-Finnish crisis.

Russia realizes, no doubt, that early peace in Europe would see frustration of both her Balkan and Baltic thrusts. This realization, in the opinion of diplomats and students of the situation, played a part in Moscow's decision to turn the heat on little Finland at thi time. Whether the reported firing by Finnish border forces on red army troops is merely a trumped-up incident, as Finnish leaders assert, or whether it did in fact occur, it affords Moscow a chance to drop broad hints of immediate military action if Finland stands pat.

The fullforce of Russian propaganda has been turned on Finland, while the formal Moscow note of protest fell far short of an "ultimatum in character, it lent substance to Russian soldiers' and workers' resolutions demanding action against Finland.

They point darkly to partitioned Poland as an object lesson. The obvious inference is that if Finland balks at withdrawing her troops from the frontier to avoid further "incidents"—and from Finnish fortifications—her fate may be the same as that of Poland.

She may be the next little independent state to be gobbled up by the Nazi German and Soviet Russian onrush, and may become a reconquered Russian province. Against that, the Molotoff (Russian foreign commissar) note suggests that acquiescence in the Russian withdrawal demand would mean only demilitarization of a twelve to twenty-mile strip of her frontier where it comes within big gun shot of Leningrad. Yet that abandonment of Finnish fortifications would leave her open to Russian attack at any time, in any weather.

Sen. Bridges Raps New Deal Relief

Reno, Nov. 27 (AP) — Senator Bridges (R-NH) charged tonight that New Dealers sought to use relief funds "as a vehicle to carry out their plan for a new state."

In a speech prepared for a Republican rally, the Senator declared that the present administration sought, with funds Congress voted for relief, "to elect its own men to Congress and purge those who were unfriendly to it."

Such funds also were used, he contended, to advance the Congress of Industrial Organizations as against the American Federation of Labor "because the CIO at the time was a political agency allied with the New Deal."

"Do you realize," he said, "that relief funds have been used to force private enterprise out of business and to set up government plants in its stead?"

The administration's conception of relief funds, he declared "has never been primarily to relieve distress.

"If it had been, the national bill would be about half as large as it is, and it is my firm conviction that today the depression would be a thing of the past and we would not be looking to a war in Europe to lift it."

spent $3,756,470,503, and taken in $2,125,996,920, causing a deficit of $1,630,473,582. The deficit may increase anothe, $2,000,000,000 before the fiscal year end next June 30.

Morgenthau also announced that a new plan for enabling small stockholders to buy portions of a government bond issue would be tried out in tomorrow's financing. Usually, all bids for new bonds are filed on the basis of immediate delivery of the bonds, which enables the purchasers to resell them whenever they please.

$5,000 Limit Set

This procedure will be allowed again tomorrow, but any small investors willing to let the treasury hold the security for sixty days to prevent resale until then, will be sold all they ask for up to $5,000.

In addition to the $500,000,000 worth of the new bonds to be sold the public, the treasury will issue another $50,000,000 of the same type of bonds to refund other treasury obligations owned by government trust accounts such as postal savings.

The borrowing decision was made after a conference with federal reserved board officials. Morgenthau said that after an interval of at least a couple of weeks the group would consider refunding $1,378,364,200 worth of treasury notes which will mature March 15. After that, the TVA may borrow between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 in order to repay money advanced by the treasury for the purchase of private utility in Tennessee.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Willing To Take Stand at Probe

Willing To Face Dies Committee If She Is Subpoenaed

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — The unprecedented prospect of a president's wife testifying before a congressional investigating committee arose today.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told her press conference that she would be willing to testify before the Dies committee regarding the American Youth Congress, whose leaders she has often defended against accusations of Communism, and "would answer anybody's questions asked in the interest of truth."

Subpoena Unlikely

Committee members immediately expressed eagerness to hear her. Mrs. Roosevelt made it clear that she would not volunteer to testify and Chairman Starnes (D-Ala) of the subcommittee now conducting the hearings said that "of course, we couldn't subpoena the first lady of the land."

It was distinctly possible, however, that the committee might invite her to appear.

Starnes said he would be "delighted" to hear the president's wife "if she can throw any light on the American Youth Congress of any other matter" and Representative Mason (R-Ill) said "you bet" he wanted to hear her. Representative Voorhis (D-Calif) said he thought the committee "should extend every possible courtesy to Mrs. Roosevelt."

The first lady's attitude toward testifying was brought out when she was asked about a suggestion by Alfred M. Lilienthal of New York that he and she should appear as opposing witnesses on the subject of alleged Communism in the youth congress. Mrs. Roosevelt said she would not care to take sides in opposition to Lilienthal, leader of a group which split with the congress.

Assail Student Union

Meanwhile, the committee heard testimony that the American Student Union, an affiliate of the youth congress, was an instrument by which Communism had been spread through schools and colleges. Major Hampden Wilson, an investigator lent to the committee by the veterans administration, reported that the student union "is always a 'noisy' minority wherever it exists" and "invariably gets representation on the school paper, if not full control."

Wilson's testimony brought a prompt denial in New York city from Joseph P. Lash, national secretary, that the students' union was dominated by Communists or had ever "expressed any belief in or sympathy for Communism."

Romeo May See His Juliet Today

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Through his attorney, George (Romeo) Lowther 3d, made it known tonight he had discovered the hideaway of his lovely lady, twenty-year-old Eileen (Juliet) Herrick, and tomorrow he hopes to see her.

Ever since the expiration last Friday of a ten-day separation decreed by Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel in the interests of Eileen's health and her parents' peace of mind Lowther has been in rapturous pursuit.

The court said he might woo, even marry, the daughter of former City Park Commissioner Walter R. Herrick after that time, the parents' objections to the contrary notwithstanding. Eileen's affection for the thirty-year-old Romeo is a matter of court record.

Eli Johnson, Lowther's attorney, said Miss Herrick's whereabouts had been found after a weekend search that supposedly led to remote spots on Long Island.

"I know that if the couple are able to get together tomorrow they will promptly get married," he added.

Lowther's legal tactics brought Eileen and her parents into court on a writ of habeas corpus, charging that the insurance broker had been prevented from seeing his Juliet.

If he doesn't get to see her by Wednesday, said his lawyer, there'll be another writ applied for.

Fish Will Run if Others Soft Pedal on Keeping Out of War

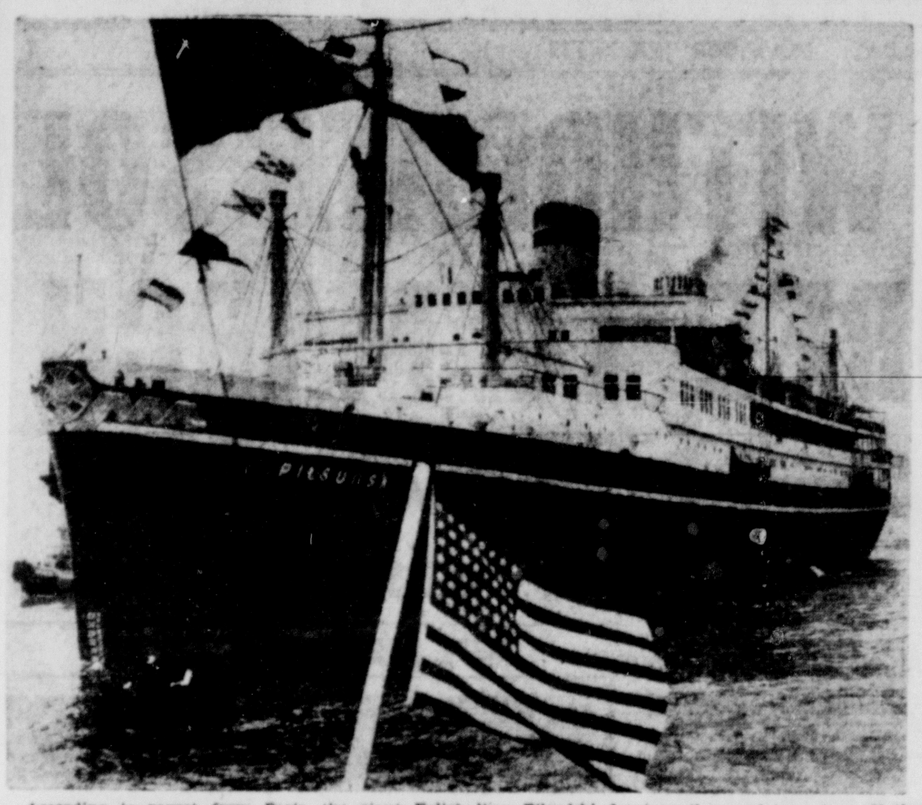

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — Rep. Fish (R-NY) said in a radio address tonight that he would become an active presidential candidate if other Republican candidates attempted to "soft pedal" the importance of keeping America out of war.

"My decision will depend on the views of the candidates and the wishes of the American people," he said.

"So far the Republican candidates who already number a half dozen have failed to present the issue of keeping out of war as the paramount issue and unless they do so I may take it direct to the people in the primary states."

The New Yorker, who as ranking minority members of the House Foreign Relations Committee, led the fight lifting the arms embargo in the House last month, said he already received "a large number of letters from all over the country urging me to become a candidate particularly from veterans."

Texas Poll Tax Law Attacked by Mayor Maverick

Asks Dismissal of Indictment Charging Illegal Payment

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 27.(AP) —Eighteen of twenty-six counts in one of five indictments against Mayor Maury Maverick and three others charging illegal payment of a poll tax were quashed tonight. He will be tried on the other eight.

The mayor, his secretary, Richard Jeffrey; Miss Rebecca Taylor and George Glass, garment workers union leaders, art charged with payment of the state required elector tax for R. L. O'Brien.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 27 (AP)—Mayor Maury Maverick attacked constitutionality of the Texas poll tax law tonight as he asked dismissal of an indictment charging illegal payment of a poll tax in the election that returned him to the political saddle.

Maverick, Miss Rebecca Taylor, George Glass and the mayor's secretary Richard Jeffrey, are accused of paying the tax for R. L. O'Brien, a garment worker and member of a union controlled by Miss Taylor and Glass.

The poll tax receipt assertedly was used by the voter to help Maverick crush the old San Antonio political machine that led the fight against the former New Deal congressman when he lost his seat in the Lower House.

Voters Back Maverick

Carl Wright Johnson, Maverick's lawyer, said in a seventy-seven-page motion to quash the indictment, that San Antonio voters condoned acts charged to Maverick when they chose him in March as mayor over C. K. Quin.

Judge Bryce Ferguson of Pharr, Tex., said he may grant a prosecution motion to dismiss portions of charges against Miss Taylor, Glass and Jeffrey and leave the fiery Maverick to stand alone in court on some issues.

District Attorney John R. Shook, strong political foe of Maverick, said it would take the state several hours to answer defense arguments for dismissal of the indictment.

The legal snarl must be untangled before a jury can be chosen to hear evidence if the judge decides not to dismiss the indictment altogether.

Johnson Quotes Law

Bearing down on the law in Texas that requires all voters to pay a tax before they may register their choice for elective offices, Defense Attorney Johnson argued that the law denied suffrage to certain classes in the state who did not or were unable to pay the tax.

San Antonio has a heavy Mexican population and control of that vote sometimes means the difference in the hectic political campaigns here.

Asks Moratorium on Building Restrictions

Washington, Nov. 27. (AP)—A two-year moratorium on "unnecessary" building restrictions in order to boom construction of small homes was proposed today to the national institute of municipal law officers.

The suggestion came from Walter J. Mattison, Milwaukee city attorney, who said that municipal building restrictions now prevented many low income families from becoming home owners. The moratorium, he said, should be aimed particularly at enabling construction of homes costing no more than $2,500.

Mattison also recommended appointment of a commission in each city to draft changes in building codes to encourage small home construction.

teen miles from the border north of Leningrad.

No mention was made in the Soviet newspapers or over the Soviet radio of Finland's denial that any shots had been fired by Finns.

The press initiated a campaign against Finland which was strikingly similar to that which preceded the invasion of Poland.

Meetings of troops stationed in the Moscow district adopted recolutions stating "there is a limit to any patience—ten days were enough to capture Poland."

Hold Mass Meetings

Some factories in Moscow held mass meetings at 8 a. m., before the beginning of the day's work. They adopted resolutions expressing indignation and accusing the Finns of trying to provoke war.

If the Finnish troops do not withdraw from the frontier, "we will throw them out," one resolution said. Another warned the Finns that if they did not yield "we will repeat the lesson given the Polish Pans, landlords)."

France, England Accused

The resolutions accused Finnish leaders of "fulfilling orders of their imperialistic masters," presumably Great Britain and France, and of being "well-bribed."

(Authorized quarters in Berlin said that Germany "read with extraordinary interest that Russia regards England and France as responsible for Finland's unyielding stand." The information service Dienst Aus Deutschland, which often reflects German foreign office views, said Germany sympathized with Russia's demands on Finland.)

Observers in Doubt

Foreign observers here found themselves unable to agree on Moscow's intentions, although they acknowledged that the "border incident" might well lead to attempts by Russia to compel Finland to comply with Russian territorial demands which she rejected in negotiations which broke down Nov. 13.

Russia in a note delivered to the Finnish legation at a midnight conference last night charged that Finnish artillery had fired on Soviet troops stationed near the border village of Mainila at 3:45 p. m. Sunday. The note demanded the troop withdrawal.

Hoover Sees End of Liberty if U. S. Is Involved in War

Colfax, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover said today that liberty would perish in the United States if the nation became involved in the European war.

Addressing a group under auspices of the California Hydraulic Mining Association, Hoover expressed belief a virtual dictatorship would automatically ensue if America entered the war, and that it could never be exchanged for free government.

He disclosed that during his visit to Europe two years ago, he attempted to find out why some thirteen democracies had become totalitarian states. He said he learned that without exception it was because the people voluntarily entered such servitude as a relief from unemployment, financial chaos and general insecurity.

"Every dictator in the world was first elected by the people," Hoover declared.

"Never before in history is the need so great that the American people use their reason and refuse to be trapped by their emotions into participating in another European war."

Carnegie Steel's Current Prices To Remain Unchanged

Corporation Announces Plans for First Quarter of 1940

Pittsburgh, No. 27 (AP)—In a move that caused little surprise in the industry, Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation today reaffirmed with minor exceptions current prices for the first quarter of 1940 despite "rising costs and many uncertainties."

The corporation, largest subsidiary of U. S. Steel, traditionally takes the lead in posting prices and its quotations usually are reflected in those of smaller companies.

Most experts had expected only slight adjustments of present prices in view of healthy third quarter earnings and prospects of even better fourth quarter profits in the booming industry, whose output has reached record peaks.

Many Have Orders

Many mills already have heavy backlogs of orders for the first quarter and Iron Age magazine recently observed that some products probably would be sold out for the first quarter by the end of November.

The only increase in Carnegie-Illinois prices was one of $2 a ton on hot rolled sheets and hot rolled strip. The corporation announced base prices on these were revised to $2.12½ per 100 pounds delivered Pittsburgh and $2.13 per 100 pounds delivered Chicago. The present prices are $2.02½ and $2.03, respectively. At the same time some hot rolled sheets extras were revised downward "including certain pickeling extras."

The company said it desired "to cooperate in preventing inflationary tendencies" and announced reaffirmation on shipments to and including March 31, 1940, for delivery in the United States.

Tin plate prices will be announced "within a few days."

Prices were reaffirmed on:

Rerolling blooms, billets and slabs, sheets bars, forging blooms, billets and slabs, carbon and alloy bars, structural shapes, steel sheet piling, rails, plates, electrical sheets, vitrenamel and galvanized sheets, long terne sheets, black plate, and cold rolled sheets.

Taft Again Scores New Deal Spending

Oklahoma City, Nov. 27 (AP)—Robert A. Taft, (R-Ohio), candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, tonight lashed the "spendthrift policy of the federal government."

Taft, touring the midwest sounding out political sentiment, made no predictions for 1940 in a speech prepared for delivery before a gathering of Oklahoma Republicans.

He declared it was "hard to exaggerate the danger to the future of this country in the growing deficit and the utter lack of any government attempt to eliminate it."

Many public works projects rejected by Congress, such as superhighways and canals, were likely to be included "under the cloak of the preparedness program," the Ohioan said.

Gets Year in Jail On Bigamy Charge

Baltimore, Nov. 27. (AP)—Adam J. Kessler, Jr., was sentenced to a year for bigamy today by Judge Emory H. Niles.

Testimony showed Kessler married Phyllis M. Guya of Clarksburg, W. Va., in 1927, separating from her in 1935. Kessler said he married Jessie O'Neil, twenty, of Arlington, Va., in October, 1938, after a friend had told him his first wife had obtained a divorce.

Judges Niles annulled the second marriage. Kessler was arrested in Pittsburgh.

Dewey Preparing To Offer Views On Main Issues

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, No. 27 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, the spectacular young New York gang buster, apparently is ready for a new chapter in his political career—a public presentation of his views on national issues, the platform on which his presidential candidacy will rest.

Unusual among presidential prospects, he has managed to obtain and hold a leading position in the Republican nomination sweepstakes without having committed himself beyond a few generalized statements.

His boom has rested instead upon his national reputation as a successful public prosecutor, and his demonstrated ability to get votes in the highly important state of New York.

Asset to Politicians

New York has forty-seven votes in the Electorial College, one more than the combined electorial ballots of the thirteen least populous states. So, to politicians who take a practical view of things and want a winner first of all, any candidate with a reasonable chance of carrying New York must be given serious consideration.

In running for governor of New York in 1938, Dewey gave certain clues to his opinions on national issues, but did not go into great detail. He favored the objectives of social security and laws for high labor standards. He seemed to endorse certain new deal purposes and object to new deal methods.

"The federal administration has too often fumbled near the goal," was one of his sentences.

First Address Dec. 6

Now, word from New York is that his "friends," a powerful group of New York party organization leaders, are ready to establish Dewey headquarters and make his campaign official. On Dec. 6 he is to make the first of a series of speeches that will take him to several sections of the country. It will be in Minnesota and its political character is indicated by the fact that he is to speak under the auspices of the Republican State Central Committee.

These appearances will give him an opportunity to elaborate on his previous utterances, convert generalities into specific statements, and in a word construct his platform, plank by plank.

Dewey's lack of record on public questions is, at this stage of his career, both a handicap and an asset. It bothers Republican voters who impartially condemn "extreme New Dealism" and the "reactionary attitude" of some of the past leaders of the Republican party. But it is advantageous, too, to have no past record. Dewey is in a position to make his record as he see fit.

Fan Dancer Does Her Act in Court but Is Declared Guilty

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Three black-robed justices in Queens special sessions court today watched a fully clothed fan dancer go through her act on the witness dais and then judged her guilty of indecent exposure.

The conviction, carrying fines of $25 for Jean Vickers, 22, and $100 for David Bell, 30, for conducting an indecent show at the New York World's Fair last summer, apparently resulted from an inventory of the "exhibits" rather than the command courtroom performance.

The exhibits: (A) two black ostrich fans, (B) white shoes, (C) small white cloth rose.

When the tall, slender Miss Vickers stepped to the witness stand she wore a grey squirrel coat. She flung it off—and appeared before the judges in a plain black dress, black hat and gold necklace, waving the fans her attorney handed up. The fans swished and she smiled upon the Justices Burlingame, Lindau and Heckenburg.

They were moved only to the extent of allowing her to reclaim the exhibits—the fans, the shoes and the small white rose.

Fail To Identify Alleged Bandits

Ellicott City, Md., Nov. 27 (AP)—Two employes of Whitehall bank-robbed of more than $5,000 last week—failed tonight to identify three men arrested here as suspects in the robbery.

Police Chief E. Russell Moxley said he arrested them in front of the Ellicott City Bank as they rode in a truck because two of them resembled rescriptions of the robbers given by the employes, William P. Wright, cashier and Miss Lida Slade, teller.

Moxley said the men were still being held on a charge of transporting a truck across state lines without proper tags. The New York tags were issued to one of the three men, he said, but for another truck.

An automobile with New York tags, which was trailing the truck, sped away when he approached the vehicle, he added.

Russia To Seek A Front Seat at Peace Conference

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow's fears that the war between Germany and the Allies may collapse before Soviet Russia can realize completely her ambitious plans to seize a front seat at the post-war peace table may underlie the latest Russo-Finnish crisis.

Russia realizes, no doubt, that early peace in Europe would see frustration of both her Balkan and Baltic thrusts. This realization, in the opinion of diplomats and students of the situation, played a part in Moscow's decision to turn the heat on little Finland at thi time. Whether the reported firing by Finnish border forces on red army troops is merely a trumped-up incident, as Finnish leaders assert, or whether it did in fact occur, it affords Moscow a chance to drop broad hints of immediate military action if Finland stands pat.

The fullforce of Russian propaganda has been turned on Finland, while the formal Moscow note of protest fell far short of an "ultimatum in character, it lent substance to Russian soldiers' and workers' resolutions demanding action against Finland.

They point darkly to partitioned Poland as an object lesson. The obvious inference is that if Finland balks at withdrawing her troops from the frontier to avoid further "incidents"—and from Finnish fortifications—her fate may be the same as that of Poland.

She may be the next little independent state to be gobbled up by the Nazi German and Soviet Russian onrush, and may become a reconquered Russian province. Against that, the Molotoff (Russian foreign commissar) note suggests that acquiescence in the Russian withdrawal demand would mean only demilitarization of a twelve to twenty-mile strip of her frontier where it comes within big gun shot of Leningrad. Yet that abandonment of Finnish fortifications would leave her open to Russian attack at any time, in any weather.

Sen. Bridges Raps New Deal Relief

Reno, Nov. 27 (AP) — Senator Bridges (R-NH) charged tonight that New Dealers sought to use relief funds "as a vehicle to carry out their plan for a new state."

In a speech prepared for a Republican rally, the Senator declared that the present administration sought, with funds Congress voted for relief, "to elect its own men to Congress and purge those who were unfriendly to it."

Such funds also were used, he contended, to advance the Congress of Industrial Organizations as against the American Federation of Labor "because the CIO at the time was a political agency allied with the New Deal."

"Do you realize," he said, "that relief funds have been used to force private enterprise out of business and to set up government plants in its stead?"

The administration's conception of relief funds, he declared "has never been primarily to relieve distress.

"If it had been, the national bill would be about half as large as it is, and it is my firm conviction that today the depression would be a thing of the past and we would not be looking to a war in Europe to lift it."

Morgenthau also announced that a new plan for enabling small stockholders to buy portions of a government bond issue would be tried out in tomorrow's financing. Usually, all bids for new bonds are filed on the basis of immediate delivery of the bonds, which enables the purchasers to resell them whenever they please.

$5,000 Limit Set

This procedure will be allowed again tomorrow, but any small investors willing to let the treasury hold the security for sixty days to prevent resale until then, will be sold all they ask for up to $5,000.

In addition to the $500,000,000 worth of the new bonds to be sold the public, the treasury will issue another $50,000,000 of the same type of bonds to refund other treasury obligations owned by government trust accounts such as postal savings.

The borrowing decision was made after a conference with federal reserved board officials. Morgenthau said that after an interval of at least a couple of weeks the group would consider refunding $1,378,364,200 worth of treasury notes which will mature March 15. After that, the TVA may borrow between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 in order to repay money advanced by the treasury for the purchase of private utility in Tennessee.

Lactic Acid Is Not Used Much In Baby's Milk

Some Authorities Still Believe It Is Useful, However

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Should lactic acid be added to a milk formula for infants?

Authorities are less inclined to insist upon this nowadays than formerly. Some, however, still believe that it is a great advantage to add some lactic acid to the milk of bottle-fed babies who have been underfed and cannot take the amount of strength of cow's milk mixture they should be getting if their weight were normal. Lactic acid undoubtedly is helpful in certain cases of intestinal indigestion.

In the preparation of lactic acid mixture, after the standard formula has been made, sixty drops of lactic acid, which can be bought at a drug store, are added to each pint of milk. After the milk is boiled and has been allowed to cool, the acid is added drop by drop, with constant stirring to prevent lumps forming in the milk.

What is the modern treatment of psoriasis?

Psoriasis is a mysterious disease of the skin. It is likely to come on in the winter time. It is a scaly, patchy eruption, which has a predilection for the scalp, ears and the surfaces of the arms and legs. Recurrences are the rule and few dermatologists would be willing to say there is any cure for it. Attention to the general health and the diet is important.

Foods which notably irritate the skin, such as shell foods, strawberries pickles and alcohol, should not be used.

Local treatment with various ointments or lights is helpful. A new one comes out nearly every year.

What should be done for an unerupted tooth?

Wisdom teeth are usually those which do not erupt. They are often found to be lying in the jaw crooked or sidewise. When thus wrongly directed, they impinge on their neighbors and inflammation ensues. When this occurs, the gum at first becomes inflamed and the chewing muscles take part in the reaction and the jaw is partly locked.

The infection may extend down the neck or local abcesses may form. When this occurs, of course, the unerupted tooth must be removed after inflammation has subsided in order to prevent recurrence.

Sometimes an unerupted tooth, even when not inflamed, causes peculiar neuralgic-like pains. In many cases, however, an unerupted tooth is silent and is only discovered by a routine examination with the x-ray. The best rule is to let sleeping, unerupted teeth lie.

Questions and Answers

K. L.: "At different times a small white spot or blotch will appear in or under one or more of my fingernails. As children we used to say that this signified that you had told a lie. As a grown-up I would like to know what it signifies, if it has a medical significance at all."

Answer: It has no significance. The usual explanation is that these spots are made by a tiny air bubble which gets in the nail, just as they say gray hair differs from natural hair because the hair shaft is filled with air bubbles.

H. M. W.: "Are variety and change of scene conducive to long life? Our cemetery superintendent found that the average length of life of those buried in 1904 was about 53 years; in 1937 about 63 years. That period corresponds to the growth in popularity of the auto and the movie. May they be partially responsible for the increase in length of life?"

Answer: Your cemetery superintendent was working from insufficient data. He forgot to count the infants and children who died. In those who have reached the age of 40, duration of life has increased only about six months in the last half-century. The movies may be conducive to longevity, but certainly not the auto.

Select Suitable Christmas Toys For Children

Constructive Play May Well Be Kept in Mind

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In choosing toys and playthings for your children, ask yourself a few questions.

Is the toy safe? Most toys now are made with safety in mind. Even the paint on the best-made toys is non-poisonous, though some of the cheaper toys lure with a paint that's poisonous to the tot who gnaws and chews on them.

How long will it last? Please don't put a frail toy into the hands of your child. A frail toy discourages carefulness and even encourages destructiveness. Buy a few sturdy toys rather than many fragile one. If the child is guided in careful use of a sturdy toy, this toy might be handed down to a younger child.

How long with the child enjoy it? You should consider whether it will appeal to him for only a few minutes, hours or days, or linger in its ure indefinitely. The simpler the laything, as a rule, the more uses t will be put to and the more it vill be employed with other things or creating. A plain block is a ood example.

Creative Toys

The child who, before the age of hree or four, has spent much time t creative building with simple blocks, will be the more likely later o adapt even mechanical toys to creative purposes. A certain boy, for instance, who received an electric train at the age of eight did not merely run this train, but for several years thereafter devised all orts of inventions about it. These nvolved the use of many other simple materials.

Beginning with the tot, put emphasis on tools and materials for creative and constructive play—crayons, paints, paste, molding clay, scissors and brads, gradually adding hammer, saw, plane, vise and the like.

Is the toy suited to the child's age? Can he operate it himself or must it be put together, wound or run by an adult or older child?

Can he share most of his toys with others? Simple blocks, things on wheels, constructive sets, even electric trains (for the older child), encourage co-operative social play. So do certain card games, dominoes, checkers, etc., the whole family can engage in them. For children above six the collapsible pocket billiard table is a good investment, and if there is room, a ping pon table.

To encourage outdoor play, consider a kiddy kar, wagon and tricycle for the tot; and for the child of four and older, roller skates, ice skates and skiis.

And remember good books and children's magazines among your gifts. If the budget permits, you might consider good sets of children's literature and other reference sets, including a children's encyclopedia, even a typewriter.

By writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it, you may receive any or all the following. In case you desire more than two of them, please add a second stamped envelope.

A graded list of toys and playthings. A list of books for reading to the baby and young child. A graded list of books for school age children. A list of books for parents.

Q. Do you think it good for a child's health and character to walk reasonable distances to school?

A. I certainly do. On the contrary, I deplore the harm many parents are doing to their children by toting them, except on stormy days, short distances to and from school, and in supplying cars to high school students for such a purpose.

Lactic Acid Is Not Used Much In Baby's Milk

Some Authorities Still Believe It Is Useful, However

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Should lactic acid be added to a milk formula for infants?

Authorities are less inclined to insist upon this nowadays than formerly. Some, however, still believe that it is a great advantage to add some lactic acid to the milk of bottle-fed babies who have been underfed and cannot take the amount of strength of cow's milk mixture they should be getting if their weight were normal. Lactic acid undoubtedly is helpful in certain cases of intestinal indigestion.

In the preparation of lactic acid mixture, after the standard formula has been made, sixty drops of lactic acid, which can be bought at a drug store, are added to each pint of milk. After the milk is boiled and has been allowed to cool, the acid is added drop by drop, with constant stirring to prevent lumps forming in the milk.

What is the modern treatment of psoriasis?

Psoriasis is a mysterious disease of the skin. It is likely to come on in the winter time. It is a scaly, itchy eruption, which has a predilection for the scalp, ears and the surfaces of the arms and legs. Recurrences are the rule and few dermatologists would be willing to say there is any cure for it. Attention to the general health and the diet is important.

Foods which notably irritate the skin, such as shell foods, strawberries pickles and alcohol, should not be used.

Local treatment with various ointments or lights is helpful. A new one comes out nearly every year.

What should be done for an unerupted tooth?

Wisdom teeth are usually those which do not erupt. They are often found to be lying in the jaw crooked or sidewise. When thus wrongly directed, they impinge on their neighbors and inflammation ensues. When this occurs, the gum at first becomes inflamed and the chewing muscles take part in the reaction and the jaw is partly locked. The infection may extend down the neck or local abcesses may form. When this occurs, of course, the unerupted tooth must be removed after inflammation has subsided in order to prevent recurrence.

Sometimes an unerupted tooth, even when not inflamed, causes peculiar neuralgic-like pains. In many cases, however, an unerupted tooth is silent and is only discovered by a routine examination with the x-ray. The best rule is to let sleeping, unerupted teeth lie.

Questions and Answers

K. L.: "At different times a small white spot or blotch will appear in or under one or more of my fingernails. As children we used to say that this signified that you had told a lie. As a grown-up I would like to know what it signifies, if it has a medical significance at all."

Answer: It has no significance. The usual explanation is that these spots are made by a tiny air bubble which gets in the nail, just as they say gray hair differs from natural hair because the hair shaft is filled with air bubbles.

H. M. W.: "Are variety and change of scene conducive to long life? Our cemetery superintendent found that the average length of life of those buried in 1904 was about 53 years; in 1937 about 63 years. That period corresponds to the growth in popularity of the auto and the movie. May they be partially responsible for the increase in length of life?"

Answer: Your cemetery superintendent was working from insufficient data. He forgot to count the infants and children who died. In those who have reached the age of 40, duration of life has increased only about six months in the last half-century. The movies may be conducive to longevity, but certainly not the auto.

Select Suitable Christmas Toys For Children

Constructive Play May Well Be Kept in Mind

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In choosing toys and playthings for your children, ask yourself a few questions.

Is the toy safe? Most toys now are made with safety in mind. Even the paint on the best-made toys is non-poisonous, though some of the cheaper toys lure with a paint that's poisonous to the tot who gnaws and chews on them.

How long will it last? Please don't put a frail toy into the hands of your child. A frail toy discourages carefulness and even encourages destructiveness. Buy a few sturdy toys rather than many fragile one. If the child is guided in careful use of a sturdy toy, this toy might be handed down to a younger child.

A House Cleaning Needed

MEMBERS of Congress are reported as growing weary and disgusted over the continuation of strife between the warring labor factions and hints are heard that unless the factions settle down to a peaceful course, Congress will have to do something about it.

James Roosevelt has sounded warning to this effect in a broadcast. Unless the labor factions get together, he said, they are due for a round "beating" at the next session of Congress, adding that "what the law makers give, they can take away."

Everybody wants industrial peace. It is needed now in the interests of recovery as never before. The rank and file of labor desires it. The employers of labor desire it. The public, heartily sick of the wrangles, the strikes, the shutdowns, the slow-downs, the unreasonable restraints and the racketeering, also desires it.

Organized labor today faces two obvious duties. One is to use more common sense in the efforts to bring about industrial peace, which is one of its fundamental objectives, and the other is to clean up the unreasonable restraints and racketeering that unfortunately have developed within its own ranks as the result of the unwise actions of greedy and unconscionable leaders.

Dorothy Thompson in one of her recent columns cited a number of examples of these unreasonable restraints and the racketeering connected with them. The musicians' union is shown as furnishing a notorious case in point. Producers of plays are constantly being "held up," she says, and she declares that these words are carefully chosen.

This union has adopted the rule that if any music is used in a play, even if it is only a dance record on a phonograph, the producer must hire a corps of musicians whether they have anything to do or not. In The Cradle Will Rock, the music consisted of the composer's playing on a piano, but the production had to engage twelve musicians whose only duty was to report at the correct hour and play cards back stage. In The Time of Your Life there is a one-minute song, a Salvation Army hymn, during which one man plays a trumpet and another beats a drum, but four men had to be hired for that. If a union decides any show is musical, then a minimum of sixteen men, representing an orchestra, must be employed, whether they play or not. Pins and Needles called for two pianists, but it has to carry twelve musicians. When Julius Caesar was in production, the cast was rehearsing for Shoemakers' Holiday and asked the electrician to turn on the lights, but he refused to do so, declaring that he had been hired for Julius Caesar and not for Shoemakers' Holiday; but after a squabble he compromised, turned on the lights and then sent in a bill for $21.

Miss Thompson also cites instances on the part of the trade union of company managers, treasurers and press agents, the AFL action against Walter Damrosch, and the actions of unions in shutting out qualified workers and setting entrance fees so high that no ordinary worker can ever pay them. "It is about as hard to get into the Scenic Designers' union, as into the Century Club," she says. "The initiation fee is $500. Musicians pay an entrance fee of $50, $1.40 a month, rain or shine, and a three per cent tax when they are working—or playing cards back stage. But you have to have a good wad of money in the bank in order to join the Stagehands' union. And you can't just join the Scenic Designers' or the Stagehands' union. You have to be elected."

Miss Thompson says the net effect of union policy on the theaters in New York is to deliver the theater over to the most speculative commercial spirit, thus making the drama dependent, to an unnecessary degree, upon money. No wonder the stage in New York is in such a bad way.

Something else besides the unreasonable restraints that boost costs to the point of prohibition, however, is injuring the union cause. That is the racketeering. The building industry is notoriously and scandalously impregnated with racketeering activities, so much so, indeed, that the federal department of Justice is moving against those concerned in an effort to break it up as thoroughly as Prosecutor Dewey broke up the racketeering in the handling of food products in New York city.

These conditions and activities are hurting organized labor, and, as stated, it should set about cleaning its own house. It does not follow, of course, that all labor unions are afflicted with them, as many are not. But no one can be accused of being antagonistic to labor and to its right of collective bargaining in advocating that renovation. As a matter of fact, such a clean-up would strengthen labor and its rights and privileges. By putting a stop to the racketeering and squelching the racketeers within its own rank it will be doing itself a big service and hastening the time when industrial peace shall supplant industrial warfare.

Reprocity Opposition Grows

SENATOR KEY PITTMAN, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, has protested to the State department against conclusion of a reciprocal trade treaty with Chile, which he charges would open United States markets to low-priced foreign copper.

There you are when it comes to stepping on a senator's own toes. Senator Pittman's state is a large copper producer. But it can be said in all fairness that Senator Pittman did not wait to have his toes stepped upon in order to register protest against the removal of protective fences erected for the benefit of home labor and home industry. In lodging his protest with the State department on the Chilean trade proposal, he declared that he believed all the reciprocal trade agreements are unconstitutional and reminded that he had voted against extension of the Trade act in 1937 because he believed treaties would not be binding unless they are ratified by the Senate.

If this Chilean reciprocity injuriously affects the copper industry of Nevada and of other states, then it follows that similar trade agreements likewise harmfully affect other important industries in this country. The Argentine agreement, for example, involves a serious handicap for the American cattle and meat products industries.

The administration has negotiated more than a score of these reciprocal trade agreements and in every one of them tariffs on some American products have been cut. We are reminded that each of those tariffs, as in the case with oil, was established in the first place to protect some American industry and at the same time protect American labor and the standard of American living.

"You can't justify both the policy of tariff cutting and protests against tariff cuts," aptly observes the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer. "Either the tariff is good or bad American policy. If it is good, then anything designed to destroy it is bad. The trade agreements law was enacted for that very purpose."

The act expires June 12 next and it is of interest to note that considerable opposition has developed against its extension among Democrats as well as Republicans in Congress. The State department, however, has made it plain that it intends to seek its re-enactment. But its chances will diminish as the effects of the agreements already in force begin to make their inroads on American industry.

New Deal Snowball

HARD PRESSED TAXPAYERS who wonder where their money goes should travel to Washington and see for themselves the mushroom growth of New Deal agencies. In spite of an unprecedented building boom, every available inch of office space in the nation's capital is jammed with government workers. Many divisions are set up in corridors and hallways, while some bureaus have been forced to rent space in Baltimore forty miles away.

The Wage and Hour Law administration is an example of what happens once the New Deal snowball starts rolling down the limitless expanses of deficit finance. A year ago it had a $300,000 appropriation and twenty-five inspectors on its payroll. Six months later it got an appropriation of $850,000 and the number of inspectors was increased to 100. Now the field workers are reported to number 270 and a $3,400,000 appropriation for the current fiscal year is expected to result in a total of 500 inspectors by spring.

If your business grew from $300,000 to $3,400,000 you would certainly be happy. But your business isn't likely to grow 500 or even fifty per cent when a branch of the federal government, financed by money taken from you in taxes, and by reckless borrowing, can grow 5,000 per cent in eighteen months.

Would Cramp Our Style

FURTHER REMINDER of the economic pressure of the war is given in the dispatch from Rome announcing that gasoline will be available in limited quantities for private automobiles and motorcycles in Italy beginning December 8.

The operation of private automobiles was halted at the outbreak of the European war in order to save gasoline. A ministry announcement states that fuel reserves have now reached a "satisfactory level." Motorists will be permitted to buy eight gallons a month for their cars and motorcyclists three gallons a month.

That might be a satisfactory level for Italy, but it certainly would cramp the style of Americans.

Those California pension advocates will try again—news item. Next time, no doubt, their slogan will be "Ham and Eggs — with Buttered Toast and Pancakes."

Nothing can be beautiful that is not true, said the late Ruskin, as he was not a man who had a large acquaintance with political platforms.

They say Al Capone, just released from the pen, has hallucinations, but they don't say what they are. Does he think he's still Capone?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

READER: You take things too seriously. You must be a solemn fellow.

WRITER: I hope you don't mind if I disagree. I don't think I take things too seriously. But even if I did, how else is one to take things. You can't laugh your way ALL through life.

Marshall Maslin

READER: Why not? The laughers are a good sort, and very useful, and they lighten life beautifully all around them.

WRITER: That's true, they do. But even a laugher, now that I think of it, may be a very serious individual, laughing because he sees into the heart of things.

READER: You're quibbling again. You're just trying to act smart.

WRITER: No, really, I'm not. I think every man or woman MUST take life seriously. If you don't, you are frivolous. If you don't, you miss the cream of the jest or the joy of the adventure, and you never dig down to the bed-rock of living. You float on every vagrant breeze of an idea or an event and follow no charted course through the years.

READER: How can any man follow any charted course through this life? The forces among which he lives are so mighty and so ruthless that he is hardly more than a wisp in the wind or a leaf on the stream. He's fooling himself if he tries to be too serious.

WRITER: Nevertheless, a man or a woman should decide what is serious and what is not. If he is playing a game—of golf, or football or bridge—he must take the rules seriously, use them, obey them; he must try to exhaust every possibility of the game and enjoy it to the fullest. If he does, he is lightminded, not serious at all. My idea is that a man must be serious about life, but must not take himself too seriously. He isn't particularly important, but some of the things he does and the thoughts he thinks ARE important.

READER: You remind me of that old saying that life is a tragedy for those who feel, a comedy for those who think. Do you agree?

WRITER: Yes, but everybody both thinks and feels. Life is a tragedy for you some days, a comedy for you at other times. . . . I wouldn't have it otherwise, would you?

READER: No, I wouldn't. . . . But please don't take things so seriously.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

The "leadership principle" apparently is not a new or novel device in groups which crave action without punctilious regard for legal subtleties. Our catch-as-catch-can philosopher, Mr. Hymie Augen, of the peripatetic school of Red Hook, has noted several states within a state which were built around a single dominant personality and, as Mr. Augen puts it, this mug usually gets measured for the one-two, or the cops catch up with him.

In this connection, the doings of Fritz Kuhn and his bund induced Mr. Augen to declare and depose as follows, so help him:

"It was during the World war,' says Augen, "and there was bales of loose kale lying around the navy yard. All you needed to make a good living was a pair of tap dice and you didn't have to bother with any such dirty business as smuggling Chinks or peddling marijuana cigarettes to sailors.

"Me, I'm working and I just drop in once in a while at the Allison J. Wetmore club and it's years later before I get hep to why this Wetmore had to take it on lam all at once, and how he missed his boat, etc. There was a lot of the public thought Wetmore wasn't his real name. But he had a lot of sway-backed suits and $40 Panama hats and some nice rocks and he could talk a train off the track, and when he mitts you, you think he's your friend for life. So finally all the saps around the club get so they lie down and roll oven whenever he says anything.

Becomes Big Shot

"As I got it from Smoky Simpson, Wetmore once had a little bail bond business and was doing all right until he began to figure himself as a big shot and gets up this club. He made the people think nobody but Allison J. Wetmore could put in the fix. In addition, he used to get word around that if you wanted a job blowing smoke rings at a fat salary the thing to do was to stick close to Allison J. Wetmore. That would of made him a big following in any man's country, although Smoky told me he used to hire guys to go around and say he could do this and that, and that if all the truth was known he couldn't square a teacher's pet for playing hookey. That's how it is in this life. A lot depends on what you can just make people think you are."

A Mean Mob

"Well, this Limpy Lopez Social and Political Club down the street was a mean mob and they got to dealing plenty of trouble to Wetmore's club. They grabbed off a lot of the Wharf patronage from Wetmore and on election days they out-voted and out-slugged the Wetmore boys and the two mobs had rock-and-sock fights all over the place. Wetmore gets all steamed up and one night he orders all his mob to come to a meeting at Altmeyer's hall.

"He's a big, handsome geekus with a big bazoo and he makes a long, loud speech to the effect that they're sunk unless they take this other crowd. He gives them the works about being free men, etc., and gets them boiling so they figure one Wetmore can lick fifty of these Lopez loafers. Then he comes to the pay off. This is a fight to live and they've got to forget about all the club rules and regulations and let him run the works and handle all the dough. Topping all that there's got to be a big extra assessment."

All but Dippy Dan

"Everybody goes down in the kick except old Dippy Dan, a gimpy-legged old case-keeper who we knew only by the above name. The next few weeks, old Dan is tailing Wetmore, and putting this and that together he gets hep that Wetmore is booked to sail on a certain ship and that he finds that Limpy is booked for the same ship. They was to sail at midnight. Dan gives some of the Lopez mob an earful and at 10 o'clock that night, both mobs are sneaking up the back stairs of the Lepez club.

"They bust into the office and there's Wetmore and Lopez splitting up all the defense funds and stuffing them into a couple of satchels. They had been partners all along, and war was just a hippodrome. The boys started operating on them right away and that's why Wetmore missed his boat. That's the way this 'leadership principle' works out when the club doesn't pick its own leaders."—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MAKING THEIR COW GIVE MORE MILK

Another "Slick" Scheme Is on Foot In Effort To Dodge the Debt Limit

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

More and more the word "slick" has become associated with the New Deal. Folks used to say that the New Dealers were smart and clever. But now they speak of them as being "slick". Behind the expression is the growing thought that the New Deal constantly is trying to put something over—that it is not laying all its cards on the table.

In view of recent incidents it appears that the average man in using the word "slick" as a description of the New Deal has properly appraised what is going on in Washington. It will be recalled that the first time the word "slick" generally was applied to a New Deal activity was during the supreme court packing controversy.

Mr. Roosevelt, it will further be recalled, asked Congress to pass legislation which would enable him to increase the size of the supreme court. He argued that the courts were behind in their work and that those jurists over 70 years of age needed assistance and that therefore, if they did not resign at that age, he should be authorized to name wet nurses for them.

Court Plan Called Slick

This scheme was termed "slick" because it was perfectly obvious that Mr. Roosevelt was not in the slightest concerned over congestion in the courts—he had failed to fill vacancies which had long existed—or over the age of the jurists. Mr. Roosevelt obviously wanted to pack the supreme court in order to get favorable opinions of legislation. His plan was so "slick" it did not work!

More recently the country witnessed another New Deal effort which brought forth the term "slick". It was the scheme, after the passage of the neutrality act barring American ships from belligerent ports, to transfer a number of United States Line ships to the registry of Panama. Not a word about such a move was uttered during the debate in the Senate on the "cash and carry" provisions. Yet the plans obviously were then being formulated and they violated the spirit of those provisions.

Only the fact that the public generally recognized the scheme as "slick" and made known its dislike for "slick" undertakings prevented its consummation. One day Mr. Roosevelt and his secretary of state seemed disposed to defend the action. The next day they turned their backs on it. Again it was found that being "slick" does not pay!

F. D. R. Puts over Slick One

But Mr. Roosevelt seems to learn slowly. Hardly had the Panama ship scheme been laid aside than Mr. Roosevelt made a speech laying the corner-stone of the new Jefferson Memorial in Washington. Extemporaneously he inserted a sentence into his speech which at first hearing indicate he would seek a third term. Two days later he told the newspapermen he had done so solely for his amusement at watching the expressions on their faces. Pretty "slick" eh what? Not all the newspapermen thought so!

Now, however, there comes to light another New Deal effort to be "slick". This time a more serious matter Under the heading "PLAN DEVISED TO DODGE U. S. DEBT LIMIT", the Washington Post carried, under the name of Cecil B. Dickson of the International News Service, this story:

"A secret plan to avert the necessity of congressional action increasing the present $45,000,000,000 national debt limit in the election year of 1940 has been devised by administration financial experts, it was learned last night.

"The plan, calling for use of the borrowing powers of the New Deal lending agencies to help finance government expenditures, was conceived after the Democratic leaders advised the administration that the issue of raising the debt ceiling imperiled the chances of a Democratic victory in the presidential election.

"Under President Roosevelt's budget estimates the national debt will reach $44,458,000,000 on June 30. The treasury reported today it had passed the $41,210,000,000 mark on November 15.

"The secret plan entails the selling of securities by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Home Owners Loan Corporation and the Federal Housing Administration to private investors, the funds to be used to retire obligations of those agencies held by the treasury.

Plan To Juggle Books

In other words, Mr. Dickson reported that a plan is on foot by the New Dealers to engage in a little juggling of the books, a little financial chicanery, in order to avoid letting Congress decide whether the national debt limit should be increased.

The government would still owe the money, whether it is borrowed directly by one of its agencies or by the treasury, since loans of the former are guaranteed by the treasury. The only difference would be that the agency loans would not be reflected in the national debt figure. The true condition of federal finances would be hidden from public view—and the New Deal thus hopes to escape the consequences of its reckless, extravagant spending policies.

Pretty "slick" isn't ti? But it is too "slick" to work. The American people have become wise to "slick" schemes and this one will arouse their hostility, just as did the "slick" supreme court and Panama ship registry schemes!

While America Talks

From the Industrial News Review

Nobody should minimize the importance of the European conflict to this country. Directly and indirectly its evil effects will be felt for many years to come. But in some respects America is acting like a family excitedly watching a neighbor's house burn, while, unnoticed, flames devour their own back porch. Instead of getting busy and wetting their place down to prevent the spread of the fire, they merely talk of what should be done. The other day while America talked, the federal debt passed the $41,000,000,000 marks.

Bankruptcy, not war, ruins nations. As a rule, a financially strong nation can survive war; a financially weak nation cannot.

For more than a decade this nation has steadily weakened itself financially. The government has constantly spent more money than it has received from taxpayers. "Deficit financing" or borrowing has been a continuing process. It has been like a flame creeping slowly through dry grass toward a powder keg. Talking will not put it out. Yet, we all know that if it is allowed to reach the powder keg of national insolvency, a devastating explosion will follow.

Then what will become of our national security, of which we talk so much? It will be blown to bits along with the savings and liberties of a hundred and thirty million Americans—Americans who spent their time talking.

A New Material For Roofing

From Forbes Magazine

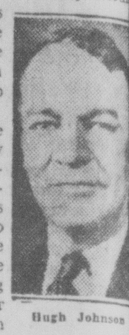

A newly-completed factory boasts a porcelain enameled corrugated steel roof, said to be the first installation of its kind in the factory building field. And if the claims made for it are borne out, it promises to become the first of many such installations in industrial plants, garages, sheds and similar buildings.

Porcelain enamel is almost completely resistant to the ravages of the weather and is not subject to decay (this makes it especially suitable for buildings where process fumes are hard on ordinary roofing). Roofs of this kind, therefore, should offer long life, low maintenance cost and greater cleanliness, in addition to permanent lustre and color.

Where the underside of the roof is not covered by a secondary facing material, it is possible to porcelain enamel it in white. This gives a fine light-reflecting ceiling which doesn't require periodic refinishing, as do painted ceilings, and which can be washed down easily with soap and water.

Something To Gain In a War Truce

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, Nov. 27—If Great Britain and France will accept a Christmas Truce, Germany should. Neither side has anything to lose by it and there are some human lives and limbs to gain.

During the World war, any kind of "fraternizing" was forbidden. Both sides were so wedded to the fierce doctrine of the offensive that the training of every soldier was to make him "ferocious." He had to learn to hate the men he was fighting.

This was especially emphasized in training in the use of the bayonet. Before the war our bayonet drill at least was a sort of minuet—"one, two-three-and-a-heel-and-toe," frequently performed to music by the band.

Schooled in Sadism

The Germans taught us realism and we were apt pupils. Toward the end, men stood in a ring with their bayonets at "guard" snarling and growling like hyenas over a carcass—taught to do that. The best instructor in my division was an ex-actor—a big hulk of an officer. In his carefully simulated frenzy, he would stand slavering in the center and tear his shirt apart exposing his hairy chest. He had a short crop with a bamboo ring at its end. He would select the next soldier from the growling, panting circle by welting his face with that crop. Then he would hold that ring perilously close to his own jugular, his flank or his loins. The soldier thus worked into an artificial spasm of rage would lunge at it.

Men got so excited that they wanted to practice on each other with bare bayonets. The idea was to create an actual sadistic yearning to plunge that blade into somebody's bowels and give it a twist.

Against the Grain

That idea went through all training. The trouble with our boys brought up to believe in sportsmanship in all kinds of physical contest and to hate stabbing and cutting, was that it was pretty hard to get them to put any conviction into condemned holds in wrestling, into knifing other men's intestines, into eye-gouging, groin-kneeing and various other forms of animalistic combat.

That was what they had to go up against so that was what they had to be taught. In the Eighth division the bayoneteers could be keyed to frenzy. The armistice caught them en route for France at a port of embarkation. I have never seen such a complete deflation as the bayonet drill the next day. The synthetic ferocity had instantly become such a farce that it wasn't worth continuing.

A Silly Dogma

The normal soldier does not truly hate the man in the enemy trench who is trying to kill him as a matter of duty and by command. Only the stay-at-home directors do that.

The argument against a Christmas truce is that it may make the troops less frightful afterward. That is silly dogma. Troops, when permitted, have always fraternized in lulls. There is a spring on the field at Gettysburg where, by common consent and without injury, in the hottest of the fight, water carriers from both sides came to fill canteens and razz each other about the progress of the battle.

The Germans Care

Hitler may not care anything about Christmas but the German people do. As we know it, they invented most of it—sparkling trees, toys and the gentle generous customs of gifts and good-will.

There wouldn't have to be any "fraternizing" for the purpose of cessation of slaughter in a short season when, if ever, according to our religion, there should be peace on earth and good will toward men. The peace might be only momentary. There might be no good will among the opposing statesmen and nations. But as between the poor devils who do the fighting and dying on the battle lines, good will is never far away.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

A House Cleaning Needed

MEMBERS of Congress are reported as growing weary and disgusted over the continuation of strife between the warring labor factions and hints are heard that unless the factions settle down to a peaceful course, Congress will have to do something about it.

James Roosevelt has sounded warning to this effect in a broadcast. Unless the labor factions get together, he said, they are due for a round "beating" at the next session of Congress, adding that "what the law makers give, they can take away."

Everybody wants industrial peace. It is needed now in the interests of recovery as never before. The rank and file of labor desires it. The employers of labor desire it. The public, heartily sick of the wrangles, the strikes, the shutdowns, the slow-downs, the unreasonable restraints and the racketeering, also desires it.

Organized labor today faces two obvious duties. One is to use more common sense in the efforts to bring about industrial peace, which is one of its fundamental objectives, and the other is to clean up the unreasonable restraints and racketeering that unfortunately have developed within its own ranks as the result of the unwise actions of greedy and unconscionable leaders.

Dorothy Thompson in one of her recent columns cited a number of examples of these unreasonable restraints and the racketeering connected with them. The musicians' union is shown as furnishing a notorious case in point. Producers of plays are constantly being "held up," she says, and she declares that these words are carefully chosen.

This union has adopted the rule that if any music is used in a play, even if it is only a dance record on a phonograph, the producer must hire a corps of musicians whether they have anything to do or not. In The Cradle Will Rock, the music consisted of the composer's playing on a piano, but the production had to engage twelve musicians whose only duty was to report at the correct hour and play cards back stage. In The Time of Your Life there is a one-minute song, a Salvation Army hymn, during which one man plays a trumpet and another beats a drum, but four men had to be hired for that. If a union decides any show is musical, then a minimum of sixteen men, representing an orchestra, must be employed, whether they play or not. Pins and Needles called for two pianists, but it has to carry twelve musicians. When Julius Caesar was in production, the cast was rehearsing for Shoemakers' Holiday and asked the electrician to turn on the lights, but he refused to do so, declaring that he had been hired for Julius Caesar and not for Shoemakers' Holiday; but after a squabble he compromised, turned on the lights and then sent in a bill for $21.

Miss Thompson also cites instances on the part of the trade union of company managers, treasurers and press agents, the AFL action against Walter Damrosch, and the actions of unions in shutting out qualified workers and setting entrance fees so high that no ordinary worker can ever pay them. "It is about as hard to get into the Scenic Designers' union, as into the Century Club," she says. "The initiation fee is $500. Musicians pay an entrance fee of $50, $1.40 a month, rain or shine, and a three per cent tax when they are working—or playing cards back stage. But you have to have a good wad of money in the bank in order to join the Stagehands' union. And you can't just join the Scenic Designers' or the Stagehands' union. You have to be elected."

Miss Thompson says the net effect of union policy on the theaters in New York is to deliver the theater over to the most speculative commercial spirit, thus making the drama dependent, to an unnecessary degree, upon money. No wonder the stage in New York is in such a bad way.

Something else besides the unreasonable restraints that boost costs to the point of prohibition, however, is injuring the union cause. That is the racketeering. The building industry is notoriously and scandalously impregnated with racketeering activities, so much so, indeed, that the federal department of Justice is moving against those concerned in an effort to break it up as thoroughly as Prosecutor Dewey broke up the racketeering in the handling of food products in New York city.

These conditions and activities are hurting organized labor, and, as stated, it should set about cleaning its own house. It does not follow, of course, that all labor unions are afflicted with them, as many are not. But no one can be accused of being antagonistic to labor and to its right of collective bargaining in advocating that renovation. As a matter of fact, such a clean-up would strengthen labor and its rights and privileges. By putting a stop to the racketeering and squelching the racketeers within its own rank it will be doing itself a big service and hastening the time when industrial peace shall supplant industrial warfare.

Reprocity Opposition Grows

SENATOR KEY PITTMAN, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, has protested to the State department against conclusion of a reciprocal trade treaty with Chile, which he charges would open United States markets to low-priced foreign copper.

There you are when it comes to stepping on a senator's own toes. Senator Pittman's state is a large copper producer. But it can be said in all fairness that Senator Pittman did not wait to have his toes stepped upon in order to register protest against the removal of protective fences erected for the benefit of home labor and home industry. In lodging his protest with the State department on the Chilean trade proposal, he declared that he believed all the reciprocal trade agreements are unconstitutional and reminded that he had voted against extension of the Trade act in 1937 because he believed treaties would not be binding unless they are ratified by the Senate.

If this Chilean reciprocity injuriously affects the copper industry of Nevada and of other states, then it follows that similar trade agreements likewise harmfully affect other important industries in this country. The Argentine agreement, for example, involves a serious handicap for the American cattle and meat products industries.

The administration has negotiated more than a score of these reciprocal trade agreements and in every one of them tariffs on some American products have been cut. We are reminded that each of those tariffs, as in the case with oil, was established in the first place to protect some American industry and at the same time protect American labor and the standard of American living.

"You can't justify both the policy of tariff cutting and protests against tariff cuts," aptly observes the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer. "Either the tariff is good or bad American policy. If it is good, then anything designed to destroy it is bad. The trade agreements law was enacted for that very purpose."

The act expires June 12 next and it is of interest to note that considerable opposition has developed against its extension among Democrats as well as Republicans in Congress. The State department, however, has made it plain that it intends to seek its re-enactment. But its chances will diminish as the effects of the agreements already in force begin to make their inroads on American industry.

New Deal Snowball

HARD PRESSED TAXPAYERS who wonder where their money goes should travel to Washington and see for themselves the mushroom growth of New Deal agencies. In spite of an unprecedented building boom, every available inch of office space in the nation's capital is jammed with government workers. Many divisions are set up in corridors and hallways, while some bureaus have been forced to rent space in Baltimore forty miles away.

The Wage and Hour Law administration is an example of what happens once the New Deal snowball starts rolling down the limitless expanses of deficit finance. A year ago it had a $300,000 appropriation and twenty-five inspectors on its payroll. Six months later it got an appropriation of $850,000 and the number of inspectors was increased to 100. Now the field workers are reported to number 270 and a $3,400,000 appropriation for the current fiscal year is expected to result in a total of 500 inspectors by spring.

If your business grew from $300,000 to $3,400,000 you would certainly be happy. But your business isn't likely to grow 500 or even fifty per cent when a branch of the federal government, financed by money taken from you in taxes, and by reckless borrowing, can grow 5,000 per cent in eighteen months.

Would Cramp Our Style

FURTHER REMINDER of the economic pressure of the war is given in the dispatch from Rome announcing that gasoline will be available in limited quantities for private automobiles and motorcycles in Italy beginning December 8.

The operation of private automobiles was halted at the outbreak of the European war in order to save gasoline. A ministry announcement states that fuel reserves have now reached a "satisfactory level." Motorists will be permitted to buy eight gallons a month for their cars and motorcyclists three gallons a month.

That might be a satisfactory level for Italy, but it certainly would cramp the style of Americans.

Those California pension advocates will try again—news item. Next time, no doubt, their slogan will be "Ham and Eggs — with Buttered Toast and Pancakes."

Questions and Answers

By MARSHALL MASLIN

READER: You take things too seriously. You must be a solemn fellow.

WRITER: I hope you don't mind if I disagree. I don't think I take things too seriously. But even if I did, how else is one to take things. You can't laugh your way ALL through life.

Marshall Maslin

READER: Why not? The laughers are a good sort, and very useful, and they lighten life beautifully all around them.

WRITER: That's true, they do. But even a laugher, now that I think of it, may be a very serious individual, laughing because he sees into the heart of things.

READER: You're quibbling again. You're just trying to act smart.

WRITER: No, really, I'm not. I think every man or woman MUST take life seriously. If you don't, you are frivolous. If you don't, you miss the cream of the jest or the joy of the adventure, and you never dig down to the bed-rock of living. You float on every vagrant breeze of an idea or an event and follow no charted course through the years.

READER: How can any man follow any charted course through this life? The forces among which he lives are so mighty and so ruthless that he is hardly more than a wisp in the wind or a leaf on the stream. He's fooling himself if he tries to be too serious.

WRITER: Nevertheless, a man or a woman should decide what is serious and what is not. If he is playing a game—of golf, or football or bridge—he must take the rules seriously, use them, obey them; he must try to exhaust every possibility of the game and enjoy it to the fullest. If he does, he is lightminded, not serious at all. My idea is that a man must be serious about life, but must not take himself too seriously. He isn't particularly important, but some of the things he does and the thoughts he thinks ARE important.

READER: You remind me of that old saying that life is a tragedy for those who feel, a comedy for those who think. Do you agree?

WRITER: Yes, but everybody both thinks and feels. Life is a tragedy for you some days, a comedy for you at other times. . . . I wouldn't have it otherwise, would you?

READER: No, I wouldn't. . . . But please don't take things so seriously.

The "leadership principle" apparently is not a new or novel device in groups which crave action without punctilious regard for legal subtleties. Our catch-as-catch-can philosopher, Mr. Hymie Augen, of the peripatetic school of Red Hook, has noted several states within a state which were built around a single dominant personality and, as Mr. Augen puts it, this mug usually gets measured for the one-two, or the cops catch up with him.

In this connection, the doings of Fritz Kuhn and his bund induced Mr. Augen to declare and depose as follows, so help him:

"It was during the World war," says Augen, "and there was bales of loose kale lying around the navy yard. All you needed to make a good living was a pair of tap dice and you didn't have to bother with any such dirty business as smuggling Chinks or peddling marijuana cigarettes to sailors.

"Me, I'm working and I just drop in once in a while at the Allison J. Wetmore club and it's years later before I get hep to why this Wetmore had to take it on lam all at once, and how he missed his boat, etc. There was a lot of the public thought Wetmore wasn't his real name. But he had a lot of sway-backed suits and $40 Panama hats and some nice rocks and he could talk a train off the track, and when he mitts you, you think he's your friend for life. So finally all the saps around the club get so they lie down and roll oven whenever he says anything.

Becomes Big Shot

"As I got it from Smoky Simpson, Wetmore once had a little bail bond business and was doing all right until he began to figure himself as a big shot and gets up this club. He made the people think nobody but Allison J. Wetmore could put in the fix. In addition, he used to get word around that if you wanted a job blowing smoke rings at a fat salary the thing to do was to stick close to Allison J. Wetmore. That would of made him a big following in any man's country, although Smoky told me he used to hire guys to go around and say he could do this and that, and that if all the truth was known he couldn't square a teacher's pet for playing hookey. That's how it is in this life. A lot depends on what you can just make people think you are."

A Mean Mob

"Well, this Limpy Lopez Social and Political Club down the street was a mean mob and they got to dealing plenty of trouble to Wetmore's club. They grabbed off a lot of the Wharf patronage from Wetmore and on election days they out-voted and out-slugged the Wetmore boys and the two mobs had rock-and-sock fights all over the place. Wetmore gets all steamed up and one night he orders all his mob to come to a meeting at Altmeyer's hall.

"He's a big, handsome geekus with a big bazoo and he makes a long, loud speech to the effect that they're sunk unless they take this other crowd. He gives them the works about being free men, etc., and gets them boiling so they figure one Wetmore can lick fifty of these Lopez loafers. Then he comes to the pay off. This is a fight to live and they've got to forget about all the club rules and regulations and let him run the works and handle all the dough. Topping all that there's got to be a big extra assessment."

All but Dippy Dan

"Everybody goes down in the kick except old Dippy Dan, a gimpy-legged old case-keeper who we knew only by the above name. Extemporaneously he inserted a sentence into his speech which at first hearing indicate he would seek a third term. Two days later he told the newspapermen he had done so solely for his amusement at watching the expressions on their faces. Pretty "slick" eh what? Not all the newspapermen thought so!

Now, however, there comes to light another New Deal effort to be "slick". This time a more serious matter Under the heading "PLAN DEVISED TO DODGE U. S. DEBT LIMIT", the Washington Post carried, under the name of Cecil B. Dickson of the International News Service, this story:

"A secret plan to avert the necessity of congressional action increasing the present $45,000,000,000 national debt limit in the election year of 1940 has been devised by administration financial experts, it was learned last night.

"The plan, calling for use of the borrowing powers of the New Deal lending agencies to help finance government expenditures, was conceived after the Democratic leaders advised the administration that the issue of raising the debt ceiling imperiled the chances of a Democratic victory in the presidential election.

"Under President Roosevelt's budget estimates the national debt will reach $44,458,000,000 on June 30. The treasury reported today it had passed the $41,210,000,000 mark on November 15.

"The secret plan entails the selling of securities by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Home Owners Loan Corporation and the Federal Housing Administration to private investors, the funds to be used to retire obligations of those agencies held by the treasury.

Plan To Juggle Books

In other words, Mr. Dickson reported that a plan is on foot by the New Dealers to engage in a little juggling of the books, a little financial chicanery, in order to avoid letting Congress decide whether the national debt limit should be increased.

The government would still owe the money, whether it is borrowed directly by one of its agencies or by the treasury, since loans of the former are guaranteed by the treasury. The only difference would be that the agency loans would not be reflected in the national debt figure. The true condition of federal finances would be hidden from public view—and the New Deal thus hopes to escape the consequences of its reckless, extravagant spending policies.

Pretty "slick" isn't ti? But it is too "slick" to work. The American people have become wise to "slick" schemes and this one will arouse their hostility, just as did the "slick" supreme court and Panama ship registry schemes!

While America Talks

From the Industrial News Review

Nobody should minimize the importance of the European conflict to this country. Directly and indirectly its evil effects will be felt for many years to come. But in some respects America is acting like a family excitedly watching a neighbor's house burn, while, unnoticed, flames devour their own back porch. Instead of getting busy and wetting their place down to prevent the spread of the fire, they merely talk of what should be done. The other day while America talked, the federal debt passed the $41,000,000,000 marks.

Bankruptcy, not war, ruins nations. As a rule, a financially strong nation can survive war; a financially weak nation cannot.

For more than a decade this nation has steadily weakened itself financially. The government has constantly spent more money than it has received from taxpayers. "Deficit financing" or borrowing has been a continuing process. It has been like a flame creeping slowly through dry grass toward a powder keg. Talking will not put it out. Yet, we all know that if it is allowed to reach the powder keg of national insolvency, a devastating explosion will follow.

Then what will become of our national security, of which we talk so much? It will be blown to bits along with the savings and liberties of a hundred and thirty million Americans—Americans who spent their time talking.

A New Material For Roofing

From Forbes Magazine

A newly-completed factory boasts a porcelain enameled corrugated steel roof, said to be the first installation of its kind in the factory building field. And if the claims made for it are borne out, it promises to become the first of many such installations in industrial plants, garages, sheds and similar buildings.

Porcelain enamel is almost completely resistant to the ravages of the weather and is not subject to decay (this makes it especially suitable for buildings where process fumes are hard on ordinary roofing). Roofs of this kind, therefore, should offer long life, low maintenance cost and greater cleanliness, in addition to permanent lustre and color.

Where the underside of the roof is not covered by a secondary facing material, it is possible to porcelain enamel it in white. This gives a fine light-reflecting ceiling which doesn't require periodic refinishing, as do painted ceilings, and which can be washed down easily with soap and water.

Something To Gain In a War Truce

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, Nov. 27—If Great Britain and France will accept a Christmas Truce, Germany should. Neither side has anything to lose by it and there are some human lives and limbs to gain.

During the World war, any kind of "fraternizing" was forbidden. Both sides were so wedded to the fierce doctrine of the offensive that the training of every soldier was to make him "ferocious." He had to learn to hate the men he was fighting.

This was especially emphasized in training in the use of the bayonet. Before the war our bayonet drill at least was a sort of minuet—"one, two-three-and-a-heel-and-toe," frequently performed to music by the band.

Schooled in Sadism

The Germans taught us realism and we were apt pupils. Toward the end, men stood in a ring with their bayonets at "guard" snarling and growling like hyenas over a carcass—taught to do that. The best instructor in my division was an ex-actor—a big hulk of an officer. In his carefully simulated frenzy, he would stand slavering in the center and tear his shirt apart exposing his hairy chest. He had a short cane with a bamboo ring at its end. He would select the next soldier from the growling, panting circle by veiling his face with that crop. Then he would hold that ring perilously close to his own jugular, his flank or his loins. The soldier thus worked into an artificial spasm of rage would lunge at it.

Men got so excited that they wanted to practice on each other with bare bayonets. The idea was to create an actual sadistic yearning to plunge that blade into somebody's bowels and give it a twist.

Against the Grain

That idea went through all training. The trouble with our boys brought up to believe in sportsmanship in all kinds of physical contest and to hate stabbing and cutting, was that it was pretty hard to get them to put any conviction into condemned holds in wrestling, into knifing other men's intestines, into eye-gouging, groin-kneeing and various other forms of animalistic combat.

That was what they had to go against so that was what they had to be taught. In the Eighth division the bayoneteers could be keyed to frenzy. The armistice caught them en route for France at a port of embarkation. I have never seen such a complete deflation as the bayonet drill the next day. The synthetic ferocity had instantly become such a farce that it wasn't worth continuing.

A Silly Dogma

The normal soldier does not truly hate the man in the enemy trench who is trying to kill him as a matter of duty and by command. Only the stay-at-home directors do that.

The argument against a Christmas truce is that it may make the troops less frightful afterward. That is silly dogma. Troops, when permitted, have always fraternized in lulls. There is a spring on the field at Gettysburg where, by common consent and without injury, in the hottest of the fight, water carriers from both sides came to fill canteens and razz each other about the progress of the battle.

The Germans Care

Hitler may not care anything about Christmas but the German people do. As we know it, they invented most of it—sparkling trees, toys and the gentle generous customs of gifts and good-will.

There wouldn't have to be any "fraternizing" for the purpose of cessation of slaughter in a short season when, if ever, according to our religion, there should be peace on earth and good will toward men. The peace might be only momentary. There might be no good will among the opposing statesmen and nations. But as between the poor devils who do the fighting and dying on the battle lines, good will is never far away.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Morning Motto

To behold is not necessarily to observe, and the power of comparing and combining is only to be obtained by education. It is much to be regretted that habits of exact observation are not cultivated in our school; to this deficiency may be traced much of the fallacious reasoning and the false philosophy which prevails.—W. Humboldt.

Curls for the Asking

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE WAS a time when naturally curly hair was a priceless blessing. Now the permanent wave has reached such a degree of perfection that you can't tell the hard-boiled wave from the genuine article. Many girls with the natural undulation found that the lovely lines disappeared as they got older. That was because the wave lines weren't coaxed along as they should be, or the carelessly-done shampoo left soap deposits in the hair.

Some natural waves are frizzy and unmanageable. Give such heads a finger wave and in no time at all the pattern disappears and there's the same fuzzy old crimp again. Brilliantine should be used freely to make the shafts relax. It should be used before the setting lotion is applied. And the wave should be put to bed in a cap every night, no water used when the hair is dressed.

Some hair dyes will destroy the natural wave. They coat the shafts, as with paint, and the silky threads lose their coil quality. Even though one has been kissed by one's fairy godmother and been given ringlets, one must do everything possible to keep the hair healthy and clean so the blessing will not disappear.

Not on Invitations

The bridegroom's parents are invited to be honored guests at the son's wedding, but their names are never put on the invitations, and they have little to do with the average wedding except to be present and to stand with the bride's parents at the reception, if there is one.

Should Remain Seated

The host who carves the meat at a dinner with guests, should, if possible, remain seated while he carves and serves. If he is unusually short and the roast or fowl very large, he may stand while carving.

Carve for All

In carving the meat at a guest dinner, the host should carve enough meat to serve the entire company before he starts serving anyone.

Men Not Expected

Men never are invited to bridal showers, not even the bridegroom. The boys may come later, however, possibly to eat, and surely to see the girls home.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Fabienne finds herself anticipating her next meeting at the settlement house with Dr. Mallory.

CHAPTER NINE

FABIENNE WAS having a bath and trying to enjoy it when the telephone rang. It was the kind of bath that should bring a girl to her senses. It was foaming and fragrant with bath salts that had cost as much as a poor doctor's wife pays for six pairs of stockings. There was a rubber pillow at the head of the tub and great, fluffy towels warming for her. Outside it was sleeting and the wind howled across the park. But in that room it was warm and luxurious and bright with lights.

The wife of a poor doctor would live in a walk-up and be lucky to have a cake of soap, she told herself angrily, and picked up the phone.

Camilla Morse was at the other end of the wire.

"Hello, darling. . . . Will you serve on my committee for the Velvet ball?" she wanted to know.

"No." Fabienne bit off the word. "How many times have I told you, Camilla, that I simply won't serve on ANY committees."

"But, darling, I thought since you'd got so charitable, doing all that settlement work and that . . . why . . . I . . ."

"I'm fed to the teeth with charitable work, Cam. Sorry."

"But, look, darling, we never see you. What about dinner a week from Thursday? I've a fascinating man who wants to meet you."

Fabienne said, "Hold the wire." She hugged her woolly robe closer to her wet figure and stretched across the bed to reach her engagement pad. She thumbed through it hastily and picked up the telephone:

"Can't make it then, Camilla. I'm booked solid for two weeks."

"Anything exciting?"

"Terribly," Fabienne said bitterly. "Theater tonight. Marcia's dinner tomorrow night. Ned Webster's opening the next night. The hockey game at the Garden the next night. The Grainger's shindig the next. Shall I go on? It's all pretty much the same."

She could hear Camilla gasp at the other end. "How do you do it? Ye gods, Fab, why do you persist in doing the Big Sister act for eight hours a day? I'm dead if I stay up until midnight, and I hear you're doing the town up night after night."

Fabienne smiled wryly. "I'm unique," she said. She might have said she was desperate.

She might have said that she had to go out where there were lights—bright lights and music—loud music—and people and more people, so that she wouldn't think, so that she could sleep when she got home.

It was true that she was unhappy, but it was also true that Fabienne had brains and u them.

It was not thwarted love that made her mentally ill; it was disappointment and frustration. For the first time in her life she had seen something that she thought she wanted and found she couldn't have, and she was wise enough to call it frustration and only that. She was not sick with the pangs of love at all. It was true, and she knew it. But she knew, as well, that with the abrupt end of her anticipation the flavor of life had grown tasteless. The meaning of days was gone when she compared these days since the night that Ellen Chapman had tucked her elbow into Bill Mallory's—Dr. J. W. Mallory's.

Now, because she had known something else briefly, she knew boredom for what it was.

The night Ned Webster's club opened and Rose O'Day took New York by storm with her torch singing, Fabienne was there with Ken Hemingway.

Rose O'Day had magic in her voice and she was singing from her heart. Her voice was like a palpitating heart held in your hand.

The mask was off Fabienne's cool face as she listened.

Ken said softly, "I give up."

Fabienne drew her brows together questioningly.

"Some other guy has got your heart. It's all over your face, baby. Who's the lucky guy?"

It was Rose O'Day's singing that did it. She played on Fabienne's emotions. Fabienne bubbled over. At least it was bubbling over for Fabienne. She said, "I met that man that a girl meets once in a lifetime—or, at least, he looked like that kind of a man—but when I went to collect him, I found I'd be poaching."

"Married?"

She shook her head.

"Engaged?"

"I don't think so."

"Then what's stopping you? All's fair in love and—"

She stopped him. "There's no use talking about it. It's just out as far as I'm concerned." There was no point in trying to tell Ken why she couldn't cut in on Ellen. She didn't know why exactly herself. Other girls she had known were not above pirating when it came to men, but Ellen wasn't like any other girl she had known. Ellen had offered her real friendship. It was more than that. Ellen gave her something to live up to, demanded as much as she gave. Ellen would never do that to her. Fabienne had her code, too. She played opponents' rules in fair games.

She said, "Forget it, Ken. I'm not really in love. I haven't had a chance to be. I'm the kid who wanted a doll that Santa Claus brought to another kid."

"What's he like?"

That was bad stuff. She couldn't tell him what Bill Mallory was like. She didn't know. All she had had to go on was her instinct. She couldn't say, "Oh, he's a doctor and he's handsome and I wanted him to take me in his arms because I know that life could hold nothing else like it."

So she said, "He's poor and he sings in a church choir."

Ken said, "My God! And you a sybarite! Well, if it isn't love that's getting you thin around the edges, it must be work. Why don't you give it up for a while?"

She hadn't thought of that. She'd only thought how long the days and nights were, and that every week she'd have to arrange her schedule to be away from Willoughby house when Bill Mallory was to be at the clinic, that she was finding it more and more difficult to evade Ellen Chapman's invitations. They had spent a great many evenings together in the three months she had been at the settlement house.

Three months! Her three months were up, she realized suddenly.

The next day she made two long distance calls: One to Nicky to ask him if it was gay in Maryland, and the other to her Uncle Mark to say that she was coming down.

To Ellen Chapman she said, "Well, Ellen, have I or haven't I lived up to what you expected of me?"

Ellen said, "You have, and I expected a lot, Fab. You've done wonderful work here and the girls adore you."

Fabienne looked brittle and gay and impervious to flattery. She said, "I always live up to my bargains. It's been three months. Remember?"

"It's gone quickly," Ellen said, perplexity in her eyes.

"Sometimes. Not always. But it has been interesting and I'll always remember you, Ellen."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm leaving," Fabienne said, as if she expected the other girl to understand. "I said I'd work for three months, now I'm through. I'm leaving for Maryland Saturday."

"Fabienne!" Fabienne wished that Ellen wouldn't look as if she were hurt. "But what about the children's play? You can't just leave things in mid-air."

"Sorry. They can do the play without me. Goodby, Ellen."

The two girls shook hands, but Ellen would not say goodby.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE WAS a time when naturally curly hair was a priceless blessing. Now the permanent wave has reached such a degree of perfection that you can't tell the hard-boiled wave from the genuine article. Many girls with the natural undulation found that the lovely lines disappeared as they got older. That was because the wave lines weren't coaxed along as they should be, or the carelessly-done shampoo left soap deposits in the hair.

Some natural waves are frizzy and unmanageable. Give such heads a finger wave and in no time at all the pattern disappears and there's the same fuzzy old crimp again. Brilliantine should be used freely to make the shafts relax. It should be used before the setting lotion is applied. And the wave should be put to bed in a cap every night, no water used when the hair is dressed.

Some hair dyes will destroy the natural wave. They coat the shafts, as with paint, and the silky threads lose their coil quality. Even though one has been kissed by one's fairy godmother and been given ringlets, one must do everything possible to keep the hair healthy and clean so the blessing will not disappear.

When creaming the face include the ears, working especially on the top of the shell and on the lobe. A brisk massage is helpful because ears are inclined to be pale and wax-like, in strong contrast to the complexion that is brightened with the lipstick. A touch of rouge on the lobe makes ears look interesting. Now that they are out in the open, they must have beauty attentions.

KEEP AN EYE ON EARLOBES

What about your earlobes, lady? Better watch 'em. As the years dance along, lobes and the tissues in front of them may fall into fine lines. Not nice a bit, that state of affairs.

Not on Invitations

The bridegroom's parents are invited to be honored guests at the son's wedding, but their names are never put on the invitations, and they have little to do with the average wedding except to be present and to stand with the bride's parents at the reception, if there is one.

Should Remain Seated

The host who carves the meat at a dinner with guests, should, if possible, remain seated while he carves and serves. If he is unusually short and the roast or fowl very large, he may stand while carving.

Carve for All

In carving the meat at a guest dinner, the host should carve enough meat to serve the entire company before he starts serving anyone.

Men Not Expected

Men never are invited to bridal showers, not even the bridegroom. The boys may come later, however, possibly to eat, and surely to see the girls home.

WIFE PRESERVERS

One family has found that dampened sandpaper will remove dog hairs and lint from auto seats. Damp sandpaper will mat and roll up lint or dog hairs so that they may be easily removed from the upholstery.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

"Forget it, Ken. I'm not really in love," she told him.

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

CHAPTER NINE

FABIENNE WAS having a bath and trying to enjoy it when the telephone rang. It was the kind of bath that should bring a girl to her senses. It was foaming and fragrant with bath salts that had cost as much as a poor doctor's wife pays for six pairs of stockings. There was a rubber pillow at the head of the tub and great, fluffy towels warming for her. Outside it was sleeting and the wind howled across the park. But in that room it was warm and luxurious and bright with lights.

The wife of a poor doctor would live in a walk-up and be lucky to have a cake of soap, she told herself angrily, and picked up the phone.

Camilla Morse was at the other end of the wire.

"Hello, darling. . . . Will you serve on my committee for the Velvet ball?" she wanted to know.

"No." Fabienne bit off the word. "How many times have I told you, Camilla, that I simply won't serve on ANY committees."

"But, darling, I thought since you'd got so charitable, doing all that settlement work and that . . . why . . . I . . ."

"I'm fed to the teeth with charitable work, Cam. Sorry."

"But, look, darling, we never see you. What about dinner a week from Thursday? I've a fascinating man who wants to meet you."

Fabienne said, "Hold the wire."

She hugged her woolly robe closer to her wet figure and stretched across the bed to reach her engagement pad. She thumbed through it hastily and picked up the telephone:

"Can't make it then, Camilla. I'm booked solid for two weeks."

"Anything exciting?"

"Terribly," Fabienne said bitterly. "Theater tonight. Marcia's dinner tomorrow night. Ned Webster's opening the next night. The hockey game at the Garden the next night. The Grainger's shindig the next. Shall I go on? It's all pretty much the same."

She could hear Camilla gasp at the other end. "How do you do it? Ye gods, Fab, why do you persist in doing the Big Sister act for eight hours a day? I'm dead if I stay up until midnight, and I hear you're doing the town up night after night."

Fabienne smiled wryly. "I'm unique," she said. She might have said she was desperate.

She might have said that she had to go out where there were lights—bright lights and music—loud music—and people and more people, so that she wouldn't think, so that she could sleep when she got home.

It was true that she was unhappy, but it was also true that Fabienne had brains and u them.

It was not thwarted love that made her mentally ill; it was disappointment and frustration. For the first time in her life she had seen something that she thought she wanted and found she couldn't have, and she was wise enough to call it frustration and only that. She was not sick with the pangs of love at all. It was true, and she knew it. But she knew, as well, that with the abrupt end of her anticipation the flavor of life had grown tasteless. The meaning of days was gone when she compared these days since the night that Ellen Chapman had tucked her elbow into Bill Mallory's—Dr. J. W. Mallory's.

Now, because she had known something else briefly, she knew boredom for what it was.

The night Ned Webster's club opened and Rose O'Day took New York by storm with her torch singing, Fabienne was there with Ken Hemingway.

Rose O'Day had magic in her voice and she was singing from her heart. Her voice was like a palpitating heart held in your hand.

The mask was off Fabienne's cool face as she listened.

Ken said softly, "I give up."

Fabienne drew her brows together questioningly.

"Some other guy has got your heart. It's all over your face, baby. Who's the lucky guy?"

It was Rose O'Day's singing that did it. She played on Fabienne's emotions. Fabienne bubbled over. At least it was bubbling over for Fabienne. She said, "I met that man that a girl meets once in a lifetime—or, at least, he looked like that kind of a man—but when I went to collect him, I found I'd be poaching."

"Married?"

She shook her head.

"Engaged?"

"I don't think so."

"Then what's stopping you? All's fair in love and—"

She stopped him. "There's no use talking about it. It's just out as far as I'm concerned." There was no point in trying to tell Ken why she couldn't cut in on Ellen. At Annapolis, Governor O'Conor said the Amish had "my absolute assurance of a chance to practice their religious beliefs with utmost freedom" and would be protected in their task of building a new community for themselves.

"I understand that they were particularly annoyed in Pennsylvania by certain school regulations," the governor said. "This will not be so here. After the seventh grade, their children will be free to till the soil as their fine tradition dictates."

denied admittance because they had no Dodge workers' badges; another eighteen who entered were later sent home when it was found they never had worked at the plant.

Police had massed at the plant after R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO president, charged that a "back-to-work movement of negro laborers" was being organized and expressed fear that rioting might result. Eight persons were injured last Friday when fifty-seven workers passed the picket line under a barrage of bricks.

"There was no riot this morning, and there will not be any if you and your union obey the law," Keller told Thomas in a telegram today. "We plan to keep all plants open to employes for whom we can provide work, notwithstanding your efforts to keep them out."

Closing of the Dodge plant on Oct. 6, has made it impossible for Chrysler Corporation to maintain its production of 1940 model automobiles.

May Clarify Views

Murray, entering the engotiations today for the first time, was expected to clarify the status of the CIO united foremen and sujervisors' union. When this union's Dodge local last week requested a bargaining conference, the corporation charged that the CIO was "trying to sit on both sides of the conference table" and said it would not sign any agreement with the UAW-CIO until there was assurance that the foremen's demand would not be repeated.

Governor Luren D. Dickinson, replying at Lansing today to a demand by Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich) that he intervene in the dispute, said:

"We can't compel the management to run a plant if they refuse to do so; neither can we compel workers to go back to work. Anything else would be slavery."

Hoffman had written to the Republican governor that "if, in addition to your request for prayers, you would enforce th elaws of the land, as it is your duty and as it is within your power to do, xxx the Chrysler strike would settle itself."

Practice Makes Perfect, True in Murder Case

Philadelphia, Nov. 27. (AP)—A fourth victim died tonight from a shooting spree police blamed on an estranged husband who practiced marksmanship two months, then tip-toed into his wife's home with a pistol in one hand and a hammer clutched in the other.

Shots that broke the pre-dawn quiet killed the husband, Stanley Krygier, 30, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine Nieckoski, 45, and her 17-year-old daughter, Florence.

Krygier's 22-year-old wife, Regina died later.

Detective Peter McCormick said Krygier, angered by disputes over whether he and his bride should live with her parents, shot the others, then beat his wife with a hammer as she clung to the edge of a roof to which she plunged through a window to escape. Her father, Felix, 54, escaped—wounded badly—by sliding from a window down a rope of bedclothing.

Gets $10,000,000 On Her Birthday

Frances Dodge Johnson Comes into Gigantic Fortune

Detroit, Nov. 27 (AP)—Frances Dodge Johnson, accustomed to spend $25,000 a year for clothes and $100,000 to maintain an extensive stable of blue-ribbon horses, was richer by some $10,000,000 in her own name tonight.

Twenty-five years old today, the young heiress to one of the nation's first automotive fortunes came into control, by terms of her father's will, of her share of his estate.

She was only 7 when John F. Dodge, one of two brothers who accumulated millions in the automobile industry and gave their name to a car still being manufactured, died. His will provided for a trust fund of $40,000,000 for four of his children.

Income from the estate has paid for the education and upbringing of Frances Dodge, once known as Detroit's "number one glamour girl." Accountings of the funds, reported on court by the executors, revealed the amount and purpose of her expenditures on clothes and horses.

She was married in July, 1938, to James B. Johnson, Jr., of Elizabeth, N. J., and Detroit.

An accounting of the trust funds on Dec. 31, 1938 showed assets totaling $38,891,517 and income during 1938 of $1,356,109.37.

Those for whom the trust was set up also included Mrs. Johnson's two sisters, Mrs. Winifred Seyburn and Mrs. Isabel Sloan, and a brother, the late Daniel G. Dodge.

Sings Way Out of Court

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 27 (AP)—Phillip Rulze, 22, hitch hiking Los Angeles troubador, sang himself out of a jam today.

Booked for vagrancy, Ruize remonstrated in Municipal Judge Dennis O'Brien court that he really was enroute to New York for a radio (Major Bowes) tryout.

He sang "South of the Border" to a packed court room.

Defense Rests in Lindbergh Law Case

Elkins, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP) — Unexpectedly resting their case without ofering a witness, defense counsel for three Steubenville, Ohio, men on trial charged with violating the Lindbergh kidnaping act by transporting a woman from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Steubenville, O., asked a directed verdict of acquittal late today in federal court.

Judge William E. Baker took the motion under consideration and recessed court until tomorrow.

The accused are Rinaldo Debutch, John Edward Foster and Richard Hall. A fourth defendant, Harold Custer, of Weirton, W. Va., pleaded guilty when arraigned.

The sudden defense motion came after the government's star witness, Charlotte Mull, 29-year old blonde, testified she had been forcibly taken from a house in Parkersburg to Steubenville on the night of August 19.

"A gun was stuck in my chest and a knife in my side by Debutch on the trip," the woman asserted.

She said Hall and Foster were in the automobile with Debutch.

Finance Chairman Urges Raise of U. S. Debt Limit

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 27 (AP) — The $45,000,000,000 debt limit of the United States government will have to be raised, Ellsworth C. Alvord, former special assistant to the secretary of the treasury under the late Andrew W. Mellon, said in an address today before a regional conference of the southeastern division of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"You need not worry about what would happen (if the debt limit were not lifted)," he said. "The limit will simply have to be increased."

Alvord, now a Washington attorney, is chairman of the committee on federal finance of the U. S. chamber.

Admiralty Tells

the whole ship except the forecastle and the poop was ablaze."

For 30 or 40 minutes the combat continued before the German raiders ceased firing.

The British said three boats were lowered, loaded with more than 30 men. Two were believed to have been picked up by one of the German ships. previous accounts said only 17 crewmen were rescued.

For about four hours, the admiralty account said, the Rawalpindi burned amidship and then she "turned turtle to starboard and foundered with all remaining hands."

It was believed the three lifeboats lowered were the only ones not shattered by shellfire.

Netherlands Freighter Sinks

The day's shipping losses included a 8,859-ton Netherlands freighter, a German steamer in the hands of a British prize crew, a British freighter, and damage to a British tanker. At least nine persons were reported killed.

An elderly American woman and four seamen were killed when the Holland-Amerika freighter Spaarhdam sank after striking a mine in the Thames estuary below London.

(Officials of the nine at Rotterdam identified the woman as Mrs. Stephen Gobel. Her American address was not announced.)

It was reported that other members of the crew of about 40 were rescued by a pilot cutter.

The 5,144-ton Houder line freighter Royston Grange sank in the Atlantic but all members of her crew were reported saved.

A German submarine destroyed the North German Lloyd 3,670-ton steamer Borkum as she was being taken to port by a British prize crew. A communique said four Germans were killed in the combat but that the prize crew suffered no losses. The anouncements said the vessel was 'abandoned and driven ashore."

Another German freighter, the 4,458-ton Konsul Hendrik Fisser was brought safely to port, the admiralty said.

The 10,525-ton British tanker James J. Maguire also was reported damaged by a mine last Thursday but the press association said she reached her anchor safely the next day.

'Donald Duck' Not a Fable

Philadelphia, Nov. 27 (AP)—Police had "Donald Duck" tonight but they needed his mother more.

The three-year old blonde fellow was strolling along a railway track pushing a doll carriage.

Justice Hits Bump In The Path of Progress

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — An automobile driven by Supreme Court Justice James C. McReynolds struck the guy wire of a telephone pole today but the 77-year old jurist escaped unhurt and undaunted.

"I feel quite chipper," he told a reporter who telephoned his home to ask whether he had been injured.

The accident occurred near the southeastern edge of Washington, police said, when a bump in the roadway caused the justice's car to swerve and strike the wire.

Shots that broke the pre-dawn quiet killed the husband, Stanley Krygier, 30, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine Nieckoski, 45, and her 17-year-old daughter, Florence.

Krygier's 22-year-old wife, Regina died later.

Detective Peter McCormick said Krygier, angered by disputes over whether he and his bride should live with her parents, shot the others, then beat his wife with a hammer as she clung to the edge of a roof to which she plunged through a window to escape. Her father, Felix, 54, escaped—wounded badly—by sliding from a window down a rope of bedclothing.

Gets $10,000,000 On Her Birthday

Frances Dodge Johnson Comes into Gigantic Fortune

Detroit, Nov. 27 (AP)—Frances Dodge Johnson, accustomed to spend $25,000 a year for clothes and $100,000 to maintain an extensive stable of blue-ribbon horses, was richer by some $10,000,000 in her own name tonight.

Twenty-five years old today, the young heiress to one of the nation's first automotive fortunes came into control, by terms of her father's will, of her share of his estate.

She was only 7 when John F. Dodge, one of two brothers who accumulated millions in the automobile industry and gave their name to a car still being manufactured, died. His will provided for a trust fund of $40,000,000 for four of his children.

Income from the estate has paid for the education and upbringing of Frances Dodge, once known as Detroit's "number one glamour girl." Accountings of the funds, reported on court by the executors, revealed the amount and purpose of her expenditures on clothes and horses.

She was married in July, 1938, to James B. Johnson, Jr., of Elizabeth, N. J., and Detroit.

An accounting of the trust funds on Dec. 31, 1938 showed assets totaling $38,891,517 and income during 1938 of $1,356,109.37.

Those for whom the trust was set up also included Mrs. Johnson's two sisters, Mrs. Winifred Seyburn and Mrs. Isabel Sloan, and a brother, the late Daniel G. Dodge.

Sings Way Out of Court

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 27 (AP)—Phillip Ruize, 22, hitch hiking Los Angeles troubador, sang himself out of a jam today.

Booked for vagrancy, Ruize remonstrated in Municipal Judge Dennis O'Brien court that he really was enroute to New York for a radio (Major Bowes) tryout.

He sang "South of the Border" to a packed court room.

Defense Rests in Lindbergh Law Case

Elkins, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP) — Unexpectedly resting their case without ofering a witness, defense counsel for three Steubenville, Ohio, men on trial charged with violating the Lindbergh kidnaping act by transporting a woman from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Steubenville, O., asked a directed verdict of acquittal late today in federal court.

Judge William E. Baker took the motion under consideration and recessed court until tomorrow.

The accused are Rinaldo Debutch, John Edward Foster and Richard Hall. A fourth defendant, Harold Custer, of Weirton, W. Va., pleaded guilty when arraigned.

The sudden defense motion came after the government's star witness, Charlotte Mull, 29-year old blonde, testified she had been forcibly taken from a house in Parkersburg to Steubenville on the night of August 19.

"A gun was stuck in my chest and a knife in my side by Debutch on the trip," the woman asserted.

She said Hall and Foster were in the automobile with Debutch.

Finance Chairman Urges Raise of U. S. Debt Limit

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 27 (AP) — The $45,000,000,000 debt limit of the United States government will have to be raised, Ellsworth C. Alvord, former special assistant to the secretary of the treasury under the late Andrew W. Mellon, said in an address today before a regional conference of the southeastern division of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"You need not worry about what would happen (if the debt limit were not lifted)," he said. "The limit will simply have to be increased."

Alvord, now a Washington attorney, is chairman of the committee on federal finance of the U. S. chamber.

Admiralty Tells

the whole ship except the forecastle and the poop was ablaze."

For 30 or 40 minutes the combat continued before the German raiders ceased firing.

The British said three boats were lowered, loaded with more than 30 men. Two were believed to have been picked up by one of the German ships, previous accounts said only 17 crewmen were rescued.

For about four hours, the admiralty account said, the Rawalpindi burned amidship and then she "turned turtle to starboard and foundered with all remaining hands."

It was believed the three lifeboats lowered were the only ones not shattered by shellfire.

Netherlands Freighter Sinks

The day's shipping losses included a 8,859-ton Netherlands freighter, a German steamer in the hands of a British prize crew, a British freighter, and damage to a British tanker. At least nine persons were reported killed.

An elderly American woman and four seamen were killed when the Holland-Amerika freighter Spaarhdam sank after striking a mine in the Thames estuary below London.

(Officials of the nine at Rotterdam identified the woman as Mrs. Stephen Gobel. Her American address was not announced.)

It was reported that other members of the crew of about 40 were rescued by a pilot cutter.

The 5,144-ton Houder line freighter Royston Grange sank in the Atlantic but all members of her crew were reported saved.

A German submarine destroyed the North German Lloyd 3,670-ton steamer Borkum as she was being taken to port by a British prize crew. A communique said four Germans were killed in the combat but that the prize crew suffered no losses. The anouncements said the vessel was 'abandoned and driven ashore."

Another German freighter, the 4,458-ton Konsul Hendrik Fisser was brought safely to port, the admiralty said.

The 10,525-ton British tanker James J. Maguire also was reported damaged by a mine last Thursday but the press association said she reached her anchor safely the next day.

'Donald Duck' Not a Fable

Philadelphia, Nov. 27 (AP)—Police had "Donald Duck" tonight but they needed his mother more.

The three-year old blonde fellow was strolling along a railway track pushing a doll carriage.

Justice Hits Bump In The Path of Progress

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP) — An automobile driven by Supreme Court Justice James C. McReynolds struck the guy wire of a telephone pole today but the 77-year old jurist escaped unhurt and undaunted.

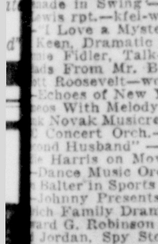

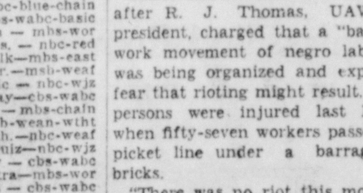

"I feel quite chipper," he told a reporter who telephoned his home to ask whether he had been injured.

The accident occurred near the southeastern edge of Washington, police said, when a bump in the roadway caused the justice's car to swerve and strike the wire.

War Aims of Allies and Germany Indicate Combat May be Long One

Nazis Have Two-to-One Superiority In Air Strength

By HERBERT B. MAYER
Lieutenant, Infantry Reserve
Written for Central Press and The Cumberland News

From the start, lack of major combat in the European war has been widely accepted as either calm before a storm or an indication of early peace.

German activities and threats continue to convey the idea that major stroke is impending. This may be part of the "war of nerves" or the raids and tensions may be designed to inspire so many false alarms that vigilance will relax and a real blitzkrieg be delivered with all the force of surprise.

Insofar as peace is concerned, although powerful forces are undoubtedly working to that end, we have contrary evidence from the statement of war aims of the combatants.

England and France have stated their intention to destroy Hitlerism, to force reorganization of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria. On the other hand, Hilter has announced his intention to destroy the supremacy of the British empire."

War May Be Long One

If there is no relaxation or compromise on these intentions it is obvious that this war is going to be a long one unless Hitler can find some means to force his foes to surrender.

In any case, the lull in operations gives us an opportunity to analyze operations of these last three months, as a basis for an estimate of the general situation—a reckoning of undisputed facts not colored by prejudice.

It has become obvious the war is being fought in three major fields, economic, political and military. What has been the losses and the gains? What significant changes have occurred as to which there can be no dispute?

First, giving it place it has had hitherto in war, let us consider military operations, including air and naval activities.

At the opening of hostilities, the Polish army consisted of 1,000,000 men and 1,000 airplanes with pilots—a potential eastern front. In the World war a Belgian army of 200,000—but far better situated—took on the first brunt of the German assault, gave the Allies an opportunity to mobilize and attack.

Successful Blitzkrieg

But in one month this entire Polish force was destroyed, or put out of action. With the success of the German blitzkrieg, Germany no longer had to divide her land forces, but could face the Maginot line with her full power.

Today—and the basis for these figures is "World in Arms," by Major R. Ernest Dupuy, U. S. A., and from official papers—a German army of around 3,000,000 confronts a British-French force of half that number.

There have been many reasons given for failure of the British and French to assist Poland by air. Belated admissions as to aerial strength give the real clue. The Germans have about 15,000 planes—almost two to one against Allied strength—and a production rate of around 2,500 a month. This is far greater than Allied production, even reinforced by our own manufacture in their behalf.

Conclusions: Germany's strength on air and land is far greater than that of the Allies and it explains lack of Allied action in air and on the ground in Poland and elsewhere.

At sea, the situation is different. At the start of the war Germany had a mercantile fleet of 2,328 ships. Insofar as world commerce is concerned this has been swept from the sea.

During 1936 there were 93,932 ship visits to German ports, with 44,458,438 tons, according to Statesmen's Year Book. Now this life-giving commerce has been choked off from all seas but the Baltic.

Disarrangement of German economic life as a result is indicated by ration and clothing restrictions.

All told, at the start of the war the total ships under the British flag were 35,038. As compared to the loss from use of the entire German mercantile marine, the British losses due to submarines are almost negligible.

By his Polish campaign Hitler gained the corridor and Danzig. Through the British blockade he has lost access to the most profitable world market, including Great Britain, up to the war his best customer. Seen in such a light, the blockade must be reckoned as equivalent to many land victories.

Germany's Overland Trade

Overland Germany can still trade with Russia, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. But the resources of Egypt, Turkey, much of Asia and Africa are closed to her.

In this connection a most significant statement was made by Ronald H. Cross, director of economic warfare for Great Britain, on Nov. 12, after denying the intention of the blockade was to starve German women and children—a charge made by both Russia and Germany.

"Neutrals should understand that there is no attempt to interfere with their own trade any more than is necessary," said Cross. "We make no effort to block off cargoes that represent only the requirements for the internal consumption of the neutrals. We know pretty well what their normal trade with Germany is and it would be doubtful how effective any interference with it would be because fear of Germany is so great among neutral countries that they are naturally opposed to reducing their supplies to Germany below normal.

"No matter how big an effort we make to cut off the land shipments from neutrals to Germany by offering better prices and more attractice terms, there is no pressure that we could or would bring to equal that of the armed forces of Germany."

Conclusions: The British-French sea power is so overwhelming that except from Russia, Germany's imports are limited to peacetime standards from the countries with which she can still trade. She has lost her mercantile world trade. The front doors are closed. The back doors are ajar. History records that no nation successfully blockaded has won a war. Germany must break this blockade or lose.

The most important field of all, since it affects all naval and military considerations alike, is the political-economic arena from which one objective cannot be disassociated from another.

By her non-aggression pact with Russia, Germany scored a vital victory which can neither be minimized nor denied. First she did away with the possibility that Russia would constitute an eastern front.

From a military standpoint she did more. Russia, since time immemorial, has had her eyes on India. Kipling described the British view frequently, picturing Russia "streaming down from the north" and through the Khyber pass into Great Britain's principal source of wealth and power. Today Russia has large forces on the borders of Afghanistan and in Sinkiang, on India's northern border.

Whether this is significant or not, the fact remains that in her Baltic maneuvers Russia is organizing her defenses against the only point where she could be attacked from the sea. The only atagonist that could attack Russia from the sea is Great Britain.

Russia the Puzzle

Are these northern defenses being put in order with an intention to drive southward? Only time and the Kremlin will tell.

Politically and economically favorable has been the British-French pact with Turkey, robbing Germany of this customer, giving many advantages in relation to the Dardanelles—vital link in both Egyptian and Indian defenses, as well as the Suez canal.

Most important of all political-economic factors has been Italy. Indeed, a realistic view of Mussolini's neutrality shows it to favor both sides almost equally.

From the German standpoint he is keeping open the back door of the Mediterranean for supplies from Italy and other Balkan neutrals. From the Allied standpoint the favorable factor is that he has not entered the war on the side of Germany. In many respects Mussolini holds the key to the future developments. If Italy can be won to the Allied side, one of the most important remaining doors to Germany will be closed. On the other hand, he has in his power an opportunity to offer the German (and possibly Russian forces) a virtual highway to the British-French empire of the East.

Conclusions: The political-economic warfare at this stage affords neither a basis for factual speculation nor deduction.

ASTHMA

ASTHMA is one of the allergic diseases, caused from a sensitivity of the bronchial membranes to pollens, animal effluvia or protein. The tendency is INHERENT and the disease is not contagious. While rarely fatal, Asthma is most distressing, inconvenient and exhausting, and the attacks place an undue strain on the heart and nervous system.

Asthmatic patients' major difficulty is EXHALING. The lining of the bronchial system has become irritated, and nature is trying to clear the air-passages of accumulated mucous. When the bronchial tubes and air-cells become congested, the one passage for air to the lower part of the lungs must be cleared, hence the spasmodic action of the tubes designated as ASTHMA. Sometimes an enlarged thymus gland, tumors that press on the windpipe, or a bad heart cause symptoms that are mistaken for Asthma. In children, especially, ASTHMATIC attacks are often mistaken for croup or bronchial pneumonia.

Specialists and authorities on Asthma and the allied allergic diseases (hay fever, eczema, hives, migrant, and mucous colitis) advise locating the CAUSE of sensitivity, and treatment for immunization, and less time and expense on palliative reliefs.

War Aims of Allies and Germany Indicate Combat May be Long One

Nazis Have Two-to-One Superiority In Air Strength

By HERBERT B. MAYER
Lieutenant, Infantry Reserve
Written for Central Press and
The Cumberland News

From the start, lack of major combat in the European war has been widely accepted as either calm before a storm or an indication of early peace.

German activities and threats continue to convey the idea that a major stroke is impending. This may be part of the "war of nerves" or the raids and tensions may be designed to inspire so many false alarms that vigilance will relax and a real blitzkrieg be delivered with all the force of surprise.

Insofar as peace is concerned, although powerful forces are undoubtedly working to that end, we have contrary evidence from the statement of war aims of the combatants.

England and France have stated their intention to destroy Hitlerism, to force reorganization of Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria. On the other hand, Hilter has announced his intention to destroy the supremacy of the British empire."

War May Be Long One

If there is no relaxation or compromise on these intentions it is obvious that this war is going to be a long one unless Hitler can find some means to force his foes to surrender.

In any case, the lull in operations gives us an opportunity to analyze operations of these last three months, as a basis for an estimate of the general situation—a reckoning of undisputed facts not colored by prejudice.

It has become obvious the war is being fought in three major fields, economic, political and military. What has been the losses and the gains? What significant changes have occurred as to which there can be no dispute?

First, giving it place it has had hitherto in war, let us consider military operations, including air and naval activities.

At the opening of hostilities, the Polish army consisted of 1,000,000 men and 1,000 airplanes with pilots—a potential eastern front. In the World war a Belgian army of 200,000—but far better situated—took on the first brunt of the German assault, gave the Allies an opportunity to mobilize and attack.

Successful Blitzkrieg

But in one month this entire Polish force was destroyed, or put out of action. With the success of the German blitzkrieg, Germany no longer had to divide her land forces, but could face the Maginot line with her full power.

Today—and the basis for these figures is 'World in Arms," by Major R. Ernest Dupuy, U. S. A., and from official papers—a German army of around 3,000,000 confronts a British-French force of half that number.

There have been many reasons given for failure of the British and French to assist Poland by air. Belated admissions as to aerial strength give the real clue. The Germans have about 15,000 planes—almost two to one against Allied strength—and a production rate of around 2,500 a month. This is far greater than Allied production, even reinforced by our own manufacture in their behalf.

Conclusions: Germany's strength on air and land is far greater than that of the Allies and it explains lack of Allied action in air and on the ground in Poland and elsewhere.

At sea, the situation is different. At the start of the war Germany had a mercantile fleet of 2,328 ships. Insofar as world commerce is concerned this has been swept from the sea.

During 1936 there were 93,932 ship visits to German ports, with 44,458,438 tons, according to Statesmen's Year Book. Now this life-giving commerce has been choked off from all seas but the Baltic.

Disarrangement of German economic life as a result is indicated by ration and clothing restrictions.

All told, at the start of the war the total ships under the British flag were 35,038. As compared to the loss from use of the entire German mercantile marine, the British losses due to submarines are almost negligible.

By his Polish campaign Hitler gained the corridor and Danzig. Through the British blockade he has lost access to the most profitable world market, including Great Britain, up to the war his best customer. Seen in such a light, the blockade must be reckoned as equivalent to many land victories.

Germany's Overland Trade

Overland Germany can still trade with Russia, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. But the resources of Egypt, Turkey, much of Asia and Africa are closed to her.

In this connection a most significant statement was made by Ronald H. Cross, director of economic warfare for Great Britain, on Nov. 12, after denying the intention of the blockade was to starve German women and children—a charge made by both Russia and Germany.

"Neutrals should understand that there is no attempt to interfere with their own trade any more than is necessary," said Cross. "We make no effort to block off cargoes that represent only the requirements for the internal consumption of the neutrals. We know pretty well what their normal trade with Germany is and it would be doubtful how effective any interference with it would be because fear of Germany is so great among neutral countries that they are naturally opposed to reducing their supplies to Germany below normal.

"No matter how big an effort we make to cut off the land shipments from neutrals to Germany by offering better prices and more attractice terms, there is no pressure that we could or would bring to equal that of the armed forces of Germany."

Conclusions: The British-French sea power is so overwhelming that except from Russia, Germany's imports are limited to peacetime standards from the countries with which she can still trade. She has lost her mercantile world trade. The front doors are closed. The back doors are ajar. History records that no nation successfully blockaded has won a war. Germany must break this blockade or lose.

Blockade Has Driven Reich Out of Field of World Trade

The most important field of all, since it affects all naval and military considerations alike, is the political-economic arena from which one objective cannot be disassociated from another.

By her non-aggression pact with Russia, Germany scored a vital victory which can neither be minimized nor denied. First she did away with the possibility that Russia would constitute an eastern front.

From a military standpoint she did more. Russia, since time immemorial, has had her eyes on India. Kipling described the British view frequently, picturing Russia "streaming down from the north" and through the Khyber pass into Great Britain's principal source of wealth and power. Today Russia has large forces on the borders of Afghanistan and in Sinkiang, on India's northern border.

Whether this is significant or not, the fact remains that in her Baltic maneuvers Russia is organizing her defenses against the only point where she could be attacked from the sea. The only atagonist that could attack Russia from the sea is Great Britain.

Russia the Puzzle

Are these northern defenses being put in order with an intention to drive southward? Only time and the Kremlin will tell.

Politically and economically favorable has been the British-French pact with Turkey, robbing Germany of this customer, giving many advantages in relation to the Dardanelles—vital link in both Egyptian and Indian defenses, as well as the Suez canal.

Most important of all political-economic factors has been Italy. Indeed, a realistic view of Mussolini's neutrality shows it to favor both sides almost equally.

From the German standpoint he is keeping open the back door of the Mediterranean for supplies from Italy and other Balkan neutrals. From the Allied standpoint the favorable factor is that he has not entered the war on the side of Germany. In many respects Mussolini holds the key to the future developments. If Italy can be won to the Allied side, one of the most important remaining doors to Germany will be closed. On the other hand, he has in his power an opportunity to offer the German (and possibly Russian forces) a virtual highway to the British-French empire of the East.

Conclusions: The political-economic warfare at this stage affords neither a basis for factual speculation nor deduction.

Career Women Needen't Forfeit Love and Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A correspondent recently wrote that she wanted a career, but wasn't sure whether she could pay the price. Could I advise her?

This girl knows that she has executive ability. Her whole family has depended on her since childhood. People often have told her that she has originality and inventiveness. She did well in school. She knows that she could work her way up to an administrative position and make a success of it. And she longs to do this. But just as much or more she wants to retain all the femininity she has, to live a rich, satisfying woman's life.

And she has been told that she can't have both.

Oh yes, you can become a "woman executive," they've told her. But what an unnatural and undesirable thing to be! In the first place, they'll say, you'll find yourself dressing like a man, you'll be perpetually tailor-made. You'll shingle your hair without waving it, and you'll forget that fashion exists. So much for your appearance.

An Endless Round

As for your actual life, it will be an endless round of "conferences" and "deals", with some times a week-end alone in some dull country place to sleep it all off and then begin over again.

If all this were true, what woman would want a career, a big business success, however much money and reputation it might bring her?

But it isn't true. One of the women's magazines has just settled the matter by appealing to 37,000,000 American women. Inexperienced in business life as many of these women were, they had their wits about them. Two to one, they came out in favor of the business woman, insisting that she lost none of her feminine charm, forfeited none of the things dear to women.

As her sisters—thousands and millions of them—see her, the successful business woman is just as highly regarded by men, just as likely to have a lot of beaux and acquire a life interest in one of them, as if she were the silliest, prettiest little incompetent her home town ever produced.

Men Not Afraid

Are men afraid of successful women? Uncomfortable in talking to them? No, nothing of the sort, if the women are charming and attractive.

And a normal woman never becomes so absorbed in business projects that she forgets to choose becoming clothes for herself or neglects to attach to her curls precisely the little hat that is going to help her finish her complete conquest of the desirable man who has asked her out to dinner. She doesn't, of course, neglect her work for romance. But she sees to it that romance gets its innings. Nor is this difficult to do. For many men she has a glamor that the purely domestic girl can never have.

No Sacrifice Necessary

Therefore, according to this view—and it's the view of the great majority of our countrywomen—a girl need make no sacrifice when chosing a career. On the contrary, let her be as feminine as she pleases. Let her go in rather elaborately for clothes, if she likes them, and of course she does. Let her frequent the most expert beauty parlors. Let her have all the men friends she has time for, and dine or dance or go to the play with them every night of her life.

For there's nothing to prevent her marrying, is there? Nothing to prevent her having the happiest conceivable home life and a fine, bouncing baby now and then?

Men executives don't deny themselves love and marriage. Why should women? The answer is, of course that they don't. Which is all very natural and as it should be.

Uses 'Doodlebug' In Hunt for Gems

Hollywood, Nov. 27 (AP)—Defying the "curse of Juarez," Henry Jones propped up a "doodlebug" near the Hollywood Bowl today and began digging for $250,000 in jewels and gold bullion he believes may have been buried there 64 years ago.

Jones, a garage owner, with Ray Johnson, an assistant, drilled through the asphalt pavement of the open-air amphitheater's parking lot, then set to work upon the "hard pan" and gravel with pick and shovel.

Digging is Difficult

"It's harder digging than we thought it would be," said the sweating ones, a bit wearily. "According to the doodlebug, we'll have to go down at least twenty feet."

The doodlebug, a complicated device of wire and electrodes and dials, has a big needle which became violently agitated at the point where digging has begun.

Jones said his partner, Walter Combs, had withdrawn from the venture because of uneasiness over the curse of Juarez. According to Mexican legend, the curse has claimed the lives of "six or seven persons who tried to find the treasure."

The gold and jewels, Jones explained, were sent from Mexico to buy arms for Benito Juarez in the uprising against Maximilian, and were buried by one Diego Moreno after being removed from a hiding place near San Francisco.

Normal Students Will Run Fairmont a Day

Fairmont, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—Fairmont believes in giving the college student a chance, even to running the city government.

On December 4, elected and appointed officers will move out and their jobs will be filled for a day by members of the Fairmont State Teachers' College student body.

Last year the "student government" plan was extended into municipal circles for the first time, and officials thought the idea worth keeping.

Some twenty offices—four more than last year—will be filled by the students.

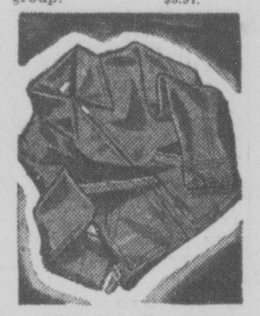

Members of the student council will take the major posts—m police chief, fire chief, city atto and so on through the lists.

In addition to the old ones, new jobs will be secretary of fly welfare, health officer, treas and assistant treasurer.

that Nu-BLUE SUNOCO equals or excels premium-priced gasolines,
in road performance!
Tested for more than 250,000 miles in actual road performance, not against ordinary gasolines, but against premium-priced gasolines by 1475 motorists in fourteen cities.
Recently, 1475 users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was really Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to the premium-priced gasolines in road performance.
To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.

Jones said his partner, Walter Combs, had withdrawn from the venture because of uneasiness over the curse of Juarez. According to Mexican legend, the curse has claimed the lives of "six or seven persons who tried to find the treasure."

The gold and jewels, Jones explained, were sent from Mexico to buy arms for Benito Juarez in the uprising against Maximilian, and were buried by one Diego Moreno after being removed from a hiding place near San Francisco.

Normal Students Will Run Fairmont a Day

Fairmont, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—Fairmont believes in giving the college student a chance, even to running the city government.

On December 4, elected and appointed officers will move out and their jobs will be filled for a day by members of the Fairmont State Teachers' College student body.

Last year the "student government" plan was extended into municipal circles for the first time, and officials thought the idea worth keeping.

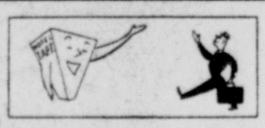

Some twenty offices—four more than last year—will be filled by the students.

Members of the student council will take the major posts—police chief, fire chief, city at and so on through the lists.

In addition to the old one new jobs will be secretary of fly welfare, health officer, tre and assistant treasurer.

From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco!

9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to the premium-priced gasolines in road performance.

Middies in Fine Shape Mentally for Army

Navy Men Think This Will Be "Their Year"

Half a Hundred Fighting Gridders Start Practice for Army

Midshipmen Not Discouraged Despite Five Losses and a Tie

Annapolis, Nov. 27 (AP)—If mental attitude means anything, the Army-Navy game is already stowed in the Navy seabag.

Half a hundred fighting gridders turned out today to prep for the annual war with the Cadets at Philadelphia Saturday, and their talk was all "when" we beat Army, with never an "if" to concede the result is even in doubt.

Despite five straight losses and a 0-0 tie, from mess attendant to admiral the Navy believes this is a Navy year—and only the Army game counts, anyway.

Season precedent was broken today when the regulars who took the pounding Saturday against Princeton—usually excused on after-game Mondays—were in suit to gain an extra day of practice.

Coach Swede Larson said some of the regulars, even before the order for practice today was posted, had asked to get out and get ready for the mule-skinners.

"Those boys aren't fooling," Larson said.

The "B" squad trotted out in Army uniforms today, each with the name of an Army regular blazoned across the chest.

The Middies clicked in the year's best workout as Larson drilled them against Cadet pass plays.

The stands were half full of Midshipmen watching practice and cheering. They began to troop in as soon as their drill period was over.

Larson said the spirit of the regiment of Mid-shipmen, resurgent and plugging for the squad despite the five losses, was "magnificent."

"The regiment's been rallying 'round ever since the going got tough," Larson said, "it's the old Navy gang again. Watch the boys come through for the regiment."

Armstrong-Ambers Fight May Again Be Postponed

New York, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Henry Armstrong Lou Ambers fight for the World Welterweight Championship, now scheduled for Friday night in Madison Square Garden, may be postponed again.

Armstrong, the champion, today told promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club that he had a cold. So the New York Athletic Commission sent three doctors to examine the husky colored fighter—and their findings will be announced tomorrow at noon by Commission Chairman John J. Phelan.

Originally billed for Nov. 1, it was put back to Dec. 1 when Ambers, then honeymooning, asked to be given a month more of training. Ambers took the lightweight title from Armstrong last August in their last meeting. The Lightweight title will not be at stake in this fight.

The fight between Ambers and Armstrong—the third the two have staged—may be arranged for Dec. 2, although Jacobs was not certain then it could go on, because of other engagements.

Indoor Golf School To Open Here Soon

An indoor winter golf school will be opened in Cumberland the latter part of this week or the first of next by Melvin "Buddy" Rice, pro at the Fort Cumberland Golf Club the past summer.

Rice will open the school in a temporary location, at 169 Baltimore street. He is busy now placing equipment and getting the room ready.

There will be a driving range and putting greens where golfers can practice. They can also obtain golf lessons, if they desire.

Golfers interested in the indoor school can obtain complete information from Mr. Rice. Season's memberships are available or practice can be arranged on an hourly basis.

All-American Red Heads Will Be Here Sunday

Girls' Basketball Team Will Be Second Foe of Collegians

The All-American Red Heads, world's champion girls' basketball team, termed "America's greatest drawing card" will be the opponents for the Cumberland Collegians here Sunday afternoon at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

In two seasons the Red Heads played before more than 400,000 spectators, and defeated approximately half of the men's teams they played. They have never been defeated by a girls' team. They can present an entire team of six footers.

Last season the girls played 185 games in 172 nights including thirteen doubleheaders, averaging more than one game a day. They won ninety-six and lost eighty-nine.

The Red Heads played the Collegians here last year losing to the locals thirty-six to twenty-eight in a fine game. The Red Heads were without doubt the most popular team to appear against the Collegians last season. They played a fine brand of ball, were fine sports and in Kay Kirkpatrick had one of the best shots ever seen in independent circles here. She averaged about ten foals a game last year and made nineteen field goals in one game. She is known as the "personality" girl.

The game will get under way at 3 o'clock with a preliminary starting at 2 p. m.

A feature at the game next Sunday and at all home games played by the Collegians will be the music of a ten piece band under the direction of Jack Sharrett.

Officials of the Collegians announced last night they had signed a contract with the famous Firestone team to appear here later in the season.

Startling Facts Bared By Our Football Poll

By JOHN LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

New York, Nov. 27.—This week's unassociated football poll shows that Tennessee has skyrocketed from sixteenth place to fourteenth by reason of its crushing victory over the unbeaten forces of no game scheduled, sometimes known as the invisible tide or the Ectoplasmic Eagles.

No game scheduled played an early-season tie with open date, but, outside of that, her record was clean as a daisy, up till the time she met Tennessee.

The Volunteers had too much reserve strength for the invisible tide. According to my scouts, Neyland's team pushed the Ectaplasmic Eagles up and down the field at will, and might have scored more often than it did.

476 Editors Tried to be Wrong

Thus the Vols fully deserve their sensational elevation from sixteenth to fourteenth place. Four hundred and seventy-six sports editors can't be wrong, though I admit they tried very hard this week. One sports editor tells me that Lardner's unassociated poll has made a new man of him, and even mentions the new man's name. Another has mastered the clarinet. A third has moved to a different neighborhood. A fifth was bitten by a copperhead. With men who know football best, it's Lardner's poll, eight and a half to five.

Cornell, by failing to score a field goal against Pennsylvania, falls from fifth place to twelfth, just below "I built a dream" on the hit parade.

Alabama casts twenty-four votes for Underwodo, apparently under the misapprehension that this is a typewriter poll.

Stanford, rolling up two touchdowns against California and keeping the Golden Bears bottled up in the Stanford end zone the rest of the day, can no longer be ignored. But the poll ignores her. With 476 sports editors, there is no such word as "impossible."

Missouri gets forty-one votes, but I don't know exactly for what, because the voters failed to say. Using the discretionary powers given me under the constitution, I would place her somewhere West of the Mississippi river, North of Arkansas.

Three sports editors in Maine tell me that Boston College is their favorite Southern team. Boston College is not a true Southern team, though I suppose it looks that way from Maine. However, they do plant a good deal of cotton around that part of the country, usually in their ears and I am going to let the result stand.

Southern California, missing one kick for point against Notre Dame, takes a humiliating tailspin into ninth place. Unless Howard Jones can develop a good point-kicker immediately, Southern Cal seems doomed.

Syracuse, which fooled the experts by playing Thursday instead of Saturday, seems to be on her way. This trick was borrowed by Ossie Solem from Pop Warner's Carlisle Indians, and is sure-fire. The Maryland team was caught completely off guard. When notified that Syracuse had started the game and was marching down the field, the Marylanders hastily boarded a special train and arrived just too late to block the touchdown which won the game.

Without further ado, we give you the unassociated football poll for this week:

Rice 321; U. S. Steel, 186¼; Kayak II, $11.90, $4.80; Centenary, 99; Normal, 98.6; Spearfish, 97.6 (one degree below normal); Tech, 72; State, 53; Vanderbilt, 3-9100 (information); Chicago, 0.

As an added feature of our poll this week, we ask the sports editors if they would go to the bowl if invited. The vote was as follows:

Previous engagement—203; engaged, but not planning to be married right away—75; married—195; Yes—3.

Those figures are not exceptional for this tome of year.

Will These Kentucky Wildcats Be Able To Halt Tennessee Nov. 30?

Will the Wildcats of the University of Kentucky be able to stop the onrushing Tennessee Volunteers in the hottest scrap of the "second" Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 30, at Lexington? Kentucky has a good team this year, having lost but one game and tied one. The game has been a sellout for weeks. Kentucky stars are shown above.

State Teachers Soccer Team To Play High Point

North Carolina Team Accepts Challenge for Post-season Game

Frostburg, Nov. 27—Frostburg State College's soccer challenge, carried recently in Eddie Brietz' Associated Press column, bore fruit over the weekend when a telegram sent by Allen Austin, graduate manager of athletics of High Point (N. C.) College, challenging the claimant to the Maryland collegiate title to a tussle, was received by Coach George "Gimp" Carrington.

After conferring with school officials and dickering for terms, Frostburg accepted. The game, an intersectional clash, will be played at High Point this Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Inasmuch as very little soccer is played south of the Carolinas, the tussle can be regarded as a "Soccer Bowl" game with the southern title resting on the outcome.

High Point recently finished an undefeated season and holds victories over such strong teams as Duke, Davidson and Seton Hall of New Jersey. Frostburg's record includes one setback but victories were recorded over Carnegie Tech, University of Maryland and University of Virginia.

Carrington has opened basketball practice in preparation for the opener, December 5, against Loyola at Baltimore but will take a day or two off for renewal of soccer drills. The squad will leave early Friday morning and return to Frostburg late Sunday night.

Dobson's Resignation Accepted by Board

College Park, Md., Nov. 27 (AP) Frank Dobson's resignation as head football coach at the University of Maryland was accepted by the Athletic Board today without comment as to his possible successor.

A brief announcement said merely that Dobson's resignation had been "officially accepted" and no indication was given as to when the board would convene again to discuss the vacancy. Rumors that Dick Haruow, Harvard coach, would succeed Dobson have been denied repeatedly.

Dobson's resignation, announced Friday night by Geary Eppley, Athletic Director, came at the end of a season in which Maryland won only two games and lost seven.

A former Princeton player, Dobson came to Maryland in 1935, after having coached at Georgia Tech, Georgia, Clemson and Richmond University. His coaching experience covers a span of thirty years.

Rooney Gets Offer To Transfer Bucs

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27. (AP) — Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Football League, said today he had been offered $50,000 "for a half interest to shift the team to Boston."

Rooney said Bill Sullivan, real estate man and former high school coach, "assured me he could produce $50,000 for a part interest if the deal materializes."

The Pirates' owner previously denied several reports he would sell the franchise. The Pirates won their first game in 17 starts yesterday, defeating the Philadelphia Eagles 24-12.

Paw Paw Court Team Will Play Alumni Thursday

Basketball Squad Appears To Be Stronger, Coach Swisher Reports

Paw Paw, W. Va., Nov. 27—Coach Arnet Swisher's Paw Paw High basketball aggregation, which is shaping up as stronger than last year's quintet, will open its campaign Thursday night by opposing a strong Alumni combination.

The Alumni will send such former Paw Paw High stars as Rockwell of last year's squad, Melvin Bohrer and June Lewis of the 1937-38 outfit and "Pud" McCoole of the former Tanner crew, against the schoolboys.

Coach Swisher has many lettermen and several others with experience to choose from. Back on the squad are Charles Roby, second in scoring last year although a guard; Raymond Robinson, a six-foot forward who also earned his letter; Forwards Paul Bohrer and Johnny Clark, both lettermen, and the veteran guard, Nelson Ambrose.

Francis Bohrer, who was ineligible last season, and Jack Arnica, who didn't compete last year after making the squad in 1937-38, are also seeking places. Both are over six feet tall with Bohrer a forward and Arnica a center.

Newcomers include Paul Leach, Warren Parr, William McCoole, Pete Guhr, Frank Rouzee, Joe Larkin and Jess Sherwood. Coach Swisher said the squad is above average height and appears to show more aggressiveness than last season's combination.

Ten other games have been arranged while contests are pending with Romney, Piedmont, Bruce, Beall, Hancock and Moorefield. The schedule follows:

Texas Crew Last Obstacle In Way Of Aggie Eleven

Unbeaten Texas A. and M. and Ancient Rival Will Meet Thursday

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 27. (AP)—Finally at the payoff, Texas A. and M., the nation's No. 1 football team, finds its mossy old rival of forty-five years cluttering the road to its first perfect season.

Next Thursday at Kyle Field, the Aggies must play the University of Texas and its boyish gang of thrill runners.

Nine smashing victories behind them—Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl and glory dangling just ahead — the roughhouse Aggies are on the verge of being the third Southwest Conference team in five years to finish out unbeaten. Crafty Southern Methodist did it in 1935 and went to the Rose Bowl. "Ill" Davey O'Brien and Texas Christian did it last year and punched Carnegie Tech in the Sugar Bowl.

Texas Has Youngsters

No more spectacular finish could be given the cadet march.

Not even this year could the Aggies be established favorites over the Texas Longhorns. Year after year its' anybody's game. Last season the Aggies were a two-touch down favorite over Texas. They lost—6 to 7, Texas gaining its only triumph after eight defeats.

Next Thursday the menace is even greater. On Texas' side are a couple of youngsters who know only one thing with a football tucked under their arm—get to that goal line. Cowboy Jack Crain and Billy Davis, the latter a wee 145-pounder who doesn't even wear shoulder pads, have skittered to 12 touchdowns.

The average distance of Crain's eight touchdowns is exactly 51 yards! Davis chipped in with runs

Armstrong-Ambers Fight May Again Be Postponed

New York, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Henry Armstrong Lou Ambers fight for the World Welterweight Championship, now scheduled for Friday night in Madison Square Garden, may be postponed again.

Armstrong, the champion, today told promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club that he had a cold. So the New York Athletic Commission sent three doctors to examine the husky colored fighter—and their findings will be announced tomorrow at noon by Commission Chairman John J. Phelan.

Originally billed for Nov. 1, it was put back to Dec. 1 when Ambers, then honeymooning, asked to be given a month more of training. Ambers took the lightweight title from Armstrong last August in their last meeting. The Lightweight title will not be at stake in this fight.

The fight between Ambers and Armstrong—the third the two have waged—may be arranged for Dec. 7, although Jacobs was not certain then it could go on, because of other engagements.

Indoor Golf School To Open Here Soon

An indoor winter golf school will be opened in Cumberland the latter part of this week or the first of next by Melvin "Buddy" Rice, pro at the Fort Cumberland Golf Club the past summer.

Rice will open the school in a temporary location, at 169 Baltimore street. He is busy now placing equipment and getting the room ready.

There will be a driving range and putting greens where golfers can practice. They can also obtain golf lessons, if they desire.

Golfers interested in the indoor school can obtain complete information from Mr. Rice. Season's memberships are available or practice can be arranged on an hourly basis.

All-American Red Heads Will Be Here Sunday

Girls' Basketball Team Will Be Second Foe of Collegians

The All-American Red Heads, world's champion girls' basketball team, termed "America's greatest drawing card" will be the opponents for the Cumberland Collegians here Sunday afternoon at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

In two seasons the Red Heads played before more than 400,000 spectators, and defeated approximately half of the men's teams they played. They have never been defeated by a girls' team. They can present an entire team of six footers.

Last season the girls played 185 games in 172 nights including thirteen doubleheaders, averaging more than one game a day. They won ninety-six and lost eighty-nine.

The Red Heads played the Collegians here last year losing to the locals thirty-six to twenty-eight in a fine game. The Red Heads were without doubt the most popular team to appear against the Collegians last season. They played a fine brand of ball, were fine sports and in Kay Kirkpatrick had one of the best shots ever seen in independent circles here. She averaged about ten foals a game last year and made nineteen field goals in one game. She is known as the "personality" girl.

The game will get under way at 3 o'clock with a preliminary starting at 2 p. m.

A feature at the game next Sunday and at all home games played by the Collegians will be the music of a ten piece band under the direction of Jack Sharrett.

Officials of the Collegians announced last night they had signed a contract with the famous Firestone team to appear here later in the season.

Startling Facts Bared By Our Football Poll

Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

New York, Nov. 27.—This week's unassociated football poll shows that Tennessee has skyrocketed from sixteenth place to fourteenth by reason of its crushing victory over the unbeaten forces of no game scheduled, sometimes known as the invisible tide or the Ectoplasmic Eagles.

No game scheduled played an early-season tie with open date, but, outside of that, her record was clean as a daisy, up till the time she met Tennessee.

The Volunteers had too much reserve strength for the invisible tide. According to my scouts, Neyland's team pushed the Ectaplasmic Eagles up and down the field at will, and might have scored more often than it did.

476 Editors Tried to be Wrong

Thus the Vols fully deserve their sensational elevation from sixteenth to fourteenth place. Four hundred and seventy-six sports editors can't be wrong, though I admit they tried very hard this week. One sports editor tells me that Lardner's unassociated poll has made a new man of him, and even mentions the new man's name. Another has mastered the clarinet. A third has moved to a different neighborhood. A fifth was bitten by a copperhead. With men who know football best, it's Lardner's poll, eight and a half to five.

Cornell, by failing to score a field goal against Pennsylvania, falls from fifth place to twelfth, just below "I built a dream" on the hit parade.

Alabama casts twenty-four votes for Underwodo, apparently under the misapprehension that this is a typewriter poll.

Stanford, rolling up two touchdowns against California and keeping the Golden Bears bottled up in the Stanford end zone the rest of the day, can no longer be ignored. But the poll ignores her. With 476 sports editors, there is no such word as "impossible."

Missouri gets forty-one votes, but I don't know exactly for what, because the voters failed to say. Using the discretionary powers given me under the constitution, I would place her somewhere West of the Mississippi river, North of Arkansas.

Three sports editors in Maine tell me that Boston College is their favorite Southern team. Boston College is not a true Southern team, though I suppose it looks that way from Maine. However, they do plant a good deal of cotton around that part of the country, usually in their ears and I am going to let the result stand.

Southern California, missing one kick for point against Notre Dame, takes a humiliating tailspin into ninth place. Unless Howard Jones can develop a good point-kicker immediately, Southern Cal seems doomed.

Syracuse, which fooled the experts by playing Thursday instead of Saturday, seems to be on her way. This trick was borrowed by Ossie Solem from Pop Warner's Carlisle Indians, and is sure-fire. The Maryland team was caught completely off guard. When notified that Syracuse had started the game and was marching down the field, the Marylanders hastily boarded a special train and arrived just too late to block the touchdown which won the game.

Without further ado, we give you the unassociated football poll for this week:

Rice 321; U. S. Steel, 186¼; Kayak II, $11.90, $4.80; Centenary, 99; Normal, 98.6; Spearfish, 97.6 (one degree below normal); Tech, 72; State, 53; Vanderbilt, 3-9100 (information); Chicago, 0.

As an added feature of our poll this week, we ask the sports editors if they would go to the bowl if invited. The vote was as follows:

Previous engagement—203; engaged, but not planning to be married right away—75; married—195; Yes—3.

Those figures are not exceptional for this tome of year.

Will These Kentucky Wildcats Be Able To Halt Tennessee Nov. 30?

Will the Wildcats of the University of Kentucky be able to stop the onrushing Tennessee Volunteers in the hottest scrap of the "second" Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 30, at Lexington? Kentucky has a good team this year, having lost but one game and tied one. The game has been a sellout for weeks. Kentucky stars are shown above.

State Teachers Soccer Team To Play High Point

North Carolina Team Accepts Challenge for Post-season Game

Frostburg, Nov. 27—Frostburg State College's soccer challenge, carried recently in Eddie Brietz' Associated Press column, bore fruit over the weekend when a telegram sent by Allen Austin, graduate manager of athletics of High Point (N. C.) College, challenging the claimant to the Maryland collegiate title to a tussle, was received by Coach George "Gimp" Carrington.

After conferring with school officials and dickering for terms, Frostburg accepted. The game, an intersectional clash, will be played at High Point this Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Inasmuch as very little soccer is played south of the Carolinas, the tussle can be regarded as a "Soccer Bowl" game with the southern title resting on the outcome.

High Point recently finished an undefeated season and holds victories over such strong teams as Duke, Davidson and Seton Hall of New Jersey. Frostburg's record includes one setback but victories were recorded over Carnegie Tech, University of Maryland and University of Virginia.

Carrington has opened basketball practice in preparation for the opener, December 5, against Loyola at Baltimore but will take a day or two off for renewal of soccer drills. The squad will leave early Friday morning and return to Frostburg late Sunday night.

Dobson's Resignation Accepted by Board

College Park, Md., Nov. 27 (AP) Frank Dobson's resignation as head football coach at the University of Maryland was accepted by the Athletic Board today without comment as to his possible successor.

A brief announcement said merely that Dobson's resignation had been "officially accepted" and no indication was given as to when the board would convene again to discuss the vacancy. Rumors that Dick Haruow, Harvard coach, would succeed Dobson have been denied repeatedly.

Dobson's resignation, announced Friday night by Geary Eppley, Athletic Director, came at the end of a season in which Maryland won only two games and lost seven.

A former Princeton player, Dobson came to Maryland in 1935, after having coached at Georgia Tech, Georgia, Clemson and Richmond University. His coaching experience covers a span of thirty years.

Dinner for Cassiano, Star Halfback at Pitt

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27. (AP)—A testimonial dinner for Dandy Dick Cassiano, a start fullback on the Pitt football team for three seasons, will be held next Tuesday by the Professional Club of Pittsburgh.

Former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti will be the toastmaster and speakers will include Charley Bowser, coach, and Bill Daddio, an assistant coach, at Pitt. Cassiano's home is in Albany.

Pheasant's Neck Broken

Jack Allen, of Westfield, N. Y., walked through the woods with a hunting friend. The latter shot a rabbit. A pheasant, frightened by the shot, flew from cover and directly into Allen's face. Allen's glasses were broken, but a few feet away lay the pheasant with its neck broken.

Potomac Conference Meeting This Week

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 27—J. E. Riley, assistant superintendent of Tucker county schools and president of the Potomac Valley Conference, announced today that the annual meeting of the organization will be held this Saturday, December 2 at Petersburg High.

Mr. Riley was unable to explain why four schools, Petersburg, Franklin, Bayard and Circleville, sent representatives to Petersburg last Saturday when annual meeting notices received here stated the session would be held December 2.

Rooney Gets Offer To Transfer Bucs

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27. (AP) — Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Football League, said today he had been offered $50,000 "for a half interest to shift the team to Boston."

Rooney said Bill Sullivan, real estate man and former high school coach, "assured me he could produce $50,000 for a part interest if the deal materializes."

The Pirates' owner previously denied several reports he would sell the franchise. The Pirates won their first game in 17 starts yesterday, defeating the Philadelphia Eagles 24-12.

Paw Paw Court Team Will Play Alumni Thursday

Basketball Squad Appears To Be Stronger, Coach Swisher Reports

Paw Paw, W. Va., Nov. 27—Coach Arnet Swisher's Paw Paw High basketball aggregation, which is shaping up as stronger than last year's quintet, will open its campaign Thursday night by opposing a strong Alumni combination.

The Alumni will send such former Paw Paw High stars as Rockwell of last year's squad, Melvin Bohrer and June Lewis of the 1937-38 outfit and "Pud" McCoole of the former Tanner crew, against the schoolboys.

Coach Swisher has many lettermen and several others with experience to choose from. Back on the squad are Charles Roby, second in scoring last year although a guard; Raymond Robinson, a six-foot forward who also earned his letter; Forwards Paul Bohrer and Johnny Clark, both lettermen, and the veteran guard, Nelson Ambrose.

Francis Bohrer, who was ineligible last season, and Jack Arnica, who didn't compete last year after making the squad in 1937-38, are also seeking places. Both are over six feet tall with Bohrer a forward and Arnica a center.

Newcomers include Paul Leach, Warren Parr, William McCoole, Pete Guhr, Frank Rouzee, Joe Larkin and Jess Sherwood. Coach Swisher said the squad is above average height and appears to show more aggressiveness than last season's combination.

Ten other games have been arranged while contests are pending with Romney, Piedmont, Bruce, Beall, Hancock and Moorefield. The schedule follows:

December 4—Wardensville, home.
December 12—Wardensville, away.

Texas Crew Last Obstacle In Way Of Aggie Eleven

Unbeaten Texas A. and M. and Ancient Rival Will Meet Thursday

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 27. (AP)—Finally at the payoff, Texas A. and M., the nation's No. 1 football team, finds its mossy old rival of forty-five years cluttering the road to its first perfect season.

Next Thursday at Kyle Field, the Aggies must play the University of Texas and its boyish gang of thrill runners.

Nine smashing victories behind them—Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl and glory dangling just ahead — the roughhouse Aggies are on the verge of being the third Southwest Conference team in five years to finish out unbeaten. Crafty Southern Methodist did it in 1935 and went to the Rose Bowl. "Ill" Davey O'Brien and Texas Christian did it last year and punched Carnegie Tech in the Sugar Bowl.

Texas Has Youngsters

No more spectacular finish could be given the cadet march.

Not even this year could the Aggies be established favorites over the Texas Longhorns. Year after year its' anybody's game. Last season the Aggies were a two-touch down favorite over Texas. They lost—6 to 7, Texas gaining its only triumph after eight defeats.

Next Thursday the menace is even greater. On Texas' side are a couple of youngsters who know only one thing with a football tucked under their arm—get to that goal line. Cowboy Jack Crain and Billy Davis, the latter a wee 145-pounder who doesn't even wear shoulder pads, have skittered to 12 touchdowns.

The average distance of Crain's eight touchdowns is exactly 51 yards! Davis chipped in with runs

Snavely Is Amazed at Success of Cornel

Praises Work of Boys Who Played Great Football

Says Boys Hardly Counted on Ones Who Did Big Jobs

Says He Had More Fun The Past Season Than any Other Year

By BILL BONI

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Slim, keen-eyed Carl Snavely stood before the members of the Metropolitan Football Writers Association today and told them that his Cornell team's all-winning season "was more amazing to me than to anyone else."

Snavely had been introduced by President Dan Daniel as the man who had done "possibly the greatest coaching job of the year in American football." That seemed to throw Carl off stride for a moment, but he rallied quickly.

"I've had more fun this fall than in any other year in my coaching career," said the man who brought a made-over ball club through eight straight victories. "I'm indebted to the boys, to the Cornell people and to the newspaper men.

"But I still haven't got over my surprise. We had more injuries than in any of my three other years at Cornell, yet when we looked around we discovered that boys we'd hardly counted on were doing the big jobs. Lou Conti, one guard, as a freshman wasn't good enough to make the trips with a thirty-three-man squad. Howie Dunbar, the other guard, was a converted tackle.

"Bud Finneran at center, who had more playing time than any other man on the squad, started as a substitute halfback last year. But he was too slow for that spot, and a knee injury slowed him up more. He missed spring practice this year. Yet he has been a standout, one of the most underrated men on the team.

Mort Landsberg, who became our regular fullback, was a reserve halfback on the Jayvee squad a year ago. He developed into the best safety man I've had at Ithaca."

Snavely pointed out that injuries had kept him from starting the same team in more than two games, and that those two weren't successive.

Snavely didn't emphasize the fact, but it's worth nothing that Worcester is one of only five seniors this squad will lose by graduation. The others are Whit Baker, regular wing and tailback; Ken Brown, sub fullback; Curt Lafey, reserve tackle, and Al Burke, reserve end.

Davis High Will Open Season Dec. 19 With Fort Hill

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 27—Coach John Golish, of Davis high school, announced today that Davis high will open the cage season December 19 when they meet the Fort Hill team of Cumberland on the Davis floor. This is a week earlier than Davis usually opens the season.

Four lettermen are on this year's team, and all are six feet tall. They are Robert Moore, Pat Pell, Everett White, and Gene Worden, the latter two being seniors this year. Ralph Iden, one of the star players, broke a leg in a recent football game and will not be able to play basketball this year. He is a patient now in an Elkins hospital. The average weight of the team is 155 pounds and the average height is 5 feet, 10 inches.

The following are listed by the coach as the main players this year, and are listed by weight, height and year in school:

Wilbur Buckley, 145 pounds, 5 feet 8 inches, sophomore.
Leonard Cassidy, 165 pounds, 5 feet 6 inches, sophomore.
Junior Deems, 148 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches, senior.
Walter Gaynor, 176 pounds, 6 feet, junior.
Harold Govedich, 141 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches, sophomore.
Ellery Hinkle, 150 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches, junior.
Wayne Heath, 138 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches, junior.
Robert Moore, 160 pounds, 6 feet 1 inch, junior.
Pat Pell, 165 pounds, 6 feet, junior.
John Sayger, 144 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches, sophomore.
Everett White, 167 pounds, 5 feet 11 inches, senior.
Gene Worden, 165 pounds, 6 feet, senior.

Texas Crew

of 66 and 58 yards against Texas Christian last week.

The almost incredible defense the Aggies have set up through nine games—only 736 yards permitted on runs and passes—will get a new kind of test against Texas.

But the scoring problem can be handled "vice-versa." What will a Texas line, sophomores in the main, do with Jarrin' John Kimbrough, fullback; Sophomore Derace Moser a fast, driving sweeper and Bill Conatser, who does considerable of that long-distance sprinting himself?

The Aggies have totaled close to 180 points, or an average of 19.7 points a game.

Both teams started the last few days of drilling with the minimum of injuries—not a key man being seriously damaged.

FOOTBALL ELEGY FOR 1939
(While Thomas Gray Isn't Looking)

The curfew tolls the knell of parting play.
The lowing crowds wind slowly o'er the lea;
The halfback homeward plods his wear way,
To read a book—or tape a wounded knee.

And from that yonder ivy-mantled tower
The moping soph does to the moon complain
That Yarvard's backs have lost their blocking power.
And Halevard's lost her ancient ruling reign.

Let not Ambition feed them any guile,
The coming bowls—let all of this be skipped.
Nor Grandeur hear with a disdainful smile
The short and simple annals of the whipped.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power—
And all that every flaming headline knows,
Await alike the inevitable hour—
The paths of Glory lead but to the pros!

Perhaps in some neglected spot is laid
A guard, quite pregnant with celestial fire—
An end, the rod of empire might have swayed
Or set the Green Bay Packer's team on fire.

Full many a Gipp of purest ray serene
Some unknown campus now and then may bear.
Full many a Thorpe is born to star unseen
And waste his rushes on the tank-town air.

Breakers Ahead

New York—Some one mentioned the fact that the football season was just about over. Just about over—well, this week Tennessee has to invade Lexington, Ky., a jinx trip — Southern California and U. C. L. A. have two hard games left, including a final elimination on December 9 when they meet, head on. After the Kentucky game, Tennessee has Auburn in the road, a real football team—the Big Seven of the Great Divide must settle their standings—Texas A. and M. must defend its unbeaten season against Texas and the dangerous Mr. Crain — Tulane has to roll back L.S.U. for the Sugar Bowl shot—Army and Navy, regardless of what has happened before, will meet before the record crowd of the year, over 100,000, paying out close to $500,000, in the season's major spectacle. You don't think so? Maybe not. But the public does. Try to buy a ticket.

The season is still loaded until December 9th.

Three weeks later five or six bowls break out in a big rash on New Year's Day.

A few weeks later some of them start spring practice.

The football season is practically never over, except for a brief interval through January and February plus a late spring and summer lull. It is facing in the general direction of Mr. Tennyson's famous river—"Men may come and men may go—but I go on forever."

In my opinion eight or nine games at the most are quite enough for any team to play. The physical, mental and emotional factors in football are too highly geared for any three-months campaign, which so many play. But perhaps all this will shortly be so badly overdone that we can return to sanity—if there is any sanity left on this peculiar planet.

Some Peculiar Spots

Each year football strays off into more baffling trails.

Early in the season Jock Sutherland rated Tennessee as one of the four best teams he had ever seen. My vote went in the same direction. Then Tennessee had a hard time moving against Vanderbilt. No yardage at all. Now along comes Shipwreck Kelly of Kentucky to give me even money that either Kentucky or Auburn will take Tennessee.

"Too many easy games," Shipwreck says. "We could always beat Tennessee," he told me. "We couldn't miss—no matter what they had and no matter what we had.

If we don't Auburn will. Kentucky and Auburn are the two Tennessee jinxes.

"Don't forget, that Kentucky team may wind up in the Rose or Sugar Bowl. We've only lost one game on just one play. And don't forget these football jinxes."

I'll still stick around with Tennessee—when Cafego and Suffridge get back. And I happen to know that Kentucky and Auburn are far from being any puff balls, on a good day.

Replying to Complaints

Supporters of Holy Cross and Georgetown want to know why they are not given more publicity in regard to various bowls. This is one I can answer.

Holy Cross has one of the best teams in the country, but Holy Cross was unfortunate enough to let L.S.U. beat her, 26 to 7—and L.S.U. is a Sugar Bowl neighbor. This, however, shouldn't hurt for the Cotton or Orange Bowls.

Georgetown deserves a bid, but the bowl bidders don't like her schedule—3 to 2 win over Temple and a draw with Syracuse which was crushed by Duke. Yet Georgetown today is a high-class outfit, unbeaten for two years.

Cornell, beating Pennsylvania, would be a sure shot at any bowl, but Cornell won't go. Neither will the Big Ten, Notre Dame, or Duke, a team that should have galloped through untied and unbeaten.

As a final check the bowl teams now are Southern California and U. C. L. A. from the West Coast—Missouri from the Midwest plus Oklahoma—Texas A. and M. from the Southwest—Tulane, Tennessee and Kentucky from the South—Holy Cross and Georgetown from the North or high East.

There you have ten teams for eight assignments in the most scrambled bowl argument I've yet seen. It's practically an omelette.

In the course of the next two weeks we may have several of these bowl nominations tossed rather roughly into the discard. Some of them may finish in the gravel ditch.

These bowl games will be extremely interesting. They will be something to watch. But if an entire season's play can't prove anything even beyond conference circles, neither can any bowl affair so far as a championship goes. Football has gotten too big for any championship pick.

Hearing To Be Held on Charges Made by Thomas

Illinois State Athletic Commission Invites Fighters and Managers

Chicago, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Illinois State Athletic Commission decided today to hold a public hearing Dec. 11 to sift charges made by Harry Thomas that he engaged in fake fights with Tony Galento and Max Schmeling.

The commisison invited Galento and Schmeling, as well as their manager, Joe Jacobs of New York, and Nate Lewis of Chicago, manager of Thomas, to attend. The seconds of the boxers, judges, referees and the promoters of the two contests which were held in New York and Philadelphia also were invited to the hearing.

Thomas will be requested to explain the confession published in the Chicago Tribune in which he claimed he "laid down" in his fights with Schmeling and Galento, Thomas refused to testify at a hearing before the New York State Athletic Commission a week ago on the plea that he did not want to "degrade" himself.

Pitt Has Worst Season in Last Sixteen Years

Chancellor Bowman Satisfied; Terms Season a Success

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27 (AP) — Pitt's football team came through its first year under the so-called "amateur code" with its worst record in sixteen years and a loss at the gate but chancellor John G. Bowman today termed the season a success.

The slim, scholarly school head, father of the code and center of the athletic controversy at Pitt that culminated in Jock Sutherland's resignation as coach last winter, acclaimed the team spirit and predicted Pitt would make "a good record before long."

"The big thing was that the boys themselves had a good time this year," he said. "There was a lot more freedom in play evident on the field. They were playing football more for the fun of the game—that's what college football is supposed to be.

The record was better than most experts expected. Charley Bowser, successor to Sutherland, found a squad with only two regulars and fashioned it into a team that bumped off five of nine outstanding opponents.

With a little more luck and less fumbling, Bowser's opening season might have been blessed with a record of eight victories and one loss. Fumbles were largely responsible for defeats by Duquesne and Fordham and five veterans were benched by injuries when the Panthers bowed to Nebraska by a one-point margin. Penn State outfought the Panthers to gain its first victory over them in twenty years.

Not since 1923 — "Pop" Warner's last season at Pitt — has a Panther team lost as many as four games a season and only once since 1900 has a team lost more than four.

After Sutherland's resignation there were mumblings about a boycott among the fans. In five home games this year, the Panthers drew 183,000 to the stadium, an average of 37,400 per game. Last year, a total of 243,000 turned out for six games, an average of 40,500.

The code inaugurated by Bowman stiffened academic qualifications, barred solicitation of players, curtailed practice and required athletes to work at janitorial or other jobs to obtain school support. Sutherland reputedly quit because he felt the code did not make provision for teams strong enough to meet Pitt's future opponents.

Old Professor Foggy as He Calls Grid Coaches for Monday Lesson

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The day was foggy and so was the Old Professor as he tried to speed things up by looking over his glasses and his Monday morning class of football coaches at the some time.

Old Professor—Please excuse my condition again, gentlemen. I sat up with a sick friend last night. He bet on Ohio State. How about that game, Mr. Schmidt?

Francis Schmidt, Ohio State—We outfielded Michigan, Professor, and you can't do that in a tight game and expect to win. This Tom Harmon certainly is a ball player.

Fritz Crisler, Michigan — I'm tickled to death to win. I'm still so breathless I can hardly talk.

Old Professor—Mr. Stiner, please quit sticking yourself with pins. It makes me nervous.

Lon Stiner, Oregon State—Saturday after Saturday of this business and you get kinda numb. I can't feel a thing. I thought we had our game sewed up but those Uclans are liable to score any time from any place.

Babe Horrell, U. C. L. A.—I was glad to settle for a tie with a gang that blocks like the Beavers.

Old Professor—Cheer up, Mr. Munger, nothing can be that bad.

George Munger, Penn—That good, you mean. That Cornell club is the best we're run into since I've been coaching at Penn. We couldn't find a weakness.

Snavely Praises Cornell

Carl Snavely, Cornell—For a team that makes the most of its opportunities, this Cornell team is the best I ever coached.

Old Professor — Quit sticking out your chest, Mr. Anderson.

Eddie Anderson, Iowa—I'm right proud of my boys, Professor. Fumbles didn't do us any good, and the boys might have been a little tired from the start, but they played a good ball game.

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern—We came up against a tough team in Iowa. Buzz Dean seemed to carry on very well when Kinnick went out, so we weren't any better off.

Old Professor—How about that team of yours now, Mr. Pond?

Ducky Pond, Yale—The boys played inspired ball, Professor, and as a unit. They showed they had the stuff when one touchdown was called back and they went out and got another.

Dick Harlow, Harvard—I can't say anything but the best about Yale. It was one of the best coaching jobs I have ever seen.

Old Professor—My congratulations, Md Jones, on a fine season.

Biff Jones, Nebraska—Thank you, Professor. Our game against Oklahoma Saturday undoubtedly was the best we played.

Tom Stidham, Oklahoma—Nebraska certainly deserved to win.

Old Professor—Well spoken. A little relieved, Mr. Neely?

Jess Neely, Clemson—Very much. We met a tartar in Furman, but Banks McFadden's kicking, the best ever I saw, and the cooperation of the entire squad, brought us through.

U. S. C. a Great Team

Paul McLeod Furman — They were too tough for us, and McFadden's kicking kept us in a hole. Roten Shetley played his heart out, and so did his teammates, but the Tigers were just too tough.

Old Professor—Any remarks, Mr. Layden, on that grand game your boys played?

Elmer Layden, Notre Dame — Southern California had lots of power and it was a grand game. We are satisfied Notre Dame came through a tough schedule in such fine style. My hat is off to a great USC team, the best we've met since it beat us last year.

Howard Jones, Southern California — There's no question about Notre Dame being the toughest team we've met yet. We aren't talking about a Rose Bowl opponent yet, at least until we get there. We don't care whether or not it's Tennessee.

Old Professor—Well, sorry this meeting of the Mutual Admiration Society must come to an end, but our time is up. The final exams are next week, so come prepared. Good day, gentlemen.

Lions Get Holiday For Beating Pitt

Ohio State Receipts Off Despite Success

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 27 (AP) Winning Western Conference cha pionships doesn't pay at the gate if you take Ohio State University 1939 at-home football receipts as criterion.

Last year, when the Bucks w four, lost three and tied one f their worst record in a decade, th drew 314,963 fans to five ho games. This year, in winning six a losing two and taking the Big T title all by themselves, they dr 250,885 through the Ohio Stadiu turnustiles in five contests—a d of 64,078, or an average loss almost 13,000 per game.

Mason Morse Almost One Man Grid Team

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 27. (AP)—Mason (Bucky) Morse, 188-pound junior letterman at the University of Virginia, is almost a one-man football team.

Already this season the Washington, D. C., youth has played right and left tackle posts, center and blocking back, being called upon to back up both sides of the line as well as shift to a defensive halfback and help with the punting.

Officials were befuddled when he caught a touchdown pass against Navy, but it was okay, a checkup showing that he was playing fullback at the time.

zHe will start at center against North Carolina Thursday but the coaches would like to have him free to take over right tackle.

Snavely Is Amazed at Success of Cornel

Says Boys Hardly Counted on Ones Who Did Big Jobs

Says He Had More Fun The Past Season Than any Other Year

By BILL BONI

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Slim, keen-eyed Carl Snavely stood before the members of the Metropolitan Football Writers Association today and told them that his Cornell team's all-winning season "was more amazing to me than to anyone else."

Snavely had been introduced by President Dan Daniel as the man who had done "possibly the greatest coaching job of the year in American football." That seemed to throw Carl off stride for a moment, but he rallied quickly.

"I've had more fun this fall than in any other year in my coaching career," said the man who brought a made-over ball club through eight straight victories. "I'm indebted to the boys, to the Cornell people and to the newspaper men.

"But I still haven't got over my surprise. We had more injuries than in any of my three other years at Cornell, yet when we looked around we discovered that boys we'd hardly counted on were doing the big jobs. Lou Conti, one guard, as a freshman wasn't good enough to make the trips with a thirty-three-man squad. Howie Dunbar, the other guard, was a converted tackle.

"Bud Finneran at center, who had more playing time than any other man on the squad, started as a substitute halfback last year. But he was too slow for that spot, and a knee injury slowed him up more. He missed spring practice this year. Yet he has been a standout, one of the most underrated men on the team.

Mort Landsberg, who became our regular fullback, was a reserve halfback on the Jayvee squad a year ago. He developed into the best safety man I've had at Ithaca."

Snavely pointed out that injuries had kept him from starting the same team in more than two games, and that those two weren't successive.

Snavely didn't emphasize the fact, but it's worth nothing that Worcester is one of only five seniors this squad will lose by graduation. The others are Whit Baker, regular wing and tailback; Ken Brown, sub fullback; Curt Lafey, reserve tackle, and Al Burke, reserve end.

Davis High Will Open Season Dec. 19 With Fort Hill

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 27—Coach John Golish, of Davis high school, announced today that Davis high will open the cage season December 19 when they meet the Fort Hill team of Cumberland on the Davis floor. This is a week earlier than Davis usually opens the season.

Four lettermen are on this year's team, and all are six feet tall. They are Robert Moore, Pat Pell, Everett White, and Gene Worden, the latter two being seniors this year. Ralph Iden, one of the star players, broke a leg in a recent football game and will not be able to play basketball this year. He is a patient now in an Elkins hospital. The average weight of the team is 155 pounds and the average height is 5 feet, 10 inches.

The following are listed by the coach as the main players this year, and are listed by weight, height and year in school:

Wilbur Buckley, 145 pounds, 5 feet 8 inches, sophomore.
Leonard Cassidy, 165 pounds, 5 feet 6 inches, sophomore.
Junior Deems, 148 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches, senior.

of 66 and 58 yards against Texas Christian last week.

The almost incredible defense the Aggies have set up through nine games—only 736 yards permitted on runs and passes—will get a new kind of test against Texas.

But the scoring problem can be handled "vice-versa." What will a Texas line, sophomores in the main, do with Jarrin' John Kimbrough, fullback; Sophomore Derace Moser a fast, driving sweeper and Bill Conatser, who does considerable of that long-distance sprinting himself?

The Aggies have totaled close to 180 points, or an average of 19.7 points a game.

Both teams started the last few days of drilling with the minimum of injuries—not a key man being seriously damaged.

FOOTBALL ELEGY FOR 1939
(While Thomas Gray Isn't Looking)

The curfew tolls the knell of parting play.
The lowing crowds wind slowly o'er the lea;
The halfback homeward plods his wear way,
To read a book—or tape a wounded knee.

And from that yonder ivy-mantled tower
The moping soph does to the moon complain
That Yarvard's backs have lost their blocking power.
And Halevard's lost her ancient ruling reign.

Let not Ambition feed them any guile,
The coming bowls—let all of this be skipped.
Nor Grandeur hear with a disdainful smile
The short and simple annals of the whipped.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power—
And all that every flaming headline knows,
Await alike the inevitable hour—
The paths of Glory lead but to the pros!

Perhaps in some neglected spot is laid
A guard, quite pregnant with celestial fire—
An end, the rod of empire might have swayed
Or set the Green Bay Packer's team on fire.

Full many a Gipp of purest ray serene
Some unknown campus now and then may bear.
Full many a Thorpe is born to star unseen
And waste his rushes on the tank-town air.

Breakers Ahead

New York—Some one mentioned the fact that the football season was just about over. Just about over—well, this week Tennessee has to invade Lexington, Ky., a jinx trip — Southern California and U. C. L. A. have two hard games left, including a final elimination on December 9 when they meet, head on. After the Kentucky game, Tennessee has Auburn in the road, a real football team—the Big Seven of the Great Divide must settle their standings—Texas A. and M. must defend its unbeaten season against Texas and the dangerous Mr. Crain — Tulane has to roll back L.S.U. for the Sugar Bowl shot—Army and Navy, regardless of what has happened before, will meet before the record crowd of the year, over 100,000, paying out close to $500,000, in the season's major spectacle. You don't think so? Maybe not. But the public does. Try to buy a ticket.

The season is still loaded until December 9th.

Three weeks later five or six bowls break out in a big rash on New Year's Day.

A few weeks later some of them start spring practice.

The football season is practically never over, except for a brief interval through January and February plus a late spring and summer lull. It is facing in the general direction of Mr. Tennyson's famous river—"Men may come and men may go—but I go on forever."

In my opinion eight or nine games at the most are quite enough for any team to play. The physical, mental and emotional factors in football are too highly geared for any three-months campaign, which so many play. But perhaps all this will shortly be so badly overdone that we can return to sanity—if there is any sanity left on this peculiar planet.

Some Peculiar Spots

Each year football strays off into more baffling trails.

Early in the season Jock Sutherland rated Tennessee as one of the four best teams he had ever seen. My vote went in the same direction. Then Tennessee had a hard time moving against Vanderbilt. No yardage at all. Now along comes Shipwreck Kelly of Kentucky to give me even money that either Kentucky or Auburn will take Tennessee.

"Too many easy games," Shipwreck says. "We could always beat Tennessee," he told me. "We couldn't miss—no matter what they had and no matter what we had.

If we don't Auburn will. Kentucky and Auburn are the two Tennessee jinxes.

"Don't forget, that Kentucky team may wind up in the Rose or Sugar Bowl. We've only lost one game on just one play. And don't forget these football jinxes."

I'll still stick around with Tennessee—when Cafego and Suffridge get back. And I happen to know that Kentucky and Auburn are far from being any puff balls, on a good day.

Replying to Complaints

Supporters of Holy Cross and Georgetown want to know why they are not given more publicity in regard to various bowls. This is one I can answer.

Holy Cross has one of the best teams in the country, but Holy Cross was unfortunate enough to let L.S.U. beat her, 26 to 7—and L.S.U. is a Sugar Bowl neighbor. This, however, shouldn't hurt for the Cotton or Orange Bowls.

Georgetown deserves a bid, but the bowl bidders don't like her schedule—3 to 2 win over Temple and a draw with Syracuse which was crushed by Duke. Yet Georgetown today is a high-class outfit, unbeaten for two years.

Cornell, beating Pennsylvania, would be a sure shot at any bowl, but Cornell won't go. Neither will the Big Ten, Notre Dame, or Duke, a team that should have galloped through untied and unbeaten.

As a final check the bowl teams now are Southern California and U. C. L. A. from the West Coast—Missouri from the Midwest plus Oklahoma—Texas A. and M. from the Southwest—Tulane, Tennessee and Kentucky from the South—Holy Cross and Georgetown from the North or high East.

There you have ten teams for eight assignments in the most scrambled bowl argument I've yet seen. It's practically an omelette.

In the course of the next two weeks we may have several of these bowl nominations tossed rather roughly into the discard. Some of them may finish in the gravel ditch.

These bowl games will be extremely interesting. They will be something to watch. But if an entire season's play can't prove anything even beyond conference circles, neither can any bowl affair so far as a chanpionship goes. Football has gotten too big for any championship pick.

Hearing To Be Held on Charges Made by Thomas

Illinois State Athletic Commission Invites Fighters and Managers

Chicago, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Illinois State Athletic Commission decided today to hold a public hearing Dec. 11 to sift charges made by Harry Thomas that he engaged in fake fights with Tony Galento and Max Schmeling.

The commisison invited Galento and Schmeling, as well as their manager, Joe Jacobs of New York, and Nate Lewis of Chicago, manager of Thomas, to attend. The seconds of the boxers, judges, referees and the promoters of the two contests which were held in New York and Philadelphia also were invited to the hearing.

Thomas will be requested to explain the confession published in the Chicago Tribune in which he claimed he "laid down" in his fights with Schmeling and Galento. Thomas refused to testify at a hearing before the New York State Athletic Commission a week ago on the plea that he did not want to "degrade" himself.

Pitt Has Worst Season in Last Sixteen Years

Chancellor Bowman Satisfied; Terms Season a Success

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27 (AP) — Pitt's football team came through its first year under the so-called "amateur code" with its worst record in sixteen years and a loss at the gate but chancellor John G. Bowman today termed the season a success.

The slim, scholarly school head, father of the code and center of the athletic controversy at Pitt that culminated in Jock Sutherland's resignation as coach last winter, acclaimed the team spirit and predicted Pitt would make "a good record before long."

"The big thing was that the boys themselves had a good time this year," he said. "There was a lot more freedom in play evident on the field. They were playing football more for the fun of the game—that's what college football is supposed to be.

The record was better than most experts expected. Charley Bowser, successor to Sutherland, found a squad with only two regulars and fashioned it into a team that bumped off five of nine outstanding opponents.

With a little more luck and less fumbling, Bowser's opening season might have been blessed with a record of eight victories and one loss. Fumbles were largely responsible for defeats by Duquesne and Fordham and five veterans were benched by injuries when the Panthers bowed to Nebraska by a one-point margin. Penn State outfought the Panthers to gain its first victory over them in twenty years.

Not since 1923 — "Pop" Warner's last season at Pitt — has a Panther team lost as many as four games a season and only once since 1900 has a team lost more than four.

After Sutherland's resignation there were mumblings about a boycott among the fans. In five home games this year, the Panthers drew 183,000 to the stadium, an average of 37,400 per game. Last year, a total of 243,000 turned out for six games, an average of 40,500.

The code inaugurated by Bowman stiffened academic qualifications, barred solicitation of players, curtailed practice and required athletes to work at janitorial or other jobs to obtain school support. Sutherland reputedly quit because he felt the code did not make provision for teams strong enough to meet Pitt's future opponents.

Old Professor Foggy as He Calls Grid Coaches for Monday Lesson

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The day was foggy and so was the Old Professor as he tried to speed things up by looking over his glasses and his Monday morning class of football coaches at the some time.

Old Professor—Please excuse my condition again, gentlemen. I sat up with a sick friend last night. He bet on Ohio State. How about that game, Mr. Schmidt?

Francis Schmidt, Ohio State—We outfielded Michigan, Professor, and you can't do that in a tight game and expect to win. This Tom Harmon certainly is a ball player.

Fritz Crisler, Michigan — I'm tickled to death to win. I'm still so breathless I can hardly talk.

Old Professor—Mr. Stiner, please quit sticking yourself with pins. It makes me nervous.

Lon Stiner, Oregon State—Saturday after Saturday of this business and you get kinda numb. I can't feel a thing. I thought we had our game sewed up but those Uclans are liable to score any time from any place.

Babe Horrell, U. C. L. A.—I was glad to settle for a tie with a gang that blocks like the Beavers.

Old Professor—Cheer up, Mr. Munger, nothing can be that bad.

George Munger, Penn—That good, you mean. That Cornell club is the best we're run into since I've been coaching at Penn. We couldn't find a weakness.

Snavely Praises Cornell

Carl Snavely, Cornell—For a team that makes the most of its opportunities, this Cornell team is the best I ever coached.

Old Professor — Quit sticking out your chest, Mr. Anderson.

Eddie Anderson, Iowa—I'm right proud of my boys, Professor. Fumbles didn't do us any good, and the boys might have been a little tired from the start, but they played a good ball game.

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern—We came up against a tough team in Iowa. Buzz Dean seemed to carry on very well when Kinnick went out, so we weren't any better off.

Old Professor—How about that team of yours now, Mr. Pond?

Ducky Pond, Yale—The boys played inspired ball, Professor, and as a unit. They showed they had the stuff when one touchdown was called back and they went out and got another.

Dick Harlow, Harvard—I can't say anything but the best about Yale. It was one of the best coaching jobs I have ever seen.

Old Professor—My congratulations, Md Jones, on a fine season.

Biff Jones, Nebraska—Thank you, Professor. Our game against Oklahoma Saturday undoubtedly was the best we played.

Tom Stidham, Oklahoma—Nebraska certainly deserved to win.

Old Professor—Well spoken. A little relieved, Mr. Neely?

Jess Neely, Clemson—Very much. We met a tartar in Furman, but Banks McFadden's kicking, the best ever I saw, and the cooperation of the entire squad, brought us through.

U. S. C. a Great Team

Paul McLeod Furman — They were too tough for us, and McFadden's kicking kept us in a hole. Roten Shetley played his heart out, and so did his teammates, but the Tigers were just too tough.

Old Professor—Any remarks, Mr. Layden, on that grand game your boys played?

Elmer Layden, Notre Dame — Southern California had lots of power and it was a grand game. We are satisfied Notre Dame came through a tough schedule in such fine style. My hat is off to a great USC team, the best we've met since it beat us last year.

Howard Jones, Southern California — There's no question about Notre Dame being the toughest team we've met yet. We aren't talking about a Rose Bowl opponent yet, at least until we get there. We don't care whether or not it's Tennessee.

Old Professor—Well, sorry this meeting of the Mutual Admiration Society must come to an end, but our time is up. The final exams are next week, so come prepared. Good day, gentlemen.

Lions Get Holiday For Beating Pitt

Mason Morse Almost One Man Grid Team

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 27. (AP)—Mason (Bucky) Morse, 188-pound junior letterman at the University of Virginia, is almost a one-man football team.

Already this season the Washington, D. C., youth has played right and left tackle posts, center and blocking back, being called upon to back up both sides of the line as well as shift to a defensive halfback and help with the punting.

Officials were befuddled when he caught a touchdown pass against Navy, but it was okay, a checkup showing that he was playing fullback at the time.

zHe will start at center against North Carolina Thursday but the coaches would like to have him free to take over right tackle.

Cashing of Profits Results in a Weak Closing

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Buying in rails steamed up a mild early rally in the stock market today, but it failed to hold.

The list slipped at the start, then revived when it looked like the carriers might go places. Cashing of profits in the final hour cut or cancelled top marks and closing prices were not better than steady.

As in Saturday's apathetic proceedings the Associated Press average of sixty issues was unchanged at 51.1. Transfers amounted to 518,330 shares, smallest for a full session since Oct. 16.

Rails were responsive for a time to estimates October earnings may have been around the best level since 1930. The fifth consecutive weekly increase in steel mill operations to a record high since official estimates started in 1933 gave selected shares in this group a temporary lift, but most backed down at the finish. U. S. Steel and Youngstown ended moderately up, Bethlehem was unchanged and Republic off a shade.

Chrysler was resistant, closing at its final Saturday quotation.

Grumman Aircraft advanced 1⅛ in the curb and smaller gains were recorded for American Cyanamid "B", International Petroleum and Aluminum Co. National Sugar Refining lost 1¼ and Electric Bond & Share a minor fraction. Turnover was 121,000 shares.

Designer of Hat Hopes Fashion Won't Adopt It

Adrian, designer of many glamorous costumes that have affected the tide of fashion, created one design that he hopes fashion won't adopt. This is the new Garbo hat which figures in the action of "Ninotchka," now playing at the Maryland Theatre. As a Russian woman newly come to Paris, Garbo sees it in a widow, is intrigued, and buys it. "It's a little bit of a hat—a crazy little hat," explains Adrian. "She wore it in a lot of sequences in the picture but I hope women generally don't adopt it because it wouldn't look well on them. In fact, it wouldn't look well on anybody but Garbo. It's tailored to her character and individuality. There are plenty of Garbo gowns that can safely become the fashion. But not the hat.'

Famed Director Made Actor in "Beau Geste"

After sixteen years of telling other people how to act, Charles Barton, veteran director and assistant director, turned actor in Paramount's rousing new picturization of "Beau Geste," story of adventure in the Foreign Legion which is now at the Garden Theatre, starring Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Robert Preston as the gallant brothers "Geste."

Barton, who plays the role of "Buddy," one of two Americans who join the Legion in the picture, was persuaded to take the role by William A. Wellman, who produced and directed "Beau Geste."

During the filming of "Night Work," new Boland-Ruggles comedy about the hilarious doings of the "Fitch" family, Donald O'Connor had a scene in which Clem Bevans, cast as his grandfather, apparently drives a match stick through Donald's front teeth so that he can whistle through them. Donald's mother watched the reheasal, then stepped off the stage for a moment. She returned as Director George Archainbaud was starting the "take" of the scene.

"And this time, Clem," said Archainbaud, eyeing Mrs. O'Connor, "don't hit so hard. We don't want to knock out that OTHER front tooth."

Mrs. O'Connor almost fainted before bystanders could assure her that Donald's teeth were intact.

Thriller Made to Order For John Mack Brown

Starring in a thoroughly worthwhile vehicle, Johnny Mack Brown scores his latest hit with an entertaining performance in the title role of "Chip of the Flying U," new Universal action drama which opened yesterday at the Liberty Theatre with Bob Baker, Fuzzy Knight and The Texas Rangers.

Brown presents a novel and captivating interpretation of "Chip" Bennett, the famous western character of fiction. In the film, "Chip" is an honest, straight-shooting ranch foreman who gets more than an average share of thrills and action. Provoking difficulties for "Chip" are a band of munition smugglers, and a young Eastern beauty who won't be convinced that the romantic west is all it's cracked up to be.

William Haade, broke a finger, a professional, Eddie Hogan, damaged a thumb knuckle in fight sequences for the Warner Bros. comedy, "Kid Nightengale," which is now showing at the Liberty.

But the accidents weren't in fights with each other. Both were sustained when their gloved fists crashed against John Payne's head.

Payne felt neither blow in the excitement of trading punches in the ring with his big, fast opponents.

The actor declares that his nose, jaw and midsection weren't so dull to pain, however. After three days of boxing various opponents before the camera and a month of sparring and training, his condition was self-described as "sore as a jumping eye tooth."

"Topper Takes a Trip" Closes at Embassy

"Topper Takes A Trip," starring Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Billie Burke and Alan Mowbray, and "Outpost of The Mounties," starring Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith and Sons of the Pioneers, famous radio stars, close today at the Embassy Theatre.

Stage Show Ends Run Today at the Strand

Designer of Hat Hopes Fashion Won't Adopt It

Adrian, designer of many glamorous costumes that have affected the tide of fashion, created one design that he hopes fashion won't adopt. This is the new Garbo hat which figures in the action of "Ninotchka," now playing at the Maryland Theatre. As a Russian woman newly come to Paris, Garbo sees it in a widow, is intrigued, and buys it. "It's a little bit of a hat—a crazy little hat," explains Adrian. "She wore it in a lot of sequences in the picture but I hope women generally don't adopt it because it wouldn't look well on them. In fact, it wouldn't look well on anybody but Garbo. It's tailored to her character and individuality. There are plenty of Garbo gowns that can safely become the fashion. But not the hat.'

Famed Director Made Actor in "Beau Geste"

After sixteen years of telling other people how to act, Charles Barton, veteran director and assistant director, turned actor in Paramount's rousing new picturization of "Beau Geste," story of adventure in the Foreign Legion which is now at the Garden Theatre, starring Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Robert Preston as the gallant brothers "Geste."

Barton, who plays the role of "Buddy," one of two Americans who join the Legion in the picture, was persuaded to take the role by William A. Wellman, who produced and directed "Beau Geste."

During the filming of "Night Work," new Boland-Ruggles comedy about the hilarious doings of the "Fitch" family, Donald O'Connor had a scene in which Clem Bevans, cast as his grandfather, apparently drives a match stick through Donald's front teeth so that he can whistle through them. Donald's mother watched the rehearsal, then stepped off the stage for a moment. She returned as Director George Archainbaud was starting the "take" of the scene.

"And this time, Clem," said Archainbaud, eyeing Mrs. O'Connor, "don't hit so hard. We don't want to knock out that OTHER front tooth."

Mrs. O'Connor almost fainted before bystanders could assure her that Donald's teeth were intact.

Thriller Made to Order For John Mack Brown

Starring in a thoroughly worthwhile vehicle, Johnny Mack Brown scores his latest hit with an entertaining performance in the title role of "Chip of the Flying U," new Universal action drama which opened yesterday at the Liberty Theatre with Bob Baker, Fuzzy Knight and The Texas Rangers.

Brown presents a novel and captivating interpretation of "Chip" Bennett, the famous western character of fiction. In the film, "Chip" is an honest, straight-shooting ranch foreman who gets more than an average share of thrills and action. Provoking difficulties for "Chip" are a band of munition smugglers, and a young Eastern beauty who won't be convinced that the romantic west is all it's cracked up to be.

William Haade, broke a finger, a professional, Eddie Hogan, damaged a thumb knuckle in fight sequences for the Warner Bros. comedy, "Kid Nightengale," which is now showing at the Liberty.

But the accidents weren't in fights with each other. Both were sustained when their gloved fists crashed against John Payne's head.

Payne felt neither blow in the excitement of trading punches in the ring with his big, fast opponents.

The actor declares that his nose, jaw and midsection weren't so dull to pain, however. After three days of boxing various opponents before the camera and a month of sparring and training, his condition was self-described as "sore as a jumping eye tooth."

Construction of Bass Hatchery Gets under Way

Nursery at Gilkeson Old Fields Site Will Hold 50,000 Fish

Moorefield, W. Va., Nov. 27.—The bass nursery now under construction by the Bureau of Fisheries under the supervision of the Leetown Hatchery at the Gilkeson Old Fields site will have a yearly capacity of 50,000 bass three to six inches long, according to the estimate of John Gardner, foreman in charge of construction.

The bass hatchery was the result of efforts on the part of sportsmen in Hardy, Hampshire, Grant and Pendleton counties and the active help of Congressman Jennings Randolph.

The sportsmen organized as the South Branch Valley Fish and Game Association with M. A. Bean as president. They raised the money from the four counties to purchase the site and gave it to the government. The organization will have a voice in the distribution of the bass when the nursery gets into production next summer.

Seventeen men started constructing a road Monday from U. S. Highway 220 near Old Fields toward the site of the hatchery two and a half miles west. The men are constructing a series of stock gates as well as the road. A $6,500 WPA project has been set up for the workmen.

Actual construction on the four rearing ponds as well as the dam will start late this week and a log house will be constructed on the site. The hatchery will be completed within sixty days if cold weather does not hamper the work.

The Gilkeson site was purchased for the government after a series of exhaustive tests in the four counties. The water supply is estimated at 500 gallons per minute with a minimum flow of 300 gallons per minute in drouth seasons. The alkilinity, mineral content, temperature and flow was th ebest at the Gilkeson site of any of the eleven proposed sites tested.

Federal Merit System Regulations Called State's Rights Invasion

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 27. (AP)—While one state department rearranged its personnel set-up today to meet Federal merit system regulations, another saw a wolf at the door in the form of invasion of "state's rights."

Public Assistance Director A. W. Garnett, home from Atlanta where seven state directors aired protests to the Federal plan at a meeting Saturday, said their opposition had "nothing in common" with state departments of unemployment compensation.

"This is not designed as a quarrel or rebellion," said Garnett. "We are in accord with the law providing for a merit system but we object to the interpretation given it on the ground Washington would appropriate a function that rightfully belongs to the states."

Meanwhile, John S. Stump, unemployment compensation director, said that "we will have a plan ready before the deadline of January 1."

He explained that his department, as a beneficiary of Federal funds, came under the social security amendment requiring a merit system, the penalty to be witholding of federal funds from non-complying departments after January 1.

Stump said the program would affect 508 workers in his department. It will entail the appointment of an examining board and an examining supervisor, probably by the governor.

He said a merit plan now in effect in the employment service division of his department would be superseded by the Federally prescribed program.

Whether present employes will be subjected to qualifying or competitive examinations has not been determined, but all vacancies after January 1 will be filled on a competitive basis, Stump added.

Stump expressed a hope that a common register for eligibles could be maintained between his own and the department of public assistance from which to choose new employes.

Asked what course his dissenting group would pursue if Washington insisted upon carrying out the letter of its instructions, Garnett said:

"I am convinced that reason still rules in Washington and that we will be given a considerate hearing."

"I see no reason," he continued, "why we should abolish a perfectly good merit system that is already working satisfactorily and upset our complete program by adopting something new."

Army Engineers Approve Project For Flood Wall

Construction Work along New Creek Will Be Done by WPA

Keyser, W. Va., Nov. 27—Mayor John C. Freeland said this morning he had been informed by Congressman Jennings Randolph that United States Army engineers have given full approval to a project calling for the construction of a floodwall along New Creek here with WPA labor.

Specifications of the plan, submitted for approval last August to the engineers provide for erection of barriers against rising waters of the mountain stream from its mouth at the Potomac river, at the northernmost city boundary, to the southern city limits. Freeland said that according to plans, the wall will not be continuous. It will be built in sections at known danger spots where the stream has broken from its banks in the past.

Surveyors today were taking measurements at the site of the section of the dike first scheduled for erection, north of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks on North Water street. Part of a temporary floodwall along the street which flanks the stream on the west was undermined last winter by the water.

When questioned as to how the city of Keyser would raise money to match WPA funds allotted for construction of the wall, Freeland said "we'll build as we can and pay as we go. When we run out of money we'll quit until we get more." The mayor stated that the percentage of funds required from the municipality's coffers was as yet undetermined, but that Keyser would not have to furnish more than twenty-six per cent of the total expenditure. The mayor said the city's money would be used to pay bills resulting from purchases of material and equipment used by WPA workers.

The first portion of the wall scheduled for construction will extend from the north along North Water street of the downstream abutment of the B. and O. railroad bridge to a point sixty-six feet below.

Freeland insisted that full credit for expedition of approval of the floodwall project be accorded to Randolph. The Keyser mayor said that action on the approval of the plan submitted to the army board last August was slow, until the legislator from Elkins took it upon himself to speed up matters.

Ever since the incorporation of the city of Keyser, residents living on streets paralleling New Creek have been plagued by rising waters. One year, ice in the creek diverted the flow of water to Water street, flooding cellars and depositing sediment on floors, pavements and roadbeds near the stream. At that time it was necessary for city officials to enlist the aid of State Roads Commission engineers in dynamiting the ice to clear the way for the water to its natural runway.

Written Lease Stabilizes Rural Rehabilitation

Benefiting Allegany and Garrett County Tenant Farmers

Grantsville, Nov. 27 — To encourage improved tenure arrangements and a better feeling between landlord and tenant, the Farm Security Administration has prepared a flexible farm lease which is gaining in popularity in Maryland, according to Nicholas L. Zabenco, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor at the office here which serves Garrett and Allegany Counties.

Mr. Zabenco said "most of the difficulties between landlord and tenant arise from verbal agreements or minor questions not discussed at the time the farm is leased, and our new written lease form is proving an important step toward the creation of greater mutual confidence between the two parties". The large majority of the Garrett and Allegany County farm tenants who apply for Farm Security loans have only verbal agreements with their landlords, he said, and no assurance that they will remain on the farm more than one year. This is not conducive to the stability of the family and proper care of the soil.

The Supervisor said they insist on a written lease whenever possible and that already more than half of their tenant borrowers were using this form which is especially applicable to Garrett and Allegany County conditions.

Besides introducing these written lease forms, Mr. Zabenco pointed out that the farm management plans which he works out with the tenant are also discussed with the landlord. This understanding, he believes, contributes materially to the successful rehabilitation of the family.

Construction of Bass Hatchery Gets under Way

Nursery at Gilkeson Old Fields Site Will Hold 50,000 Fish

Moorefield, W. Va., Nov. 27.—The bass nursery now under construction by the Bureau of Fisheries under the supervision of the Leetown Hatchery at the Gilkeson Old Fields site will have a yearly capacity of 50,000 bass three to six inches long, according to the estimate of John Gardner, foreman in charge of construction.

The bass hatchery was the result of efforts on the part of sportsmen in Hardy, Hampshire, Grant and Pendleton counties and the active help of Congressman Jennings Randolph.

The sportsmen organized as the South Branch Valley Fish and Game Association with M. A. Bean as president. They raised the money from the four counties to purchase the site and gave it to the government. The organization will have a voice in the distribution of the bass when the nursery gets into production next summer.

Seventeen men started constructing a road Monday from U. S. Highway 220 near Old Fields toward the site of the hatchery two and a half miles west. The men are constructing a series of stock gates as well as the road. A $6,500 WPA project has been set up for the workmen.

Actual construction on the four rearing ponds as well as the dam will start late this week and a log house will be constructed on the site. The hatchery will be completed within sixty days if cold weather does not hamper the work.

The Gilkeson site was purchased for the government after a series of exhaustive tests in the four counties. The water supply is estimated at 500 gallons per minute with a minimum flow of 300 gallons per minute in drouth seasons. The alkilinity, mineral content, temperature and flow was th ebest at the Gilkeson site of any of the eleven proposed sites tested.

Eugene C. Surber, aqua-biologist with the Bureau of Fisheries at Leetown is the superintendent of the project.

Federal Merit System Regulations Called State's Rights Invasion

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 27. (AP)—While one state department rearranged its personnel set-up today to meet Federal merit system regulations, another saw a wolf at the door in the form of invasion of "state's rights."

Public Assistance Director A. W. Garnett, home from Atlanta where seven state directors aired protests to the Federal plan at a meeting Saturday, said their opposition had "nothing in common" with state departments of unemployment compensation.

"This is not designed as a quarrel or rebellion," said Garnett. "We are in accord with the law providing for a merit system but we object to the interpretation given it on the ground Washington would appropriate a function that rightfully belongs to the states."

Meanwhile, John S. Stump, unemployment compensation director, said that "we will have a plan ready before the deadline of January 1."

He explained that his department, as a beneficiary of Federal funds, came under the social security amendment requiring a merit system, the penalty to be witholding of federal funds from non-complying departments after January 1.

Stump said the program would affect 508 workers in his department. It will entail the appointment of an examining board and an examining supervisor, probably by the governor.

He said a merit plan now in effect in the employment service division of his department would be superseded by the Federally prescribed program.

Whether present employes will be subjected to qualifying or competitive examinations has not been determined, but all vacancies after January 1 will be filled on a competitive basis, Stump added.

Stump expressed a hope that a common register for eligibles could be maintained between his own and the department of public assistance from which to choose new employes.

Asked what course his dissenting group would pursue if Washington insisted upon carrying out the letter of its instructions, Garnett said:

"I am convinced that reason still rules in Washington and that we will be given a considerate hearing."

"I see no reason," he continued, "why we should abolish a perfectly good merit system that is already working satisfactorily and upset our complete program by adopting something new."

Army Engineers Approve Project For Flood Wall

Construction Work along New Creek Will Be Done by WPA

Keyser, W. Va., Nov. 27—Mayor John C. Freeland said this morning he had been informed by Congressman Jennings Randolph that United States Army engineers have given full approval to a project calling for the construction of a floodwall along New Creek here with WPA labor.

Specifications of the plan, submitted for approval last August to the engineers provide for erection of barriers against rising waters of the mountain stream from its mouth at the Potomac river, at the northernmost city boundary, to the southern city limits. Freeland said that according to plans, the wall will not be continuous. It will be built in sections at known danger spots where the stream has broken from its banks in the past.

Surveyors today were taking measurements at the site of the section of the dike first scheduled for erection, north of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks on North Water street. Part of a temporary floodwall along the street which flanks the stream on the west was undermined last winter by the water.

When questioned as to how the city of Keyser would raise money to match WPA funds allotted for construction of the wall, Freeland said "we'll build as we can and pay as we go. When we run out of money we'll quit until we get more." The mayor stated that the percentage of funds required from the municipality's coffers was as yet undetermined, but that Keyser would not have to furnish more than twenty-six per cent of the total expenditure. The mayor said the city's money would be used to pay bills resulting from purchases of material and equipment used by WPA workers.

The first portion of the wall scheduled for construction will extend from the north along North Water street of the downstream abutment of the B. and O. railroad bridge to a point sixty-six feet below.

Freeland insisted that full credit for expedition of approval of the floodwall project be accorded to Randolph. The Keyser mayor said that action on the approval of the plan submitted to the army board last August was slow, until the legislator from Elkins took it upon himself to speed up matters.

Ever since the incorporation of the city of Keyser, residents living on streets paralleling New Creek have been plagued by rising waters. One year, ice in the creek diverted the flow of water to Water street, flooding cellars and depositing sediment on floors, pavements and roadbeds near the stream. At that time it was necessary for city officials to enlist the aid of State Roads Commission engineers in dynamiting the ice to clear the way for the water to its natural runway.

Written Lease Stabilizes Rural Rehabilitation

Benefiting Allegany and Garrett County Tenant Farmers

Grantsville, Nov. 27 — To encourage improved tenure arrangements and a better feeling between landlord and tenant, the Farm Security Administration has prepared a flexible farm lease which is gaining in popularity in Maryland, according to Nicholas L. Zabenco, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor at the office here which serves Garrett and Allegany Counties.

Mr. Zabenco said "most of the difficulties between landlord and tenant arise from verbal agreements or minor questions not discussed at the time the farm is leased, and our new written lease form is proving an important step toward the creation of greater mutual confidence between the two parties". The large majority of the Garrett and Allegany County farm tenants who apply for Farm Security loans have only verbal agreements with their landlords, he said, and no assurance that they will remain on the farm more than one year. This is not conducive to the stability of the family and proper care of the soil.

The Supervisor said they insist on a written lease whenever possible and that already more than half of their tenant borrowers were using this form which is especially applicable to Garrett and Allegany County conditions.

Besides introducing these written lease forms, Mr. Zabenco pointed out that the farm management plans which he works out with the tenant are also discussed with the landlord. This understanding, he believes, contributes materially to the successful rehabilitation of the family.

He made a conscious effort and the jaws parted, opening further than they had in five years.

But doctors decreed that he should continue for a while the liquied diet which has provided his sustenance over the five-year period.

Thee operating surgeon explained that Jimmy had an operation at the age of two, after which scar tissue formed, slowly forcing his jaws tighter together, until, before the most recent operation he could open his mouth only one-eighth of an inch. Ankylosis of the jay, the surgeon called it.

They assaulted her, she testified, and twice pulled the trigger of a pistol thrust into Aiken's side. The gun did not fire.

Attended by a servant and nurse, Mrs. Aiken identified masks, the pistol, a flash light, and Aiken's pocketknife, which police said they found the next day in a room occupied by Sanchez and Kenton.

Ying-Hsing Says China Makes First Downs

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—General Wen Ying-Hsing, 52, the first Chinese graduated from the United States military academy and now in command of China's huge revenue guard, said today he flew from Chungking to the United States to see the army-navy football game.

"In the game Saturday, I expect to learn some new tactics that we can use against the Japanese," said the general, smiling.

In a more serious vein, he said he had flown incognito from China's temporary capital to Washington on a secret mission. All he would say about it was that it was "successful." He will return to Chungking after the game Saturday.

Mixing football and war in generous proportions, Wen said "China has the ball, and she's been making first downs regularly."

"Japan," he said, 'has had a few breaks so far. She is broke financially. Now we are breaking her soldiers' hearts."

Wen was graduated from West Point with the class of 1909.

Wen said Japanese occupation is effective only along principal railroads and highways in China.

"And I know," he said, "we have no trouble at all collecting our regular revenues from Japanese-occupied territories.

Farm Unionization Strongly Opposed

Snow Hill, Md., Nov. 27 (AP)—C. Edward Wise, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Maryland farm bureau, advised Worcester county farmers tonight to organize a defense against a possible attempted extension of unionization of the farms.

"The principal problems ahead for farmers are a good relationship with labor groups and the obtaining of better prices," Wise told farmers and others at the Worcester county farm bureau's 16th annual banquet.

Farmers should organize against unions, he said, to maintain a right to take their produce to town and unload it from their trucks without holding union membership.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, urged the farmers to oppose legislation which he said would provide that the farmer would deal directly with the federal government in agricultural programs, instead of through county and state offices at at present.

Male Student Enrolls In Weaving Course

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—A husky male has enrolled in the weaving course of the Marshall College home economics department.

But it's not because he wants to learn to darn his own socks or is planning to take up tatting as a life profession.

Gary Cheatham, of Bluefield, is majoring in textile engineering, and he says the weaving course offers him a chance to learn more about fabrics than any other which the college provides.

"There were some remarks among the girl students when I showed up for the first class, but not now," he said. "They've become used to seeing me in the class. But students passing by the classroom still look surprised to see a man among all those women."

Cheatham plans to study at Marshall for two or three years and then complete his course at a Philadelphia college.

"And, I'll have to take up sewing there."

Hull Vigorously Defends Program To Boost Trade

Secretary Replies to Criticism from Members of Congress

Washington, Nov. 27. (AP)—Secretary Hull vigorously defended his reciprocal trade program in the face of new criticism from members of Congress.

In response to a request for comment on a speech of Prime Minister Chamberlain Sunday night, Hull expressed gratification because the declared that a full and lasting trade between nations would be a necessary foundation for any peace.

The State Department head described the reciprocal trade program as an instrument for building "mutually benegcial international commerce," and made clear his view that the program might be employed to increase such commerce when the present European war ends.

New Picture of Program

Shortly before the statement was made public, a different picture of the trade program had been drawn by Senator Johnson (D-Colo), who told the committee for reciprocity information that it opened American markets to unneeded foreign raw materials without obligating foreign countries to buy American goods.

Testifying at the start of hearings on a proposed trade agreement with Chile, Johnson asserted that "among all the nations of the earth, we are the only nation deliberately urging the importation of raw materials of which we already have a surplus.

"Such a grievous policy makes utterly foolish the wage hour act and the multitude of other legislative efforts to raise the standards of living here."

Program May Lapse

The Colorado senator predicted Congress would permit the trade agreements program to lapse on its scheduled expiration date next June 12.

Hull's remarks today were accepted as a plain indication that he would make a fight for continuance of the program.

In addition to the criticism of th eprogram by Johnson and other legislators at today's hearing, the office of Senator Vandenberg made public a letter in which the Michigan Republican suggested to Hull that trade agreements should be worked out "on a realistic basis in essentially non-competitive commodities."

Hull told his press conference he had not read Vandenberg's letter, but that it would be given full consideration.

U. S. Supplies Brought From "Struck" Firm

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The New York regional offices of the National Labor Relations Board and two other federal agencies, today were purchasing printing supplies from a New York firm against which a labor strike is being waged.

The labor board, the justice department and the securities and exchange commission are under contract to the law brief press for supplies for the New York City offices, representing about seventy per cent of the shop's output.

The printing firm has been picketed since Sept. 12 on the contention of the Typographical Union No. 6 that the company clandestinely changed from a union to an open shop in violation of the union's contract.

The federal agencies, however, said U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill, whose department drafted and awarded contracts for the printing, were compelled by federal regulations to accept the offer of the lowest bidder which, in this case, was the Law Brief Press.

The union contended the contracts were so drawn that no union printer could bid on the work and asked the federal agencies to seek changes in contract stipulations to remove the prohibition.

The Morning After Taking Carter's Little Liver Pills

Jack Dempsey Once Dug Coal in Logan Field, Veteran Recalls

Logan, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—Thirty-five years ago this week, three men hauled to market the first load of commercial soft coal ever dug in what was to become one of the nation's major fields.

Of the trio, Tom Gilpin still is employed at the Gay Coal and Coke Company's mine.

This week he will join with Don Ellis, 74-year-old ice dealer, to help the company celebrate the anniversary.

Uriah Gartin, who with Gilpin and Ellis, hauled the first load to market in mule-drawn wagons, is dead.

Before the coal field opened up, Ellis recalled, "Logan was just a great country for feudin', and that's about all."

In 1912, Ellis' young nephew came from Colorado to dig coal with his father, Hiram Dempsey.

"Jack worked around until February, then struck out again for Colorado," Ellis remembered. "He had $13 that he saved up working in the mines."

The trail of Jack Dempsey—from Colorado west and east to the Heavyweight Championship of the World—is perhaps better known than the industrial trail which Ellis, Gartin and Gilpin had a small part in blazing.

Boy Can Open Mouth Now after Years Of Liquid Diet

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—Seven-year-old Jimmy McLaughlin of Huntersville, Pocohontas county, came out of the ether at a Huntington hospital, and after the fog cleared from his mind, was urged to try to open his mouth.

He made a conscious effort and the jaws parted, opening further than they had in five years.

"Gee," breathed Jimmy, "I'd like to bite an apple."

But doctors decreed that he should continue for a while the liquied diet which has provided his sustenance over the five-year period.

Thee operating surgeon explained that Jimmy had an operation at the age of two, after which scar tissue formed, slowly forcing his jaws tighter together, until, before the most recent operation he could open his mouth only one-eighth of an inch. Ankylosis of the jay, the surgeon called it.

He promised that it wouldn't be long before Jimmy could try eating an apple.

Decoyed Coyotes

Big Tralis, Wyo., (AP)—Stockmen reported a mysterious epidemic rife among coyotes in the isolated Nowood country, for many bodies lay along the highways without a mark on them. But it was just part of the campaign of Fred Marlman, inventor. He designed a new trap that shot a dose of poison into the coyote's mouth when he took hold of the bait. Ninety-two of the predatory animals were killed by Marlman in six weeks.

Two On Trial for Attack on Aged Woman

Easton, Md., Nov. 27 (AP) — A jury heard an 83-year-old Templeton, Md., woman, Mrs. Peter Aiken, testify in Circuit Court today that two men broke into her home Sept. 8, attacked her husband, and criminally assaulted her.

She identified them as Alvin Kenton and Thomas Sanchez, defendants charged with assault with intent to kill, and with criminal assault.

Mrs. Aiken said the men forced a screen door, demanded money of her husband, 80, beat him, and tried to smother him in a feather bed.

They assaulted her, she testified, and twice pulled the trigger of a pistol thrust into Aiken's side. The gun did not fire.

Attended by a servant and nurse, Mrs. Aiken identified masks, the pistol, a flash light, and Aiken's pocketknife, which police said they found the next day in a room occupied by Sanchez and Kenton.

Aiken was brought into the crowded courtroom in a wheelchair.

Mrs. Aiken said the men had been working on the road in front of her home.

The case was tried here on a change of venue from Queen Anne's county.

Ying-Hsing Says China Makes First Downs

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—General Wen Ying-Hsing, 52, the first Chinese graduated from the United States military academy and now in command of China's huge revenue guard, said today he flew from Chungking to the United States to see the army-navy football game.

"In the game Saturday, I expect to learn some new tactics that we can use against the Japanese," said the general, smiling.

In a more serious vein, he said he had flown incognito from China's temporary capital to Washington on a secret mission. All he would say about it was that it was "successful." He will return to Chungking after the game Saturday.

Mixing football and war in generous proportions, Wen said "China has the ball, and she's been making first downs regularly."

"Japan," he said, 'has had a few breaks so far. She is broke financially. Now we are breaking her soldiers' hearts."

Wen was graduated from West Point with the class of 1909.

Wen said Japanese occupation is effective only along principal railroads and highways in China.

"And I know," he said, "we have no trouble at all collecting our regular revenues from Japanese-occupied territories.

Farm Unionization Strongly Opposed

Snow Hill, Md., Nov. 27 (AP)—C. Edward Wise, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Maryland farm bureau, advised Worcester county farmers tonight to organize a defense against a possible attempted extension of unionization of the farms.

"The principal problems ahead for farmers are a good relationship with labor groups and the obtaining of better prices," Wise told farmers and others at the Worcester county farm bureau's 16th annual banquet.

Farmers should organize against unions, he said, to maintain a right to take their produce to town and unload it from their trucks without holding union membership.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, urged the farmers to oppose legislation which he said would provide that the farmer would deal directly with the federal government in agricultural programs, instead of through county and state offices at at present.

Male Student Enrolls In Weaving Course

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP)—A husky male has enrolled in the weaving course of the Marshall College home economics department.

But it's not because he wants to learn to darn his own socks or is planning to take up tatting as a life profession.

Gary Cheatham, of Bluefield, is majoring in textile engineering, and he says the weaving course offers him a chance to learn more about fabrics than any other which the college provides.

"There were some remarks among the girl students when I showed up for the first class, but not now," he said. "They've become used to seeing me in the class. But students passing by the classroom still look surprised to see a man among all those women."

Cheatham plans to study at Marshall for two or three years and then complete his course at a Philadelphia college.

"And, I'll have to take up sewing there."

Heavy Fire Hazard

Macon, Ga., Nov. 27 (AP)—Twice in one day firemen were called to an apartment house to check a blaze in the coal pile.

When the fire still resisted on the second visit, they shoveled the fuel from the basement—there were 30 tons of it.

West Front Quiet

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP)—The French high command's evening communique tonight said "a local infantry and artillery engagement occurred during the morning in the region east of the Moselle. Otherwise nothing to report."

Hull Vigorously Defends Program To Boost Trade

Secretary Replies to Criticism from Members of Congress

Washington, Nov. 27. (AP)—Secretary Hull vigorously defended his reciprocal trade program in the face of new criticism from members of Congress.

In response to a request for comment on a speech of Prime Minister Chamberlain Sunday night, Hull expressed gratification because the declared that a full and lasting trade between nations would be a necessary foundation for any peace.

The State Department head described the reciprocal trade program as an instrument for building "mutually benegcial international commerce," and made clear his view that the program might be employed to increase such commerce when the present European war ends.

Shortly before the statement was made public, a different picture of the trade program had been drawn by Senator Johnson (D-Colo), who told the committee for reciprocity information that it opened American markets to unneeded foreign raw materials without obligating foreign countries to buy American goods.

Testifying at the start of hearings on a proposed trade agreement with Chile, Johnson asserted that "among all the nations of the earth, we are the only nation deliberately urging the importation of raw materials of which we already have a surplus.

"Such a grievous policy makes utterly foolish the wage hour act and the multitude of other legislative efforts to raise the standards of living here."

Program May Lapse

The Colorado senator predicted Congress would permit the trade agreements program to lapse on its scheduled expiration date next June 12.

Hull's remarks today were accepted as a plain indication that he would make a fight for continuance of the program.

In addition to the criticism of th eprogram by Johnson and other legislators at today's hearing, the office of Senator Vandenberg made public a letter in which the Michigan Republican suggested to Hull that trade agreements should be worked out "on a realistic basis in essentially non-competitive commodities."

Hull told his press conference he had not read Vandenberg's letter, but that it would be given full consideration.

U. S. Supplies Brought From "Struck" Firm

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—The New York regional offices of the National Labor Relations Board and two other federal agencies, today were purchasing printing supplies from a New York firm against which a labor strike is being waged.

The labor board, the justice department and the securities and exchange commission are under contract to the law brief press for supplies for the New York City offices, representing about seventy per cent of the shop's output.

The printing firm has been picketed since Sept. 12 on the contention of the Typographical Union No. 6 that the company clandestinely changed from a union to an open shop in violation of the union's contract.

The federal agencies, however, said U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill, whose department drafted and awarded contracts for the printing, were compelled by federal regulations to accept the offer of the lowest bidder which, in this case, was the Law Brief Press.

The union contended the contracts were so drawn that no union printer could bid on the work and asked the federal agencies to seek changes in contract stipulations to remove the prohibition.

DICK TRACY—Time Marches On

Busmen To Vote Today For or Against Union

Labor Board Election By Secret Ballot Set For This Afternoon

Forty-four bus drivers of the Potomac Edison Company will be eligible to vote at an NLRB election today to determine if an AF of L union shall be their exclusive representative for the purpose of collective bargaining.

The election will be held at the car barn of the company on North Centre street from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. under the direction of W. M. Aicher, regional director of the fifth region of the National Labor Relations Board.

Yes or No

Bus drivers will vote "yes" or "no" on a secret ballot asking "do you wish to be represented by the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, Local Division No. 1110, as the exclusive representative for collective bargaining?"

According to the notice of election, those eligible to vote are "all bus drivers of the Potomac Edison Company operating buses in Cumberland, Md., and all mechanics and service men engaged in servicing the buses of the company used in Cumberland, on the payroll of Nov. 5 and for two weeks ending Oct. 31, 1939."

No Electioneering

As stated in the notice of election, voters will be allowed to vote without interference, restraint or coercion. Electioneering will not be permitted at or near the voting places.

According to Section 12 of the National Labor Relations Act, any person who willfully resists, prevents or impedes with the board's agents in performance of its duties shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than a year, or both.

Secret Voting

In conducting an election, an agent of the regional director personally hands a ballot to each eligible worker at the voting place. The voter then marks his ballot in secret in a voting booth, folds it, and deposits it in the ballot box under the supervision of an agent of the regional director.

An equal number of authorized observers for each voting place may be appointed by the unorganized employes of the Potomac Edison Company and by Local 1110.

Observers Limited

The number of authorized observers will be determined by the regional director. Their duties and privileges include acting as checkers and watchers at the voting place, assisting in the identification of the voters, challenging voters and ballots, and assisting the regional director and his agents in the conduct of the election.

At the close of the voting the ballot boxes are sealed and will remain in the custody of the regional director, who counts and tabulates the ballots in th epresence of the authorized observers. This is done as soon as possible after the close of the voting.

Today's election is being held as the result of an agreement between the Potomac Edison Company, represented by Henry W. Price, manager, and the newly organized local union, represented by Floyd W. Kreisel.

Building Permits Total $29,665 in Value

Sixteen building permits calling for a total of $29,665 worth of construction were issued during the fiscal month of November in the office of City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

November marked the third straight month that construction values were under the 1938 level, Rizer reported.

Nineteen permits were issued last November calling for $46,931 worth of construction.

A total of 246 permits have been granted for the eleven months of 1939 as compared to 192 for the same period in 1938, the city engineer said.

Construction costs for this year have amounted to $787,047 compared to $331,164 during the first eleven months of last year and $333,714.34 for all of 1938.

Neighbors Help in Hunt For Bobby's Pet Scottie

The whole neighborhood is loking for little Bobby Beeche's pet Scottie, which disappeared from the back yard at 200 Grand avenue Sunday night under circumstances indicating foul play.

Bobby's mother, Mrs. Earl Beeche, reported last night that "Clinker," who is three years old and black in color, except for a trace of brindle, is still missing, despite the fact that neighbor children are hunting for her and that a look-out was announced yesterday in school.

"Clinker" never had strayed from the back yard at night before, she said. Bobby, aged 9, is very sad about his pet's disappearance. A reward has been offered.

CIO Convention In Baltimore Raps Cumberland

U. S. Asked To Probe City's 'Disgraceful' Handbill Situation

A resolution protesting the "un-American conduct" of Cumberland's mayor and city council in enforcing the "unconstutional" handbill ordinance was adopted b the Maryland and District of Columbia convention of CIO unions, which opened yesterday in Baltimore.

The convention asked that the Justice department investigate "this disgraceful state of affairs."

Wants 40-Cent Minimum in 1940

As reported by the Associated Press, other major resolutions asked extension of the federal wage-hour law to groups now excluded, and that the forty-cent minimum wage be made effective next October instead of in 1945.

Earlier the Rev. John J. Cronin, faculty member of St. Mary's seminary, told delegates not to "be suckers for Hitler and Stalin."

Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, was scheduled to speak last night, but he was called to Detroit by the Chrysler plant strike and his prepared address was read by Leo Pressman, CIO general counsel.

"Unions Needed for Democracy"

Murray's speech declared a "sound responsible union is as necessary in a democracy as the profit system."

"Once we have strong unions in American industry," he said, "then we no longer need to be concerned about the propagation of democracy, because unions, such as represented by the CIO, believe that industry is entitled to make a profit; they believe that the stockholders are entitled to a fair return on their investment; they believe that the public, as well as the workers, have an interest in the promotion of peaceful industrial relations—peaceful industrial relations predicated on justice for the employer and for the employe. These things are democracy."

Murray said the SWOC had signed labor contracts, covering 600,000 workers, with 626 steel firms and asserted that since the formation of the union, the nation's steel workers had received annual wage increases amounting to approximately $287,000,000.

Murray-Freeman

Announcement was made here yesterday of the marriage of Gordon M. Murray, of Chicago, to Miss Frances Freeman, of Chicago, on Nov. 8, 1939.

Mr. Murray is the son of Dr. F. A. G. Murray, of Cumberland. He was formerly employed here by the Western Maryland Railroad, but now has a position with DuPont in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray are planning to visit Dr. Murray during the Christmas holidays, and will be at home in Chicago after the first of the year.

FOOTBALL PROBLEM—Cumberland police aren't worried about who should go to the Rose Bowl. They're wondering what to do with several dozen pigskins, of all shapes, sizes, and degrees of inflation, which were taken away from boys playing in the street this fall. Station Manager Pleads Guilty

Fine Suspended In Handbill Case

A. R. Wiseman, manager of the Sunoco service station at Henderson avenue and Fulton street, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of violating Cumberland's handbill ordinance when arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Wiseman told the court he had given several boys a bunch of pamphlets advertising an anti-freeze solution, for automobile radiators, which they were to distribute.

Magistrate Perdew fined Wiseman $10 and costs from the Police court bench and then suspended the fine when Wiseman agreed to obtain a permit for future business solicitation by handbills.

Officers Louis E. Daniels and Luther L. Youngblood arrested Wiseman when they saw the boys employed by him placing the bills under the windshield wipers of parked cars.

Street Improvement Job Backfired, Says Ex-Judge; 'Unfair,' Replies Mayor

A bill of $300 was submitted to the mayor and city council yesterday by former Judge Albert A. Doub for damages suffered by his property as the result of a municipal street improvement program.

According to the letter submitted to council by Mr. Doub, recent improvements on Arnett terrace prevent access to two of his lots on that street.

After the communication had been read by Council Clerk S. E. Griminger, Mayor Harry Irvine promptly termed the property owner's request as "unfair."

"Those improvements were requested," the mayor declared, "and everybody who has been up there to see those improvements say it is one of the nicest jobs ever done. That improvement has prevented various lots from being washed out during rain storms."

Mr. Doub's letter was ordered filed.

Cobbler, 79, Rejoices That Barber Saved 'Loafing Place' from Blaze

Herman G. Lehman, 79-year-old cobbler, was in a rare good humor last night about the fire in his shop.

To begin with, there was more excitement than fire.

And in the second place, Mr. Lehman got many a hearty chuckle as he told of the fate he had so narrowly escaped.

Not that he nearly burned up, for he had locked up and gone home yesterday afternoon before blaze was discovered.

And not that it would have been such a terrible catastrophe if the place had burned down, for Mr. Lehman's shoemaking days are practically over.

"But I need that place," he said with a heart-warming grim. "I got to have some place to loaf. Can't stay around the house. The women folks are always thinking up something for me to do. You know how it is."

The reporter knew how it was all right, and a chorus of feminine laughter from the direction of the kitchen indicated the joke was appreciated in that region of the house, too.

Mr. Lehman had already gotten home to 549 Greene street when he heard about the fire, which started on the floor of the little shop on South Johnson street, near the Blue bridge to Ridgeley.

Some boys across the street discovered it, and broke the lock. Meanwhile Fred Driscoll, putting on a one-man fire department act, came dashing out of his barber shop next door and extinguished the blaze shortly before West Side firemen arrived. Firemen said hot ashes had caught the floor.

The shop is something of a landmark. Mr. Lehman has been there for nearly thirty years, started cobbling the day after City Hall burned in March, 1910, to be exact.

And he expects to keep on cobbling or at least entertaining his cronies in the shop, until odd jobs at home run out.

Mr. Lehman laughed about opening up for business as usual today. "Why, I only took in ten cents the whole day," he said. "People don't appreciate a good hand job anymore. They go uptown to the shops where they can get a cheaper job done by machines."

He wasn't disgrunted about machine age business, though. But he was glad that Fred Driscoll and firemen saved his "club."

Legion Meets Tonight

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, will hold a regular meeting at its rooms on Harrison street this evening at 8 o'clock.

Mt. Savage Plans Big Mass Meeting

Can't Hold Session In School Building

A rousing mass meeting to discuss "the deliberate neglect by the board of education" of Mt. Savage schools was announced last night by Lester B. Reed, member of the state legislature and chairman of the Mt. Savage citizens committee.

The meeting will be held next Monday night, Dec. 4, at 8 p. m. in St. Patrick's hall.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble will be the chief speaker.

The citizens committee reported that, because they expect the meeting to be of a political nature, they had sent a registered, special delivery letter to School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp asking whether the meeting could be held in the school auditorium.

Mr. Reed reported that Mr. Kopp made no reply to the letter.

The meeting is expected to discuss legislation calling for a "reform" of the present system of appointing county boards of education instead of electing them, Mr. Reed said.

Young Parents Lectured For Seeking Divorce

A young man and his younger wife faced the possibility today of relinquishing the custody of their two small children if they persist in their efforts to obtain a divorce.

This stern warning was handed down by Associate Judge William A. Huster as taking of testimony was completed in Circuit court in the suit and counter-suit of Thomas Marshall Llewellyn and Mrs. Marian Genevieve Llewellyn.

Stressing the fact that the court will do what it considers best for the children, Judge Huster said, "It may be that neither of you will have the right to even see them."

Couple Willing to Share Babies

Each had asked custody of the children, one and two years of age, and then a compromise had suggested that they might be separated, one to be in the custody of Llewellyn, the other in the custody of Mrs. Llewellyn.

The jurist lectured the young couple at length on the seriousness of marriage and the responsibilities it entails.

Then, after issuing the warning about the children, he said he would decide the case later, giving the couple an opportunity to effect a reconciliation if possible.

"I can't make you live together," Judge Huster said. "I wouldn't want to make you unless you wanted to.

"Can Get Along"

"But you could get along if you wanted to. There's no reason why any couple can't get along if they'll do the right thing, and one or both of them doesn't seek to have his way exclusively."

Judge Huster emphasized the couple's responsibility as parents and told them, "Both of you should go back together and make a home for these children."

Llewellyn had filed suit through Attorney W. Earle Cobey, charging desertion. Later his wife, through Attorney Morgan C. Harris, filed a cross-bill of complaint, alleging cruelty and "constructive desertion.

Raps Gadding About

Commenting on testimony indicating that Mrs. Llewellyn had gone out at night frequently, Judge Huster said, "No mother has the right to neglect her children."

Then, turning to Llewellyn and referring to testimony that he had blacked his wife's eye, he declared, "And no man has the right to beat or strike his wife."

He renewed again his plea that the couple try to patch up their differences.

The couple was married, according to the testimony, April 9, 1936, when Mrs. Llewellyn was 15, her husband, 21. They lived together until August of this year.

Police Boys Club To Get Passes To Local Theater

Membership Grows, As Youths Engage In Varied Sports

Membership in the Saturday recreation group for boys continued to swell on Nov. 18 and 25, it was reported yesterday by Officer J. E. Kelly Jr., who is in charge of the program.

Thirty-one boys, including eleven new members, attended the morning session at Fort Hill High School Saturday. Schools represented were Pennsylvania Avenue, John Humbird, Johnson Heights, East Side, and Fort Hill.

The sound movie, "Safari on Wheels," depicting a newsreel tour of Africa, was shown at Fort Hill, Nov. 18. The picture, "News of the Air" was shown to the group Saturday.

Twenty-one boys, including ten new members, attended Saturday's afternoon session at Allegany High where the picture, "A Tour of New York City," was shown.

Boys in both classes played basketball, volleyball and were given boxing instruction. Officer Kelley was assisted by Richard Dawson, a former Golden Gloves champion and a member of the "Y" boxing team, with the boxing instruction.

Officer Kelly announced last night that Carl B. Sherred, manager of the Strand Theater, has offered theater passes to all members of the group who the leaders think deserve them.

To receive theater passes, the boys must attend school regularly, do good class work, and have good deportment, Officer Kelley said. A weekly check-up with the principals of the various schools will be made, Kelley said.

Noise Ordinance Is Resurrected

Retreading Plants On Pan Again

An old anti-noise ordinance tabled in 1938 was resurrected yesterday by the mayor and city council for the purpose of quieting down the night activity of the Independent Motor Fuel Co., Harrison and Centre streets.

The tabled ordinance pulled out of the sock yesterday was originally intended to prohibit a business repair or manufacturing plant from making noise or creating odors that prevent persons living in the vicinity from sleeping between the hours of 10 p. m. and 6 a. m.

Recent complaints from the vicinity of Harrison and Centre streets concerning the Independent Motor Fuel Co., a retreading establishment, are justified, according to police.

The ordinance was read this morning and will be given final approval next Monday unless the racket ceases, the mayor and council said.

The ordinance was first introduced Oct. 3, 1938, and tabled Nov. 7, 1938, after retreading establishments in the city promised to cut down on the noise during the night.

Brothers Fight For Same Girl; One Stabbed

Other Brother Jailed After Spending Night Hiding in Woods

What was believed to be a quarrel over a girl had resulted today in the serious wounding of one [illegible] and arrest of his brother after a manhunt in the Garrett county woods.

In Miners hospital at Frostburg was 34-year-old George Fazenbaker of the Bear Creek section early today. Accident, with a severe stab wound in his chest. Attendants said his condition was "slightly improved" last night, although still serious.

Dr. John Kilday refused to disclose any information concerning the case, but The News learned that the victim suffered a puncture wound between the third and fourth ribs on the left side.

The knife might have penetrated the lung it was said.

Brother Under Arrest

In the Garrett county jail at Oakland was Fazenbaker's 37-year-old brother, Louis, accused of the stabbing.

He was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Sheriff J. W. Owens and State Police Corporal Thomas Currie.

He had been at large since about 7:15 p. m. Sunday, when the fight reportedly occurred. Sheriff Owens said the man spent the night in the woods and returned yesterday to the home of his grandfather, where the officers surprised him.

Summer Camp Robbed

Formal charges growing out of the stabbing were not immediately preferred, pending the outcome of his brother's condition. Sheriff Owens said he was being held for the time being on a charge of breaking and entering the summer cabin of a Pennsylvanian at Bear Creek in September and stealing a quantity of canned goods, clothing, bedclothes, and other articles.

The fight climaxed a party at the nearby home of George Beem in the course of which about three gallons of cider were consumed, the officers reported.

The authorities said they were told that Louis called George outside about 7:15 p. m., and the fight was on.

During the exchange of blows George received the knife wound in the chest, and Louis fled into the woods.

Given First Aid

As blood spurted from the wound friends rushed George to the office of Dr. Brown in Friendsville, where first aid was administered. He was later taken to Miners hospital in the ambulance of C. W. Savage, Friendsville undertaker.

Authorities were told that the brothers were interested in the same girl, who was a guest at the party also.

Because of the wounded man's condition, authorities were permitted to see him only briefly yesterday afternoon.

Have Prison Records

Sheriff Owens said that both men had prison records. Both were recently released from the Maryland penitentiary, where they had served five-year terms on forgery charges, he stated.

Each had previously served time for stealing sheep, and Louis had also been sentenced for a car theft, he added.

George is unmarried, according to the sheriff, but Louis is married although he and his wife are estranged.

Enoch A. McKenzie Dies at 81; Was Brewer Here for 37 Years

Enoch A. McKenzie, for thirty-seven years assistant brewmaster at the Cumberland Brewing Company, died yesterday at his home at 223 Carroll street. He was 81.

The veteran brewer, who was more commonly known as "Doc" by his associates, was born near Cresaptown in 1858, son of the late George and Susan McKenzie.

Mr. McKenzie was the youngest of fourteen children, all of whom he outlived. As a youth he helped his father on their Cresaptown farm and attended the old Winchester Bridge school.

Retired Nine Years Ago

At the age of twenty-four, Mr. McKenzie married Miss Margaret Rohman, of near Cresaptown whom he survived by fourteen years.

Fifty-two years ago, Mr. McKenzie came to Cumberland to live where he obtained employment with the Cumberland Cement Mill, one of the two jobs he held during his lifetime.

After working at the cement mill for fifteen years, Mr. McKenzie became affiliated with the Cumberland Brewing Company and continued to work there until his retirement nine years ago.

Paraded for Brewery

Relatives recalled last night that Mr. McKenzie used to represent the brewery in parades before automobiles came in vogue. In those days gayly decorated carriages and well-groomed horses were what constituted a smart-looking outfit.

They also stated that Mr. McKenzie worked with Conrad Metzger under A. J. Fesenmeier, who was brewmaster at the Cumberland Brewing Company for many years.

Mr. McKenzie was well-known in Cumberland and had a large number of friends. His chief interests were his home, his church, SS. Peter and Paul's, his job, and going hunting.

Liked To Hunt

Mr. McKenzie was very fond of hunting and in recent years had regretted having to give up tramping around in the woods with his gun. He also was fond of dogs, especially hounds. He was also very fond of baseball and carefully followed the records of "Lefty" Grove, Jimmy Foxx and "Babe" Ruth.

Surviving him are five sons, Clarence, Vincent and William, all of Cumberland, John A., of Chicago, and Enoch E., of Detroit; five daughters, Miss Helen McKenzie at home, Mrs. Albert Mullan, Mrs. John A. Glick, Mrs. Marian Mantheiy, and Mrs. Lawrence Mantheiy; sixteen grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Charming Hostesses Add Feminine Touch to Militarized 'Y' Drive

With only tweny-four hours remaining before the "zero hour," when more than 100 volunteer workers will go over the top in the annual "Join the 'Y' Campaign" to what General Chairman Roy W. Eves predicted will be the most successful drive the local Central "Y" has ever had, the ranks last night had been almost completely filled.

Although the "Y" campaign is drawn up along military lines, it has several advantages over the system Uncle Sam uses in the trenches.

Notable is the attachment to each division of a charming lady who acts as "hostess". The duty of a hostess includes, in addition to presiding at the daily report luncheons, calling each worker on the telephone each morning to get him out of bed and off to work. This is a big improvement over the old fashioned bugler with his "You Gotta Get Up".

O her names, announced included Ursula M. Condon, hostess of the "Red" battalion; Mrs. Ralph Doak, hostess of the "Brown" battalion, and Mrs. L. R. Meyers and Margaret Lucas, hostesses of the "Blue and Scarlet" battalion.

Frank B. Henson, F. H. Rockwell, Donald W. Smith, Ernest Hutcheson, E. L. Kuhn, Elza Nave, Ralph Doak, Robert McMillan, Mrs. Wilbur Bishop, Mrs. A. L. Rogers, Miss Mildred Diehl, Mrs. William Barrow, Mrs. Walter Johnson, Mrs. Ira Vandegrift, Mrs. Nicholas Jordano, Mrs. Phil Jolley, Mrs. Louis Baker, Mrs. Nell Frick, Mrs. Lloyd Lannich, and E. T. Busmen To Vote Today For or Against Union

Labor Board Election By Secret Ballot Set For This Afternoon

Forty-four bus drivers of the Potomac Edison Company will be eligible to vote at an NLRB election today to determine if an AF of L union shall be their exclusive representative for the purpose of collective bargaining.

The election will be held at the car barn of the company on North Centre street from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. under the direction of W. M. Aicher, regional director of the fifth region of the National Labor Relations Board.

Yes or No

Bus drivers will vote "yes" or "no" on a secret ballot asking "do you wish to be represented by the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, Local Division No. 1110, as the exclusive representative for collective bargaining?"

According to the notice of election, those eligible to vote are "all bus drivers of the Potomac Edison Company operating buses in Cumberland, Md., and all mechanics and service men engaged in servicing the buses of the company used in Cumberland, on the payroll of Nov. 5 and for two weeks ending Oct. 31, 1939."

No Electioneering

As stated in the notice of election, voters will be allowed to vote without interference, restraint or coercion. Electioneering will not be permitted at or near the voting places.

According to Section 12 of the National Labor Relations Act, any person who willfully resists, prevents or impedes with the board's agents in performance of its duties shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than a year, or both.

Secret Voting

In conducting an election, an agent of the regional director personally hands a ballot to each eligible worker at the voting place. The voter then marks his ballot in secret in a voting booth, folds it, and deposits it in the ballot box under the supervision of an agent of the regional director.

An equal number of authorized observers for each voting place may be appointed by the unorganized employes of the Potomac Edison Company and by Local 1110.

Observers Limited

The number of authorized observers will be determined by the regional director. Their duties and privileges include acting as checkers and watchers at the voting place, assisting in the identification of the voters, challenging voters and ballots, and assisting the regional director and his agents in the conduct of the election.

At the close of the voting the ballot boxes are sealed and will remain in the custody of the regional director, who counts and tabulates the ballots in th epresence of the authorized observers. This is done as soon as possible after the close of the voting.

Today's election is being held as the result of an agreement between the Potomac Edison Company, represented by Henry W. Price, manager, and the newly organized local union, represented by Floyd W. Kreisel.

Building Permits Total $29,665 in Value

Sixteen building permits calling for a total of $29,665 worth of construction were issued during the fiscal month of November in the office of City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

November marked the third straight month that construction values were under the 1938 level, Rizer reported.

Nineteen permits were issued last November calling for $46,931 worth of construction.

A total of 246 permits have been granted for the eleven months of 1939 as compared to 192 for the same period in 1938, the city engineer said.

Construction costs for this year have amounted to $787,047 compared to $331,164 during the first eleven months of last year and $333,714.34 for all of 1938.

Neighbors Help in Hunt For Bobby's Pet Scottie

The whole neighborhood is loking for little Bobby Beeche's pet Scottie, which disappeared from the back yard at 200 Grand avenue Sunday night under circumstances indicating foul play.

Bobby's mother, Mrs. Earl Beeche, reported last night that "Clinker," who is three years old and black in color, except for a trace of brindle, is still missing, despite the fact that neighbor children are hunting for her and that a look-out was announced yesterday in school.

"Clinker" never had strayed from the back yard at night before, she said. Bobby, aged 9, is very sad about his pet's disappearance. A reward has been offered.

CIO Convention In Baltimore Raps Cumberland

U. S. Asked To Probe City's 'Disgraceful' Handbill Situation

A resolution protesting the "un-American conduct" of Cumberland's mayor and city council in enforcing the "unconstutional" handbill ordinance was adopted b the Maryland and District of Columbia convention of CIO unions, which opened yesterday in Baltimore.

The convention asked that the Justice department investigate "this disgraceful state of affairs."

Wants 40-Cent Minimum in 1940

As reported by the Associated Press, other major resolutions asked extension of the federal wage-hour law to groups now excluded, and that the forty-cent minimum wage be made effective next October instead of in 1945.

Earlier the Rev. John J. Cronin, faculty member of St. Mary's seminary, told delegates not to "be suckers for Hitler and Stalin."

Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, was scheduled to speak last night, but he was called to Detroit by the Chrysler plant strike and his prepared address was read by Leo Pressman, CIO general counsel.

"Unions Needed for Democracy"

Murray's speech declared a "sound responsible union is as necessary in a democracy as the profit system."

"Once we have strong unions in American industry," he said, "then we no longer need to be concerned about the propagation of democracy, because unions, such as represented by the CIO, believe that industry is entitled to make a profit; they believe that the stockholders are entitled to a fair return on their investment; they believe that the public, as well as the workers, have an interest in the promotion of peaceful industrial relations—peaceful industrial relations predicated on justice for the employer and for the employe. These things are democracy."

Murray said the SWOC had signed labor contracts, covering 600,000 workers, with 626 steel firms and asserted that since the formation of the union, the nation's steel workers had received annual wage increases amounting to approximately $287,000,000.

Murray-Freeman

Announcement was made here yesterday of the marriage of Gordon M. Murray, of Chicago, to Miss Frances Freeman, of Chicago, on Nov. 8, 1939.

Mr. Murray is the son of Dr. F. A. G. Murray, of Cumberland. He was formerly employed here by the Western Maryland Railroad, but now has a position with DuPont in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray are planning to visit Dr. Murray during the Christmas holidays, and will be at home in Chicago after the first of the year.

FOOTBALL PROBLEM—Cumberland police aren't worried about who should go to the Rose Bowl. Station Manager Pleads Guilty

Fine Suspended In Handbill Case

A. R. Wiseman, manager of the Sunoco service station at Henderson avenue and Fulton street, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of violating Cumberland's handbill ordinance when arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Wiseman told the court he had given several boys a bunch of pamphlets advertising an anti-freeze solution, for automobile radiators, which they were to distribute.

Magistrate Perdew fined Wiseman $10 and costs from the Police court bench and then suspended the fine when Wiseman agreed to obtain a permit for future business solicitation by handbills.

Officers Louis E. Daniels and Luther L. Youngblood arrested Wiseman when they saw the boys employed by him placing the bills under the windshield wipers of parked cars.

Street Improvement Job Backfired, Says Ex-Judge; 'Unfair,' Replies Mayor

A bill of $300 was submitted to the mayor and city council yesterday by former Judge Albert A. Doub for damages suffered by his property as the result of a municipal street improvement program.

According to the letter submitted to council by Mr. Doub, recent improvements on Arnett terrace prevent access to two of his lots on that street.

After the communication had been read by Council Clerk S. E. Griminger, Mayor Harry Irvine promptly termed the property owner's request as "unfair."

"Those improvements were requested," the mayor declared, "and everybody who has been up there to see those improvements say it is one of the nicest jobs ever done. That improvement has prevented various lots from being washed out during rain storms."

Mr. Doub's letter was ordered filed.

Cobbler, 79, Rejoices That Barber Saved 'Loafing Place' from Blaze

Herman G. Lehman, 79-year-old cobbler, was in a rare good humor last night about the fire in his shop.

To begin with, there was more excitement than fire.

And in the second place, Mr. Lehman got many a hearty chuckle as he told of the fate he had so narrowly escaped.

Not that he nearly burned up, for he had locked up and gone home yesterday afternoon before blaze was discovered.

And not that it would have been such a terrible catastrophe if the place had burned down, for Mr. Lehman's shoemaking days are practically over.

"But I need that place," he said with a heart-warming grim. "I got to have some place to loaf. Can't stay around the house. The women folks are always thinking up something for me to do. You know how it is."

The reporter knew how it was all right, and a chorus of feminine laughter from the direction of the kitchen indicated the joke was appreciated in that region of the house, too.

Mr. Lehman had already gotten home to 549 Greene street when he heard about the fire, which started on the floor of the little shop on South Johnson street, near the Blue bridge to Ridgeley.

Some boys across the street discovered it, and broke the lock. Meanwhile Fred Driscoll, putting on a one-man fire department act, came dashing out of his barber shop next door and extinguished the blaze shortly before West Side firemen arrived. Firemen said hot ashes had caught the floor.

The shop is something of a landmark. Mr. Lehman has been there for nearly thirty years, started cobbling the day after City Hall burned in March, 1910, to be exact.

And he expects to keep on cobbling or at least entertaining his cronies in the shop, until odd jobs at home run out.

Mr. Lehman laughed about opening up for business as usual today. "Why, I only took in ten cents the whole day," he said. "People don't appreciate a good hand job anymore. They go uptown to the shops where they can get a cheaper job done by machines."

He wasn't disgruntled about machine age business, though. But he was glad that Fred Driscoll and firemen saved his "club."

Young Parents Lectured For Seeking Divorce

Police Boys Club To Get Passes To Local Theater

Membership Grows, As Youths Engage In Varied Sports

Membership in the Saturday recreation group for boys continued to swell on Nov. 18 and 25, it was reported yesterday by Officer J. E. Kelly Jr., who is in charge of the program.

Thirty-one boys, including eleven new members, attended the morning session at Fort Hill High School Saturday. Schools represented were Pennsylvania Avenue, John Humbird, Johnson Heights, East Side, and Fort Hill.

The sound movie, "Safari on Wheels," depicting a newsreel tour of Africa, was shown at Fort Hill, Nov. 18. The picture, "News of the Air" was shown to the group Saturday.

Twenty-one boys, including ten new members, attended Saturday's afternoon session at Allegany High where the picture, "A Tour of New York City," was shown.

Boys in both classes played basketball, volleyball and were given boxing instruction. Officer Kelley was assisted by Richard Dawson, a former Golden Gloves champion and a member of the "Y" boxing team, with the boxing instruction.

Officer Kelly announced last night that Carl B. Sherred, manager of the Strand Theater, has offered theater passes to all members of the group who the leaders think deserve them.

To receive theater passes, the boys must attend school regularly, do good class work, and have good deportment, Officer Kelley said. A weekly check-up with the principals of the various schools will be made, Kelley said.

At the present time, there are seventy-five members enrolled in the recreation group, Officer Kelley said. Officers R. V. Chisholm and J. J. Condon are assisting with the class work.

A young man and his younger wife faced the possibility today of relinquishing the custody of their two small children if they persist in their efforts to obtain a divorce.

This stern warning was handed down by Associate Judge William A. Huster as taking of testimony was completed in Circuit court in the suit and counter-suit of Thomas Marshall Llewellyn and Mrs. Marian Genevieve Llewellyn.

Stressing the fact that the court will do what it considers best for the children, Judge Huster said, "It may be that neither of you will have the right to even see them."

Couple Willing to Share Babies

Each had asked custody of the children, one and two years of age, and then a compromise had suggested that they might be separated, one to be in the custody of Llewellyn, the other in the custody of Mrs. Llewellyn.

The jurist lectured the young couple at length on the seriousness of marriage and the responsibilities it entails.

Then, after issuing the warning about the children, he said he would decide the case later, giving the couple an opportunity to effect a reconciliation if possible.

"I can't make you live together," Judge Huster said. "I wouldn't want to make you unless you wanted to.

"Can Get Along"

"But you could get along if you wanted to. There's no reason why any couple can't get along if they'll do the right thing, and one or both of them doesn't seek to have his way exclusively."

Judge Huster emphasized the couple's responsibility as parents and told them, "Both of you should go back together and make a home for these children."

Llewellyn had filed suit through Attorney W. Earle Cobey, charging desertion. Later his wife, through Attorney Morgan C. Harris, filed a cross-bill of complaint, alleging cruelty and "constructive desertion.

Raps Gadding About

Commenting on testimony indicating that Mrs. Llewellyn had gone out at night frequently, Judge Huster said, "No mother has the right to neglect her children."

Then, turning to Llewellyn and referring to testimony that he had blacked his wife's eye, he declared, "And no man has the right to beat or strike his wife."

He renewed again his plea that the couple try to patch up their differences.

The couple was married, according to the testimony, April 9, 1936, when Mrs. Llewellyn was 15, her husband, 21. They lived together until August of this year.

Mt. Savage Plans Big Mass Meeting

Can't Hold Session In School Building

A rousing mass meeting to discuss "the deliberate neglect by the board of education" of Mt. Savage schools was announced last night by Lester B. Reed, member of the state legislature and chairman of the Mt. Savage citizens committee.

The meeting will be held next Monday night, Dec. 4, at 8 p. m. in St. Patrick's hall.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble will be the chief speaker.

The citizens committee reported that, because they expect the meeting to be of a political nature, they had sent a registered, special delivery letter to School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp asking whether the meeting could be held in the school auditorium.

Mr. Reed reported that Mr. Kopp made no reply to the letter.

The meeting is expected to discuss legislation calling for a "reform" of the present system of appointing county boards of education instead of electing them, Mr. Reed said.

In the Garrett county jail at Oakland was Fazenbaker's 37-year-old brother, Louis, accused of the stabbing.

He was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Sheriff J. W. Owens and State Police Corporal Thomas Currie.

He had been at large since about 7:15 p. m. Sunday, when the fight reportedly occurred. Sheriff Owens said the man spent the night in the woods and returned yesterday to the home of his grandfather, where the officers surprised him.

Summer Camp Robbed

Formal charges growing out of the stabbing were not immediately preferred, pending the outcome of his brother's condition. Sheriff Owens said he was being held for the time being on a charge of breaking and entering the summer cabin of a Pennsylvanian at Bear Creek in September and stealing a quantity of canned goods, clothing, bedclothes, and other articles.

The fight climaxed a party at the nearby home of George Beem in the course of which about three gallons of cider were consumed, the officers reported.

The authorities said they were told that Louis called George outside about 7:15 p. m., and the fight was on.

During the exchange of blows George received the knife wound in the chest, and Louis fled into the woods.

Given First Aid

As blood spurted from the wound friends rushed George to the office of Dr. Brown in Friendsville, where first aid was administered. He was later taken to Miners hospital in the ambulance of C. W. Savage, Friendsville undertaker.

Authorities were told that the brothers were interested in the same girl, who was a guest at the party also.

Because of the wounded man's condition, authorities were permitted to see him only briefly yesterday afternoon.

Have Prison Records

Sheriff Owens said that both men had prison records. Both were recently released from the Maryland penitentiary, where they had served five-year terms on forgery charges, he stated.

Each had previously served time for stealing sheep, and Louis had also been sentenced for a car theft, he added.

George is unmarried, according to the sheriff, but Louis is married although he and his wife are estranged.

Enoch A. McKenzie Dies at 81; Was Brewer Here for 37 Years

Enoch A. McKenzie, for thirty-seven years assistant brewmaster at the Cumberland Brewing Company, died yesterday at his home at 223 Carroll street. He was 81.

The veteran brewer, who was more commonly known as "Doc" by his associates, was born near Cresaptown in 1858, son of the late George and Susan McKenzie.

Mr. McKenzie was the youngest of fourteen children, all of whom he outlived. As a youth he helped his father on their Cresaptown farm and attended the old Winchester Bridge school.

Retired Nine Years Ago

At the age of twenty-four, Mr. McKenzie married Miss Margaret Rohman, of near Cresaptown whom he survived by fourteen years.

Fifty-two years ago, Mr. McKenzie came to Cumberland to live where he obtained employment with the Cumberland Cement Mill, one of the two jobs he held during his lifetime.

After working at the cement mill for fifteen years, Mr. McKenzie became affiliated with the Cumberland Brewing Company and continued to work there until his retirement nine years ago.

Paraded for Brewery

Relatives recalled last night that Mr. McKenzie used to represent the brewery in parades before automobiles came in vogue. In those days gayly decorated carriages and well-groomed horses were what constituted a smart-looking outfit.

They also stated that Mr. McKenzie worked with Conrad Metzger under A. J. Fesenmeier, who was brewmaster at the Cumberland Brewing Company for many years.

Mr. McKenzie was well-known in Cumberland and had a large number of friends. His chief interests were his home, his church, SS. Peter and Paul's, his job, and going hunting.

Liked To Hunt

Mr. McKenzie was very fond of hunting and in recent years had regretted having to give up tramping around in the woods with his gun. He also was fond of dogs, especially hounds. He was also very fond of baseball and carefully followed the records of "Lefty" Grove, Jimmy Foxx and "Babe" Ruth.

Surviving him are five sons, Clarence, Vincent and William, all of Cumberland, John A., of Chicago, and Enoch E., of Detroit; five daughters, Miss Helen McKenzie at home, Mrs. Albert Mullan, Mrs. John A. Glick, Mrs. Marian Mantheiy, and Mrs. Lawrence Mantheiy; sixteen grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Charming Hostesses Add Feminine Touch to Militarized 'Y' Drive

With only tweny-four hours remaining before the "zero hour," when more than 100 volunteer workers will go over the top in the annual "Join the 'Y' Campaign" to what General Chairman Roy W. Eves predicted will be the most successful drive the local Central "Y" has ever had, the ranks last night had been almost completely filled.

Although the "Y" campaign is drawn up along military lines, it has several advantages over the system Uncle Sam uses in the trenches.

Notable is the attachment to each division of a charming lady who acts as "hostess". The duty of a hostess includes, in addition to presiding at the daily report luncheons, calling each worker on the telephone each morning to get him out of bed and off to work. This is a big improvement over the old fashioned bugler with his "You Gotta Get Up".

Frank B. Henson, F. H. Rockwell, Donald W. Smith, Ernest Hutcheson, E. L. Kuhn, Elza Nave, Ralph Doak, Robert McMillan, Mrs. Wilbur Bishop, Mrs. A. L. Rogers, Miss Mildred Diehl, Mrs. William Barrow, Mrs. Walter Johnson, Mrs. Ira Vandegrift, Mrs. Nicholas Jordano, Mrs. Phil Jolley, Mrs. Louis Baker, Mrs. Nell Frick, Mrs. Lloyd Lannich, and E. T. Dixon.
